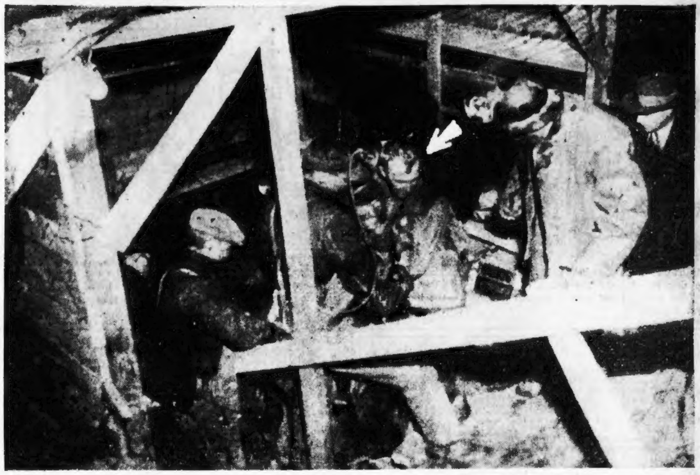
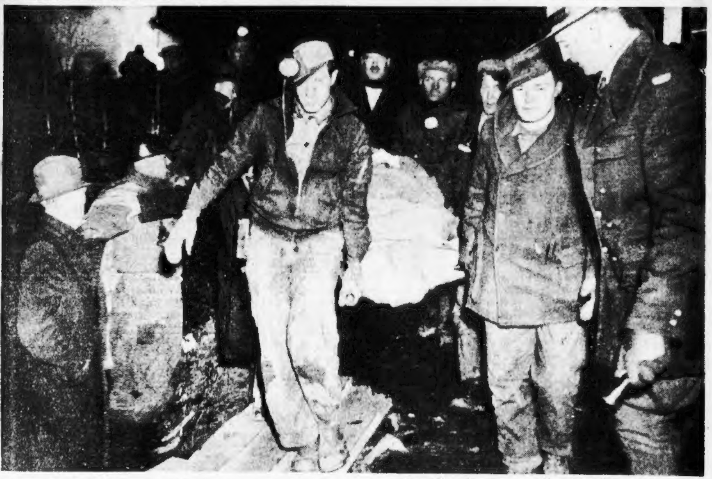
AIRPLANE RUSHES MINE SURVIVOR TO HOSPITAL

STATE LIBRARY OF MASSACHUSETTS



Back to the world he thought he might never see again comes Dr. D. Edwin Robertson, Toronto surgeon, as rescuers assist him from the Moose River, N. S., gold mine in which he and two companions were imprisoned for ten days by a cave-in. This actual photograph, rushed by airplane to the Boston Evening American, shows Dr. Robertson as he appeared, emaciated, bedraggled and near collapse, at the moment he first reached the earth's surface. He is still able to stand, although members of the rescue crew are half carrying him.



On a stretcher which was awaiting him as he was assisted from his "living tomb" in the depths of a Moose River, N. S., gold mine, Dr. D. Edwin Robertson of Toronto is being carried to Moose River's emergency hospital, where he and his surviving companion, Mine Time-keeper Alfred Scadding, are to receive special treatment to guard them against disease which might assail them in their weakened condition. This actual photograph, taken at the rescue scene, was rushed by airplane to the Boston Evening American.

About Newspaper Men
Connolly, Mead, Others
Some Ethiopian Manners
Supreme Is a Big Word

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved.

Newspaper owners, editors and publishers from all over are gathered in New York, talking shop and other things. They ought all to see the exhibit of King Features and the other syndicates that Joseph V. Connolly has arranged at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Merchants as well as publishers might profitably visit that exhibition for ideas on advertising presentation.

Intensely interesting is a huge photograph of John D. Rockefeller, with the caption, "Life Begins at 95." Other newspaper men will see in that intelligent face, close to 100, proof that hard work does not kill—if you eliminate some other things.

Mr. Connolly may be said to have a "wide newspaper acquaintance," for newspaper features that he supplies are published in thousands of American newspapers and in seven hundred foreign newspapers published in fifty-three countries and twenty-seven, including Iraq, languages.

About twenty editors and publishers had luncheon with Mr. Connolly yesterday, able men, each a public watchman in his corner of the United States, among them T. J. Dillon, of the Minneapolis Tribune; Ben Lawrence, of the Indianapolis Star; George Longan, of the Kansas City Star. Longan and his associate owners of the Star have proved that a group of newspaper men, that have worked together for thirty years, can run a newspaper successfully, under joint ownership.

There was John Mead, of the Erie, Pa., Times, who looks all of 53, and is actually 74 years old. He would interest modern young men looking for a career, ready-made. He started his newspaper with twenty-five dollars, total capital, fifty years ago, and, Irish, by the way, Mead fought poverty for twenty years, enjoyed that and conquered. Since then he has successfully fought prosperity, sometimes harder to conquer than poverty.

Newspaper men have interesting lives because they are always subject to the "initiative, referendum and recall." Nobody is compelled to buy their newspapers, although Connolly

LINCOLN OUT; URGE MORAN FOR POST

Governor Curley today received and accepted the resignation of Alexander Lincoln, whose removal he sought from the State Board of Tax Appeal.

Four Democratic senators, Madden, Langone, Carroll and Donahoe, urged the governor to appoint James G. Moran, Republican president of the Senate, to the $7000-a-year position. They and Moran conferred with the governor but no announcement was made.

Also a candidate for the job is Thomas F. Curley of Dorchester, a Democrat, ex-senator, one-time Curley campaign manager but not relation to the governor.

LINCOLN QUITS RACE

Besides resigning his state job, Lincoln also announced his withrawal as a candidate to the Republican pre-primary convention. The Brookline Republican Town Committee withdrew its endorsement of him after disclosure by the Black committee of a letter in which he allegedly uttered an anti-Semetic statement.

His removal was originally sought by the governor on 14 specifications alleging partiality in tax abatements. To these, yesterday, was added a 15th, based upon the Black committee disclosures after Jewish war veterans made a concerted protest.

Lincoln, in his resignation, admitted the letter disclosed in Washington admitted of interpretation as a reflection on a racial group.

SAYS "I'm INNOCENT"

He wrote:

"That interference I entirely and completely disavow. That I should have ever used language permitting it will be a source of unforgetting regret. My sole intention . . . was to refer to those persons of Jewish racial origin conspicuously active in the communistic movement and to persons of that origin and of strong socialistic convictions prominently associated with our present federal administration . . . Of the other 14 charges which have been made against me, I am absolutely innocent."

BOY, 10, SEIZED BUT ESCAPES KIDNAPER

Allentown, Pa., April 23 (AP) — Ten-year-old Henry T. Koch, son of a department store executive, was kidnaped on his way to school today, but escaped as his father received a demand for $20,000 ransom.

Police said a man they arrested admitted the abduction.

A man seized near the scene described himself as John James, of Chicago, but police expressed the belief that was fictitious.

They said a roll of adhesive tape and four prepared ransom notes were in his pockets. The notes were arranged in orderly fashion, each succeeding one stronger in tenor than the previous.

What apparently was intended to be the final demand said:

"If you try to double cross us this time you can go home, for you will not get your son back."

STOCKS LOWER

New York, April 23 (INS)—Reactionary tendencies resumed their sway over the stock market today after yesterday's brief rally.

Selling in steel shares, where losses ran to more than $2, was the principal upsetting influence. Along with this went weakness in rails and coppers and pressure elsewhere.

Auto Case Solon Cools in Cell

Washington, April 23 (AP)—Representative Zioncheck of Washington was forcibly removed from traffic court today for creating a disturbance in objecting to a court recess of 45 minutes during a hearing on a speeding charge against him.

He was locked up in a cell near the courtroom, which was in wild disorder.

The Representative, who pleaded guilty, had appeared in court to face a 70-mile-an-hour speeding charge only after an earlier scuffle with a policeman at the Capitol.

When Judge Walter Casey announced that the court would recess and started to retire, The representative started to walk out. Court bailiffs grabbed him. He was then put in the cell.

TAKEN TO GUARD ROOM

The recess had been ordered so he mibht examine the notification given Zioncheck to appear in court. The representative had objected to the form of the notification.

The youthful Representative was taken to the guard room of the new House Office Building today after a scuffle with a Washington policeman who was attempting to serve him with an attachment to compel his appearance in police court.

Arrested early Saturday morning, Zioncheck had promised to appear. He told reporters he had no intention of going to court.

"I owe Judge Casey no debt of gratitude," he said, "and I'm not going to come down there and give him a chance to get the cheap publicity he's seeking."

DEFIES JUDGE

He told newsmen they could tell Judge Casey to "go to the devil."

He referred to the arrival yesterday of the president of Cuba.

"They furnished him with a powerful car—more powerful than my car—and gave him an escort of motorcycle police.

"They went through town—through red lights so fast the motor cops couldn't keep up with him and had to flag him down. They were going close to 80."

MILLEN CASE LAWYER GETS TWO YEARS

George A. Douglas, who was counsel for Norma Brighton Millen in the Millen-Faber murder cases, pleaded guilty today to larceny of $10,215 and was sentenced to serve two years in the House of Correction at Deer Island.

A fervent plea by Assistant District Attorney Garrett H. Byrne, who had been a pupil of Douglas at Suffolk Law School, saved him from a state prison term.

Byrne said Douglas, who only a short time ago was a center of national interest as lawyer for the bride of the machine gun bandit, Murton Millen, was now penniless, having lost his home, his family and his hope.

DIVERTED FUNDS

Douglas was sentenced, as he had been recently disbarred, for diverting to his own use the funds of an insane man, for whom he had been appointed guardian by the probate court.

Sentence was imposed on Douglas in Suffolk Superior Court by Judge John M. Gibbs.

Evidently completely broken in spirit, the former lawyer, who in

460 Millions Asked For Social Security

Washington April 23 (INS)—President Roosevelt today submitted to congress supplemental budget estimates for the social security program in the fiscal year starting July 1 totaling $460,800,000.

The estimates not only revealed the wide scope of the program, embracing old age pensions, unemployment insurance and other aid, but expanded the budget submitted at the opening of congress in January.

Pneumonia Threatens 2 Rescued Men

Moose River, N. S., April 23 — Doctors battling to save Charles Alfred Scadding, one of the two survivors, from pneumonia resulting from his harrowing 10-day entombment in the gold mine here, today speeded him by seaplane to Halifax. He was removed in an ambulance from the plane to the Victoria General Hospital.

Dr. D. E. Robertson, 65, imprisoned in the mine with Scadding since Easter Sunday, was resting this afternoon at the emergency hospital here.

The two men were brought from the 141-foot level of the mine last night after rescuers had dug for 10 days to reach them.

Scadding's condition may be complicated by badly swollen and infected feet, the result of walking through the icy, subterranean waters.

Dr. Robertson is also suffering from an arm injury, the cause of which has not been made known, although it is necessary for him to carry the arm in a sling.

The three physicians in charge of the medical unit, Dr. H. K. MacDonald, Dr. N. D. Rankin and Dr. Ian MacDonald, had announced this morning:

"Dr. Robertson and Scadding arrived at the improvised hospital at 1:10 a. m. Dr. Robertson's physical and mental condition is excellent. It is much better than anticipated. We feel he will have a rapid recovery.

"Alfred Scadding's condition is surprisingly good. His feet were cold and swollen and somewhat blistered, but we do not anticipate further trouble.

"The patients likely will be left in Moose River a few days, then transferred to Halifax.

Both men were emaciated and had grown heavy

Fire Aboard Ship Stirs Waterfront

For a few minutes today East Boston's waterfront thought all the docks were going to be swept by fire, but a blaze in the Steamship Allerton, of the Nantasket Line, was extinguished with only $50 damage.

About 75 workmen clambered out of the ship's hold, their faces blackened by smoke smudges. Fortunately, none was burned.

A spark from an acetylene torch set a pot of grease afire, police reported. Firemen had to use chemicals and tools to put out the blaze, since water would have caused greater damage.

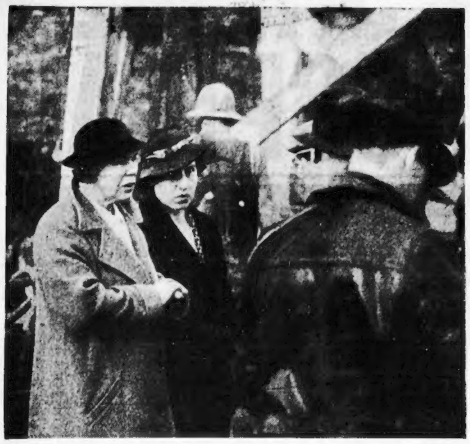
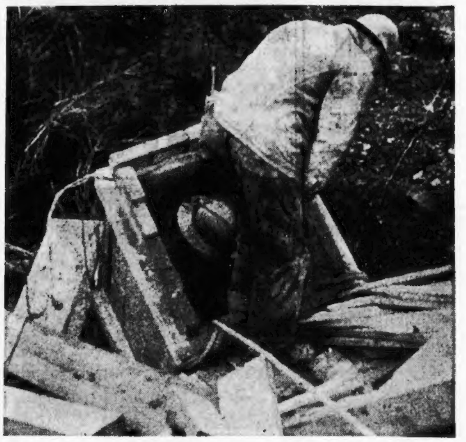
LOVE AND THE WORLD WATCH HEROISM CHEAT DEATH



Their wait was patient, and for one was in vain. Mrs. D. E. Robertson, in light costume, and Mrs. Herman Magill (widowed in mine tragedy), photographed by Hearst Metrotone News movie men near the rescue shaft at the Moose River gold mine as they watched heroic miners dig desperately.

This dog's master was missing when this photograph was made of the pal and close friend of Dr. Robertson. Hour after hour the dog stood near the mouth of the shaft, as if he knew his owner was in trouble. The faithful pet seemed patient as the long vigil lengthened into hours—into days.



Members of the rescue crew are seen entering the mouth of the rescue shaft to do their part in the last hours of digging. Miners and officials toiled side by side in the battle which was triumphant when the two entombed men were brought out.

Dr. Robertson made his own way through the tortuous shaft to the surface but doctors insisted on placing him on a stretcher for transportation to the emergency hospital.

Behind them, miners bore out the body of their companion, Herman Magill, Toronto lawyer, who died of exposure in the living tomb far below the surface last Monday morning.

Today, all the facilities of modern science are being placed at the disposal of the rescued pair in a new challenge to death.

It was science that sustained the men through their long ordeal and finally encompassed their rescue during the eerie hours just after midnight after 10 heartbreaking days.

Draegermen, experts in mine rescue work, accomplished the heavy manual work, while scientific instruments were brought into play to establish and maintain communication with the entombed men.

Today at Victoria General Hospital in Halifax every possible facility has been prepared to receive the two men.

Those present at the rescue marvelled at Dr. Robertson's iron constitution but his advanced years and the lengthy confinement in the dark recesses of his underground prison led Dr. McDonald to insist that he be kept under careful observation.

According to his plans the men were to be bathed and shaved at the emergency hospital here when they awoke today.

After that they were to be placed aboard the plane at approximately 10 a. m. and rushed to Eastern Passage airport.

From there they would make the 25-mile journey to Halifax by auto, arriving sometime near noon.

The two men were snatched dramatically from death shortly after midnight as an army of 50 heroic draegermen finally cleared away the last remaining tangle of debris and mine timber which blocked them from the entombed pair.

Joe Simpson, leader of the Stellarton draegermen, was the first to drop through the small hole by which the workers broke into the underground tomb.

The first object he saw was a tragic one, the limp remains of Magill.

Twenty feet away and their faces averted from the body of their companion were the two survivors.

Both were standing up, grasping each other firmly, their faces bearded and ashen in the dim light of his underground lamp.

"Where did you come from?" he said Dr. Robertson asked weakly.

"Good boy! Good boy! Thank God you are here at last," the doctor replied with tears streaming down his face.

DOCTOR'S ARM IN SLING

"I'm all right," the doctor answered and pulled out a small piece of candy from his pocket. "I guess I won't need this any more."

One of the draegermen then jokingly asked if they wanted to walk up through the shaft.

"Take it easy, boys," Scadding said.

Dr. Robertson interrupted here and declared he would walk up but insisted that Scadding be carried because of the condition of his feet.

It had been expected the ascent through the shaft would require some time, but it was only a few minutes before the courageous doctor reached the surface.

They were held back by Royal Mounted police and miners, who interlocked arms.

Simpson said the two survivors, when found, were standing on the north side of the 141-foot level beside the skip, or trolley, which operated from the depths to the surface of the mine.

This was apparently the same spot to which all three men had jumped to safety when the old mine collapsed Easter Sunday night while Dr. Robertson and Magill, the new owners of the property, and Scadding, the timekeeper, were making an inspection tour.

Describing the scene of the entombment, Simpson said:

"It was about seven feet wide and 12 feet high, but I don't know how long. It was very wet and damp."

TEARS OF HAPPINESS

Only the wives of the two men were permitted to approach and the women embraced the survivors with tears of happiness in their eyes.

Heavy bandages had been placed over the eyes of the two men as they came to the surface to prevent blindness by lights to which their eyes had become unaccustomed to in 10 days under the surface of the ground.

Both men were strong enough to wave to the crowd and shout their thanks to their rescuers.

They were then whisked away in ambulances to the emergency hospital where immediate measures to relieve them were taken.

A short time later their wives were permitted to see them but all others were barred except doctors and nurses.

As the ambulances drove from the mine, the throng sang the hymn, "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow," a fitting climax to 10 days of an epic of gallantry on the part of both rescuers and rescued.

First word that the race with death that held the attention of the world had been won in the face of harrowing dangers to rescuers and rescued alike was brought to the tense crowd of anxious men and women near the mine-head by one of the rescuers who ran up from the shaft shouting:

"We've got them. They're safe all right and coming out now. My God, but they are game."

The rescuer's announcement, coming but a short time before Robertson and Scadding themselves were carried from the ink-black depths, was greeted with shouts of exciting joy.

"The men are coming out!

"They're alive!"

News of the epochal rescue was flashed to all sections of Canada and the United States by a Canadian radio commission broadcast announcer over a huge network.

The announcer's voice quivered with excitement as he informed millions of radio listeners that:

"The men are rescued alive! They have come out of the mine!"

"DRAEGERMEN" HEROES

Heroes of the spectacular rescue were Nova Scotia's famed and fearless "draegermen," hard-knuckled miners especially trained for disaster work.

It was their skill and courage that won a remarkable race with death that at times during the ten days of underground labor seemed all but lost.

Fifty of these staunch "draegermen," consisting of the most experienced mine rescue workers on the scene, were taken down the rescue shaft only about an hour before the last obstacle of twisted timber debris was finally conquered and the trapped men taken out of their tomb.

Philip Henderson, manager of the 54-year-old mine, led the 50 men into the rescue shaft with the announcement:

"This is definitely the last shift of men that will have to go down there.

"We are now going to bring Robertson and Scadding out."

This dramatic prediction, voiced by a veteran of 50 years in the mine fields, electrified the crowd and excitement mounted to frantic heights from the moment Henderson uttered the words until the news came out of the depths that Robertson and Scadding had been rescued at last.

DOCTOR'S HIGH COURAGE

Not long before Henderson took the "last shift" into the mine to grasp victory in the long-thrilling fight for two human lives, Robertson himself, evidencing the high courage that had never failed him throughout his gruelling ordeal, spoke into the tiny microphone which had been lowered to his chamber through a diamond drill hole, saying:

"Everything is okay. I'll be up soon."

Even as the rescue workers, risking their own lives every inch of the way, sawed and hacked at the last few feet of tangled debris obstructing their passage to the mine tomb, Robertson kept up a dramatic conversation with them.

For nearly five hours Robertson maintained vocal communication with his rescuers until he and his companion were finally taken out of their black room of horror.

Emerging from the shaft shortly before the rescue was triumphantly completed, Michael Dwyer, Canada's minister of mines who directed all the life-saving work in the mine, said:

"We have established contact with the men. We have been able to speak with them constantly since eight o'clock."

Additional reassuring word was later brought up to the waiting crowd by Henderson, who said:

"The men in the chamber are able to talk to the workers through the timber debris just as clearly as I am talking to you now."

The heroic rescuers battled their way through the debris to rescue Robertson and Scadding in the nick of time.

For as they struggled to clear a path through the last 10 feet of timber the ceiling of their rescue shaft began to weaken and sink, confronting them with the peril of an imminent collapse, a mishap that would probably have brought new tragedy.

Then, it became a race with time as well as with death, but the dauntless "draegermen" conquered both.

It was at this point that the skill and experience of Henderson's "last shift" asserted themselves.

For as the shaft ceiling showed signs of weakening, the "draegermen" hastily erected new timber props, thus preventing a possible cave-in that might have resulted if less experienced mine rescue workers had ignored the necessity of taking this prcaution.

When the vanguard of three rescue workers penetrated the wall of rock and dirt encasing the chamber wherein Robertson and Scadding awaited deliverance the two men were suffering agonizing pain as a result of their exposure to the oozing dampness of the earth's interior.

A hypodermic needle and narcotic stimulants had been sent down the rescue shaft at Dr. Robertson's request to help him and his companion relieve their pain and bolster their fading strength.

Shortly after word was flashed to the waiting crowds near the mine head that the rescuers had penetrated the wall of rock and dirt separating them from the entombed men, 141 feet beneath the earth's surface, a request came up for hack-saws and blades which were promptly sent down the shaft.

Vigorously the rescuers set themselves to the task of sawing away the interlaced, criss-crossing timbers and twisted steel rails, at the same time shouting encouragement to the trapped men just a few feet from where they worked.

First to reach the side of the long-entombed men were three members of Nova Scotia's famed corps of "draegermen," Joe Simpson, George Morrell and H. Hirshfield, all miners especially trained to overcome the hazards of mine rescue work.

"I won't be back before we bring them out alive."

Another rescuer asked the Canadian radio commission to broadcast a greeting to his family in Stellerton, saying:

SCENES OF FRENZIED JOY

Scenes of frenzied joy unparalleled in the history of this rough mining region were enacted when the word flashed out of the rescue shaft that Dr. Robertson and Scadding had been rescued.

Grizzled miners, accustomed to the hardships and perils of underground labor, sobbed unashamedly. Staid, decorous provincial government officials shouted with joy. Women wept.

Then, out of the blackness below came new word of the work the "draegermen" were doing in sawing fallen timbers and twisted steel rails to widen the hole they had opened so that Dr. Robertson and Scadding could be removed.

The tangled steel, remnants of an underground railway that had once been used to transport gold ore along the 14-foot level to the elevator shafts, presented the most formidable barrier to the rescuers.

It was necessary to send hack saws into the shaft to aid in clearing the debris clogging the narrow passage to the underground chamber.

Dr. Robertson and Scadding, despite their excruciating pain and hunger, remained bravely cheerful up until the moment of rescue and talked with the spearhead of the "draeger" crew as the debris was being cut away.

Day-by-Day Steps in Fight to Save Pair

Moose River, N. S., April 23—The 10-day battle to save the lives of Dr. D. Edwin Robertson and Alfred Scadding, which ended in victory today, in brief:

SUNDAY, APRIL 12—Dr. Robertson and Herman Magill, Toronto lawyer, co-owners of the mine, trapped with Scadding in a cave-in of the upper workings.

MONDAY, APRIL 13—Fifty miners and many volunteers start rescue operations through Meagher slope.

TUESDAY, APRIL 14—Cave-in at Meagher slope forces change in operations. Steam shovel and equipment rushed to aid in digging.

WEDNESDAY, April 15—Miners start digging new shaft as Mrs. Robertson and Mrs. Magill arrive from Toronto to take up tragic vigil.

THURSDAY, APRIL 16—Steam shovel and equipment reach scene of operations over boggy roads. Miners start work on communication shaft with diamond drill.

FRIDAY, APRIL 17—Emergency hospital unit rushed from Halifax by Dr. H. K. McDonald. Trained rescue workers arrive from Ontario.

SATURDAY, APRIL 18 — Diamond drill bores through to 141-foot cross-cut level and pipe is sunk from surface. Entombed men tap signals to rescuers.

SUNDAY, APRIL 19 — Voices from mine prove the three victims are still alive. Food, medicine and other necessities dropped to them through communication pipe.

MONDAY, APRIL 20—Scadding reports by communication pipe that Magill has succumbed. Dr. Robertson reports water rising in level and estimates 10 hours of life remain. Miners abandon drills and dig with bare hands to avoid jarring walls.

TUESDAY, APRIL 21—Rescuers hack through to main operating shaft and locate communication pipe, proving they are on right track. Dr. Robertson calls for fountain pen, indicating he is writing last will.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 22—Scant few feet separate rescuers from two survivors as Dr. Robertson estimates they can hold out for 48 hours. Rescuers hear voices and finally break through to 141-foot level.

THURSDAY, APRIL 23—Miners find Dr. Robertson and Scadding alive and bearing up courageously. Rescue completed at 12:44 p. m. (Atlantic time) with two men under treatment at emergency hospital.

HOUSE PASSES SLASHED BUDGET

Once again insurrection broke out among Democrats in the House today and one stinging defeat after another was administered to Governor Curley's supporters.

On the mere matter of whether races would be declared at 2 o'clock or at 2:15, Republicans and insurgent Democrats showed their strength by rejecting an administration motion.

Earlier the House had passed without further amendment the state budget bill, now providing that $65,634,284 be appropriated. That cuts about ten million from the governor's figures.

The governor sent a special message to the representatives asking that the budget be amended to increase the Metropolitan District Commission appropriation by $450,000.

He said it would provide work for 1400 men in the Blue Hills, Fellsway and other park areas. But the House side-tracked the recommendation to the Ways and Means Committee, which is definitely hostile to the governor.

All along the line, whenever a Democratic leader moved for legislation favored to the administration, the opposition wrecked the motions.

Representative Edward J. Kelley of Worcester, floor leader for the New Dealers, tried to get a general "pass" on the budget, necessitating reading of captions on all items. He lost.

He moved to increase the governor's office allotment from $40,640 to $56,400. He lost. A rolcall showed the lineup 119 to 91.

Representative Comerford of Brokline tried to amend another item and he lost. Representative Connolly met a similar defeat.

A proposal to adjourn was introduced by Representative Ward of Roxbury and then Representative Sawyer of Ware asked that it be amended only to mean adjournment until 2 p. m. Both moves were swamped.

But when Representative Dorgan of Dorchester tried again, with the 2:15 p. m. recess motion, the move prevailed.

Derby Hat and All, Tip's Double Seized

You could have knocked over Francis P. "Tip" O'Neill, night police reporter and radio broadcaster, with afire engine today when word spread through police headquarters that "Tip" O'Neil, derby hat and all, had been arrested on a charge of larceny by false pretenses.

The Boston Evening American reporter breathed a bit easier, however, when he discovered that the man under arrest was Francis T. O'Neil, 32, of Waldorf street, Dorchester.

This O'Neil, police allege, is the man who has been impersonating the police reporter and for whom they have been searching for months. Today, following issuance of a warrant charging larceny of $500 from George Goslin of 86 Francis street, Roxbury, last December, O'Neil was arrested.

MAGILL Death Story TOLD

KILLED IN MINE BY PNEUMONIA

"The mystery which has shrouded the death of Herman Magill in the Meagher shaft was solved this morning.

"Pneumonia developed.

"While he was in the throes of this disease the rescuers above pierced the room of the level.

"Magill knew this, but he never communicated with the people on the surface.

"Five hours later he died.

Their Only Wood

"Daring a dearth of air, Magill, Robertson and Scadding burned the only two bits of dry wood in the deeps.

"The two survivors did not suffer severely from this cause.

"They drank water freely and to this attribute their present fine condition.

"Their uncomfortable position and the fear they might not get to the surface gave chief concern.

"When they did they locked themselves in one another's arms to preserve what heat foodless bodies would generate.

"The men did not go down to the diamond drill opening often, because Dr. Robertson wished to conserve strength.

"To go down to the tube where the food was dropped, the men had to travel 20 feet down and traverse water.

Tears of Joy

Moose River, N. S., April 23 — Tragic contrast of joy and grief was limned in the faces of three women standing at the gold mine shaft head today as rescuers broke through through to the imprisoned men.

Almost at the point of collapse, Mrs. Pauline Robertson and Mrs. Alfred Scadding, wives of the two rescued men, wept tears of joy and as quickly laughed with happiness as draegermen helped their husbands to the surface.

And nearby, her pretty young face etched with lines of tragedy, stood the wife of Herman Magill, fellow victim of the two rescued men, who died in the underground prison early Monday morning.

For her it was not a reunion. In spite of her sorrow, she had returned to the tragic scene to claim the body of her husband as it was brought from the dank depths.

VIGIL AT END

In these three faces was written the whole story of the epic struggle which has attracted the attention of the entire world.

For two of them, it meant the end of a tireless vigil, racked by disappointment piled on disappointment only to have their prayers answered in the end.

For the other it meant only fresh woe piled on the grief and sadness that sent her sorrowfully from the mine last Monday morning.

She was almost ignored as the two rescued men finally emerged from the pit, weak but showing the courage which had sustained them in their 10 days of imprisonment.

Her meed of tribute came later when miners tenderly bore the remains of her husband, blanket-draped, on a stretcher from the mine.

Heads were uncovered and the miners bowed low as the burden of death passed them on its journey to a temporary morgue.

Following an inquest here today, the body will be taken to Halifax and shipped to Toronto for burial.

"You men are wonderful," Mrs. Robertson cried, as she threw her arms about the shoulders of the grimy and bedraggled rescuers.

Both women then repaired to the emergency hospital where doctors allowed them to visit their husbands.

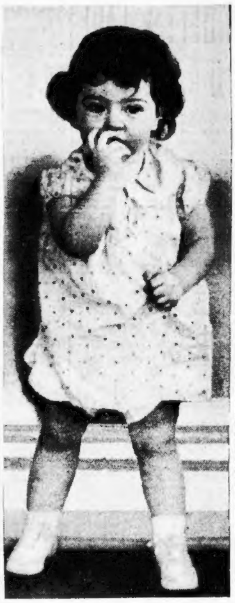
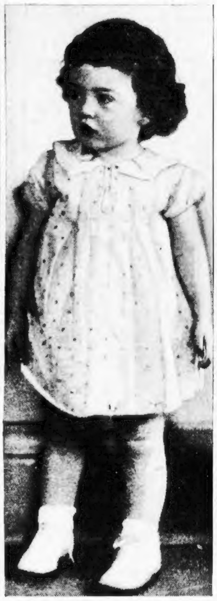
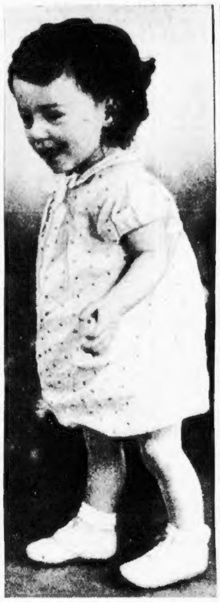
A SKEPTIC?—No, "Quin" Yvonne still retains her naivete. She's just casting an appraising glance at the cameraman, perhaps wondering if the new lensman knows how to take pictures. After all, she's been photographed hundreds of times, and with a new man on the job she's got a right to wonder.



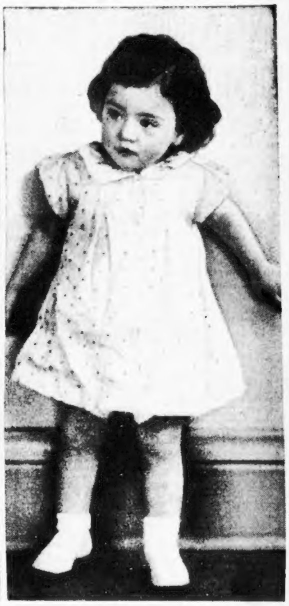
THOUGHTFUL ANNETTE!—"Let me see now—!" Annette tries to remember anything she may have forgotten as she prepares for session outdoors. Who knows, it may have involved something very important, such as a doll or two. Far be is from Annette to deprive her pretty dolls of this nice spring sunshine.



GRAVE CECILE!—That very grave look in the countenance of Miss Cecile Dionne would have you believe that she's been plunged into the depths of despair. But don't let it fool you—it's just her way of expressing "joy" when allowed to romp in the wide open spaces.



CAREFREE MARIE! — Having been told that she could do as she pleased for the next few hours, "Quin" Marie is making a bee-line dash for the Dionne play yard. Does she like the outdoors? Well just gaze at that beaming smile on her face, and judge for yourself.



CAUTIOUS EMILIE!—"Quin" Emilie takes a very calculating survey of the weather before stepping out of the Dionne nursery for a romp in the warm spring sunshine. With the coming of warm weather the quins' daily session in the Dionne nursery play yard has been extended an hour or two longer.

Principals In Rescue

Moose River, N. S., April 23 (AP)—The principals in the Moose River tragedy and rescue:

Dr. D. E. Robertson, 62, distinguished Toronto surgeon, was part owner of the mine. His wife remained near the rescue operations throughout, his two sons in Toronto.

Herman Magill, 30, Toronto lawyer and partner of Dr. Robertson, died before the rescue could be accomplished. His widow, herself ill, received the news at the mine head.

Charles Alfred Scadding, 44, veteran miner, employed as timekeeper, went inside with the owners on an inspection trip Easter Sunday, April 12.

EVICTED, ENDS LIFE

Hangs Self to House He Owned

Chicago, April 23 (AP)—The two-night vigil which John Bukowski, 50, kept with his wife among their possessions heaped on the sidewalk in front of the 12-apartment building he once owned, ended today when Bukowski hanged himself from a porch rafter of the building.

The Bukowskis and their two children were evicted Tuesday from the apartment house in which the father invested his life savings—$18,000. The first night the children, a girl, 15 and a boy, 17, remained with their parents, but last night they apparently sought shelter from the cold.

Mrs. Bukowski, dozing in a rocking chair on the sidewalk, became hysterical when a milkman said her husband was dead. He had attached a rope to a beam and allowed his knees to sag, strangling himself.

Two watchmen had been stationed in their apartment to see that the Bukowskis did not return. The eviction followed the obtaining of legal possession of the property by a bank acting for a mortgage holder.

'Thank God,' Words Of Brother, Son

Toronto, April 23—"Thank God," was all the son and brother of Dr. D. Edwin Robertson could say at first when authentic news that the imprisoned men had been rescued reached them here today.

The son, Donald E. Robertson, received word by telephone from Charles Ivey, his uncle, who was at the mine with Mrs. Robertson. Dr. Duncan Robertson, brother of the surgeon, had come from Chicago to stay with the son during the period of anxious waiting.

Dafoe, Doctor Classmates

North Bay, Ont., April 23 (INS)—Dr. Allan R. Dafoe hastened from his little quintuplet charges at the Dafoe hospital at Corbeil to his radio to get the latest news from Moose River, N. S., as the dramatic struggle to rescue Dr. D. E. Robertson and Alfred Scadding of Toronto was under way.

Dr. Dafoe and Dr. Robertson are classmates, being graduated from the University of Toronto in 1907.

Sleep Neglected For Celebration

Toronto, April 23—Bed was the last thought in thousands of minds here tonight when the long awaited news that Dr. D. Edwin Robertson and Alfred Scadding had been rescued after 10 days of imprisonment in the Nova Scotia mine cave-in.

Throughout the night and early morning hours lights remained on in thousands of homes and impromptu celebrations were held throughout the city.

Delays Divorce

Salem, April 23—Judge Edward B. O'Brien is considering the petition of divorce brought by Mrs. Irene A. Nelson of Prospect street, Gloucester, but he did not release her from marriage bonds on the day she testified, although it seemed appropriate.

EDITORS FAVOR WAR TO CURB LOBBY BOARD

New York, April 23 (INS)—A militant resolution calling upon citizens whose private papers have been seized by the Black Senate Committee to demand criminal prosecutions of and civil damages from "all involved in the odious affair" will be voted upon by the American Newspaper Publishers Association today.

HEARST HAILED

William Randolph Hearst and other publishers who fought to halt the seizure of private telegrams by the Black committee were hailed in the resolution, which is expected to be passed by acclamation.

Three other resolutions dealing with the freedom of the press were to be passed also today.

One calls upon the American Press to use publicity to resist the attempts of "politico-criminal alliances in Minnesota or any other place to abridge the freedom of the press." It blamed the recent murder in Minneapolis of Editor Walter Liggett on just such a terroristic alliance.

COMMEND PAPERS

The other resolutions commend a group of Louisiana papers and the Philadelphia Inquirer for recent court battles in which they successfully defended the principle of freedom of the press.

In addition to the business sessions, there was a reception given by King Features Syndicate for Gene Ahern, noted comic artist, at which the visiting publishers and editors were guests. More than a score of world-famous celebrities of screen, stage, sports, the arts and journalism made personal appearances.

Another reception will be given by King Features today for the nation's outstanding comic artists.

'Calling All Cars!' How It Works in Everett

Chief Explains System

By ETHLIN VAN PORT

You've probably often wondered how it feels to be the man behind the wheel of the police radio car as it whizzes through the night, in response to that steady insistent summons, "calling all cars . . ."

Your correspondent had the opportunity to ride, upon police call, in a new two-way radio communication auto.

The newest police radio system, recently installed at Everett headquarters and known as Mobile Police Radio, operates both from headquarters to the cruising cars, and then from the cars back to headquarters, taking two seconds to establish communication.

FULLY EQUIPPED

Chief George O. Kenney outlined a few of the fundamentals before the shining black sedan, fully equipped with riot guns, siren and first aid equipment, arrived.

"We have three new radio cars at this time," he explained, "and within the week will have our emergency ambulance similarly equipped as well. These cars are prepared for any emergency.

"The initials of headquarters station is WAKF. Cars are known as 1, 2 and 3."

The car arrived as he finished speaking, and the officers who were to take me with them on the ride approached. They were driver Louis McNeil, and operator Patrolman Patsy Fiorentino.

It was exactly 11:30 when we started.

For about five minutes we drove through the city streets and were it not for a prominent gold insignia upon the side of the car, and the officers, uniforms it is doubtful whether any would have noticed the car.

TWO SIGNALS FLASH

Had they glanced inside, a different view would have greeted them. What appeared to be a French telephone reposed upon a small black box, immediately to the right of the steering wheel.

The distance between mouthpiece and receiver of this telephone, however, is scientifically spaced and a black signal button is attached to the corner of the receiver box. That button, it was explained, is used in contacting headquarters.

Suddenly two signals like spaced dashes penetrated the air. Officer We were still careening in high ceiver, picked it up.

"Station WAKF calling Cruiser No. 3 . . . Proceed to 33 Central avenue . . . Proceed to 33 Central avenue . . . See owner right away."

"Cruiser No. 3. O. K."

Officer McNeil threw the machine into high speed we raced, a screaming siren clearing all traffic, through main and side streets to the object of our destination . . . No. 33 Central avenue.

We were still careering in high around corners and down alleys as the reply came from the driver.

"You never can tell . . . Officer Edward Conley made the first arrest in the car this morning . . . An attempted robbery. This could be anything. We never know."

He jammed on the brakes before a frame wooden house, alighted from the car and entered. Officer McNeil remained seated beside me in the car.

We looked at his watch. The call had reached us at 11:46. It was now 11:50. It had taken exactly four minutes to reach our destination. Pressing the black buzzer, McNeil contacted headquarters and announced:

"Cruiser No. 3 calling Station WAKF. We are now at No. 33 Central avenue. Officer Fiorentino investigating. We are standing by."

"O. K. No. 3" came headquarter's replay.

In another moment Fiorentino came running down the stairs of the house and entered the car.

"Some more of those kids destroying the woman's property," he said.

His next step on entering the car was to call in the report.

"Cruiser Number 3 calling chadquarters," he said "Trouble cared for."

Some Ethiopian tribes under Haile Selassie are reported in revolt, the Emperor turning the command over to his son, the Crown Prince Asfa Wosan.

It would enlighten Englishmen and others, moaning about the use of poison gas by Italians, if the moaners could see the evidence of Ethiopian brutality that Italy has sent to the League of Nations. It is not Italian evidence; that of impartial, non-Italian observers. Many Italian non-combatants, working on roads, surprised and seized by Haile Selassie's men, were so horribly mutilated that the brutality could not be described, much less could the actual photographs be printed. The League has seen them.

One Italian tank was captured by Ethiopians with four men; the heads of two, impaled on bayonets, were carried proudly at the head of Ethiopian troops. The other two were kept in prison, that the Emperor, Haile Selassie, might have the satisfaction of seeing them upon his arrival. They were horribly beaten, while chained.

After Italy has seen the photographs of these tortured and mutilated men, it would be wise for Haile Selassie to keep out of the Italian government's hand, for a while, if possible. Mussolini might do to him what the English thought they would do to the former Kaiser, until they remembered that he was a cousin of their own king, and a hanging would not look well in the royal family records.

Eulogizing Chancellor Hitler, Air Minister Goering concludes his address: "Heil, victory to the Fuehrer, and the supreme war lord."

"Supreme war lord" is a fine title, but it usually comes after supreme conquest.

Goering, who bestows the resonant title on Chancellor Hitler, would be advised by such old-fashioned men as Bismarck or Von Moltke to wait at least until after the first battle.

Many heavy cannon, airplanes and bombs belonging to foreigners stand between Chancellor Hitler and that "Supreme War Lord" title.

Similar things affect different men in different ways. In Honolulu, James Dodd, 29, told, "You are fired," went to the airport, flew up 2000 feet in his new monoplane, pointed it downward, killed himself in a power dive.

Paul Armstrong, wonderfully good sporting writer, told by his editor, "You are fired," replied, "Much obliged. Now I shall carry out my plan to write a play and get it on Broadway."

Within a year he had written "Alias Jimmy Valentine," and enjoyed its great success. Temporary failure is good for the right kind of a man; fatal to others.

Howard Hughes, remarkable young pilot, combining the acquisition of flying records with the ability to earn money on a big scale, has just broken the record from Miami to New York, making more than 1100 miles in 4 hours, 21 minutes, 32 seconds. He climbed 13,750 feet as he flew out of Florida, and for a good part of the time flew five miles a minute. Four times that speed would take him around the world, at the equator, as fast as the sun seems to go around.

Professor Lee R. Dice, of Michigan University, has a singing mouse that sings almost as well as a canary. He utters his pleasing, soothing note with a voice so feeble it cannot be heard at a distance of more than twenty-five feet. One of Professor Dice's associates, a biological expert, suggests giving to all politicians a blood transfusion from such a singing mouse in presidential years.

HUGE DOUBLE PROFITS LAID TO A. T. & T.

Washington, April 22 (INS)—The giant American Telephone and Telegraph company today was charged with extracting huge profits from its associated companies for instrument rentals over a period of many years, and then with selling those instruments at another profit of $14,000,000, in a sweeping report released by the Federal Communications System.

The commission's chief accountant for the A. T. and T. investigation, John H. Bickley, placed the report in the record.

Not only was the big wire firm charged with huge profit-taking, but Bickley's report also declared that A. T. and T. officials before various state regulatory commissions have:

1—"Understated the profits on the sale of instruments in the amount of over $5,600,000;

2—"Given conflicting testimony as to how the sale price was determined."

Bickley's report outlined the history of the A. T. and T., picturing its tremendous expansion as largely built up on huge telephone rentals.

"From 1902 to 1927," the report said, "the profits on the rental of instruments averaged from 16 to 50 per cent on gross book cost of instruments and from 28.8 to 88.9 per cent on net book cost.

"For this period of 26 years the profits were from $50,000,000 to over $216,0.0,000 in excess of a six per cent return on gross book cost, and from almost $63,000,000 to over $229,000,000 in excess of a six per cent return on net book cost."

Guardsman Freed, Seized by Police

Springfield, April 23—Acquitted by court martial of all charges arising from the attack on Dr. Benjamin Alport during the flood a month ago, Private Mario J. the past had often battled with the prosecuting attorneys in defense of men charged with crimes ranging up to murder, bowed his head to hide moist eyes as he heard the prosecutor pleading for him.

PARTNER WEEPS

Byrne was visibly affected by his unusual role, while Douglas' former law associate, Hartley C. Cutter, was weeping.

"Your honor, in this case no restitution has been made," said Byrne. "I realize that your honor is inclined to send defendants of this type to state prison.

"But I have known Mr. Douglas since I was a little boy and studied under him at law school. He practiced law with distinction and was a high type of law teacher.

"Up to this instance he never broke a trust. This instance began with the depression. Mr. Douglas, like many another man, was wiped out financially.

"This situation is different from that of the ordinary thief who comes before your Honor. Mr. Douglas comes here, broken in spirit, a disbarred attorney, whose family has left him, and who has no home—penniless and without hope.

"In a word, he is a shattered man. I believe a State Prison sentence does not fit this case. There are times when justice should be tempered with mercy.

"I can see in my mind that if he pulls himself together during a stay in a lower institution, he will attempt to make restitution when he comes out."

Henry W. Walker, who was present as attorney for Douglas, did not have to plead, as Judge Gibbs followed Byrne's recommendation without further discussion.

Police Inspector Daniel L. Goode stated that Douglas was appointed guardian of the insane man June 10, 1931, receiving stocks, bonds and cash belonging to his ward.

On October 9, 1934, the probate court ordered an inventory submitted and Douglas failed to comply. He was removed as guardian November 8, 1934, disbarred last January and arrested in February. He did not defend himself against disbarment.

Douglas had been a member of the bar 30 years. His last act as lawyer was to make a plea to Governor Curley for Miller Frank Clark, slayer of Ethel Zuckerman. Clark was later executed.

1928 DEATH BOY IN SANITY TEST

North Andover, April 23—Commitment papers to lodge John B. Leckie, 17, in Danvers State Hospital for observation as a result of his alleged confession he killed his grandmother eight years ago, were obtained in court today by police.

In a surprise move, Chief Alfred McKee also obtained a warrant charging first degree murder. The boy's alleged crime was committed when he was only nine

Leckie, declared to have said he turned on gas jets in the room of his 85-year-old grandmother in November, 1928, because he feared he would be punished for petty thefts from her, was to be taken to Danvers today.

DEATH TAKES WHEEL, TOLL HITS 62

Death took the wheel again today to claim the 61st and 62d victims in Greater Boston! And this only since January 1.

AUTOS HAVE KILLED
IN GREATER BOSTON THIS YEAR

John J. Kane, 30, of Crescent street, Medford, died when he was hurled headlong from a car that smashed into an Elevated Railway upright in Roxbury.

Kane was taken to Boston City Hospital at 4 a. m. He died at 9 a. m. The crash occurred at Washington and Guild streets.

Following investigation by Sergt. Ray Monahan of police homicide squad, Edward Powers, 23, of Washington street, Roslindale, was arrested on a charge of manslaughter. Police said he told them he and Kane had spent the evening in Boston.

Struck by a hit-run car as she she was crossing in front of her home in Broadway, Everett, Mrs. Rebecca McNaughton, 73, died today at Whidden Memorial Hospital.

She was found by C. A. Cann of Grant street, Lynn, as he drove along Broadway.

Doctor Weds Social Aide In Secret

The marriage of Miss Phyllis Harrington, 26, of Newtonville, and Dr. Leo Alexander, 30, staff physician at the Boston City Hospital, was revealed today. The couple were married by Charles E. Worden, justice of the peace.

The romance had its beginning in the wards of the Boston City Hospital, where Dr. Alexander was physician and Miss Harrington a social worker.

Five days ago, during a lunch hour period, they slipped out of the hospital to City Hall and filed their intentions. Yesterday they repeated the trip and obtained the license.

From City Hall they proceeded to the office of Worden with Dr. Michael Payone of the hospital and Miss Elizabeth Harrington, the bride's sister, and were married.

The couple will leave on a honeymoon trip to St. Louis in a few days, their hospital duties making it necessary for them to remain here until the end of the month.

Wedding Rings Worth $600 Gone

Haverhill, April 23—When a young couple asked to see wedding rings, Mrs. Charles Stevens, clerk in the jewelry store of A. Ditmasso and Company, Merrimack street, found that a tray containing 63 of the rings, valued at about $600, was missing.

She recalled two young men who had been at the store earlier. One had been interested in table ware for his bride, he told her. His companion, Mrs. Stevens told police, apparently was interested in wedding rings.

Council Acts on New Librarian

The governor's council will have an opportunity next Wednesday to act on the appointment to the $5700 a year job of state librarian of Mrs. Margaret M. O'Riordan, vice-chairman of the Democratic state committee.

Governor Curley's choice, confirming a suggestion he sought from the United Democratic Women of Massachusetts, has been widely criticized on the grounds that Mrs. O'Riordan has never had library training.

To Present Play

On Tuesday evening, April 28, the Everett Y. P. C. U., will present it's annual play entitled "The Whispering Room," in the Universalist Church on Broadway, Everett. Leslie Carey, well known dramatic star, is directing.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking acids and wastes out of the blood. A healthy person should pass about 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, waste stays in the body and may become poisonous. It may start nagging backaches, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't let it lay you up.

Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills—used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills.

Missing German Envoy Found Alive

Cairo, Egypt, April 23 (AP)—The Reuter's and Havas News agencies reported today that Baron Eberhard von Stohrer, German minister to Egypt, had been found alive and in good health by planes searching near Baharia.

Baron von Stohrer was reported missing in the desert when he failed to return Saturday from Baharia, where he had gone to attend the royal automobile races.

Wait!

Duluth, Minn., April 23 (AP)—A four-foot Ceneral American boa, found in a bunch of bananas, was turned over to the Duluth Junior College. Students put it in a cage and gave it a mouse to eat. Instead, the mouse gobbled other tidbits placed in the cage and went to sleep cuddled in the snake's coils.

"The boa," said Teacher Marguerite Kitridge, "must have eaten recently. Wait until he gets hungry again."

Buddhists Ordain White Priestess

Tacoma, Wash., April 23 (AP)—Mrs. Sunya Pratt, mother of two children, today prepared to become the first white Buddhist priestess in the United States.

Ordination ceremonies under direction of Bishop Masuyama, head of the Buddhist temples of North America, was scheduled for tonight, with Tacoma's entire Japanese population and a few white Buddhists expected to attend.

LANDON WINS NEW BACKING

Los Angeles, April 23 (US)—Joseph V. Guilfoyle, managing director of the Southern California Retail Hardware Association and vice president of the Retail Trade Associations of California, today declared thousands of business men are of the firm conviction that the nomination and election of Governor Alf Landon as President would be marked by return of business confidence. He said:

"Governor Landon has set an example to the nation. A very large majority of the business men with whom I come in contact have been favorably impressed by that example. That is why I am convinced that California Republicans should support Governor Landon in the presidential primaries by voting for the delegates pledged to his nomination."

Guilfoyle said business men realize "governmental waste and extravagance have reached proportions that are stunning to the practical mind," and that Landon's able administration of the affairs of Kansas has served as an object lesson

4950 Repay HOLC Ahead of Time

Washington, April 23 (AP)—Although they had 15 years to repay loans from the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, 4950 borrowers today had met their obligations in full.

Loans entirely paid off, the corporation added, totaled $10,090,097.

POOR COAL FOUND DELIVERED AFTER FIN. COM. WARNING

After listening to testimony today that "fireproof" coal was delivered to a welfare recipient after the Finance Commission hearings on this matter began, Chairman E. Mark Sullivan of the commission declared city officials were guilty of gross indifference to their public duty.

Henry Woolf, an elderly man living on Freeport street, Dorchester, testified he received coal containing a large amount of dust and slate last Saturday.

He said he was still trying to find some means of burning "coal" received a month ago. John O'Neil, Finance Commission investigator, said the new delivery contained 50 per cent "fireproof" materials.

USED OWN MONEY

Other aged welfare recipients testified today to having to use their food money to buy store coal, having to stay in bed to keep warm and having to pay coal truck drivers 50 cents for deliveries.

A feature of today's session was the reading of letters from the Babcock Coal Company to the welfare department, answering complaints of persons who had to pay the drivers. The company in some instances contended these payments were voluntary "gratuities."

When Henry Woolf finished his story, Chairman Sullivan said:

URGES CHASTISEMENT

Joseph A. Scolponeti, a member of the commission, chimed in with:

"Similar chastisement should be aaccorded the city authorities who have made no effort to assist welfare recipients or recognize the rights of the taxpayers, who are paying for this so-called coal."

Chairman Sullivan said he agreed, adding:

"Up to April 15, before revelations concerning this coal were made, we could have excused city officials on the ground of lack of knowledge.

"But, having in mind that this delivery to Mr. Woolf was made April 18, I now call their attitude gross indifference to their public duty."

OFFERED NEW COAL

Woolf declared that man, claiming to represent the Babcock Coal Co., called at his house last night and again this morning, offering to take back the bad coal and supply good coal. Te witness said he could affor dto refuse, because City Councillor Robert G. Wilson, Jr., had supplied him with money for coal.

aPtrick Kiley, 78, of Maple street, Hyde Park, testified that one coal delivery was a month late and that he and his wife had to stay in bed to keep warm.

"Once they delivered nine bags instead of ten," he said. "My wife ran out and shouted to the driver, who said to his helper, Tell her to go to h——l, she signed a receipt for ten bags.'" iKley said he found a pint of water in one hodful of coal. It was so wet, he said, it caused the stove lining to crack. He bought store coal with food money.

WAITED 3 WEEKS

An aged Negro, Mrs. Annie Smith of Roxbury, entered the hearing room, leaning on a cane and the arm of a Finance Commission investigator. She said she had waited thre weeks for coal in the coldest part of the winter.

"Twice the truck drivers made me pay 50 cents before they'd carry the coal into my house," she said. "Three other times they just drove off, taking my coal with them, when they saw they'd have to carry it in."

It was brought out that the coal contracts required the companies to deliver the fuel wherever the recipients wanted, it, but it appeared from testimony that the drivers generally objected to carrying it upstairs.

READS LETTERS

Robert Robinson of the Finance Commission read letters written to the welfare department by the Babcock company, answering some of these complaints. The letters were brought to the hearing by Miss Margaret P. Quinn, supervisor of coal deliveries for the department.

Although she had expressed the belief yesterday that the various companies had reimbursed those who had to pay the delivery charges, she testified today that she had found the Babcock company reimbursed the recipients in only two or three cases.

The Babcock company wrote that in some instances the recipients had paid 50 cents or 75 cents to outsiders to carry their coal. One letter stated that the drivers had been instructed to place the fuel wherever requested, providd the requst was reasonable. Miss Quinn admitted that, under the contracts, every request should be considered reasonable.

OBJECTED TO CARRY

The drivers in many cases, it was indicated, wanted to dump the coal in the cellars and objected to carrying it up one, two or three flights of sairs, even though it was in bags.

One man had testified yesterday that he had to pawn his coat to get 50 cents to pay a driver.

A statement by Scolponeti that "the mayor and some of his department heads are on trial here with reference to treatment accorded welfare recipients with regard to coal deliveries" caused a heated clash.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph T. Brennan declared Scolponeti was going too far, because the Finance Commission had no authority to try anybody. Chairman Sullivan had to intervene to halt the crisp debate.

Rescued Bridal Fliers to Try Again

Ketchikan, Alaska, April 23 (AP)—Albert Almoslino and his bride, rescued after their honeymoon plane was wrecked, are determined to fly from Seattle to Alaska.

The couple left on the Seattle-bound steamer Victoria today. Amoslino said he was negotiating for another plane, in which they planned to fly north again.

2000 Anti-Nazis in Emden Dock Riot

Baltimore, April 23 (INS)—Anti-Nazi men and women, 2000 strong, held a protest meeting near the pier where the German cruiser Emden is berthed. They were dispersed by police when they marched to the pier and shouted uncomplimentary remarks to the German sailors.

CARLISLE DEATH QUIZ

Mystery in Passing of Boston Widow

New York, April 23—Glamorous Alexandra Carlisle, internationally-known actress who, when living in Boston, seconded the nomination of Calvin Coolidge for the vice-presidency at the 1920 convention, is dead here under unusual circumstances.

Miss Carlisle, the widow of J. Elliot Jenkins since 1934 when he shot himself in another apartment of her Chicago hotel, was found in her room at Hotel Astor by a house detective and a maid.

Beside her was a glass which presumably had contained grape juice. A doctor said she had died of heart trouble. But an autopsy has been ordered.

The English-born actress was found face up on the bathroom floor, clothed in a nightgown. She had been dead for about 24 hours.

Miss Carlisle, as she preferred to be known, returned to the New York stage after an absence of 10 years in 1932 and eight years of married life with Jenkins, a prominent radio engineer of Chicago.

She was divorced by her third husband, Dr. Albert Pfeiffer, dentist and official of the state department of health, of Boston, May 28, 1923, on a charge of desertion.

(As Mrs. Pfeiffer, the actress lived at 483 Beacon street, and later operated a model farm near Lexington. She was in charge of a Girl Scout unit formed to assist Americans at London during the World War and thereafter starred in many American productions.)

5 BANDITS GET LONGER TERMS

Five young desperadoes, whose plans for a jail dynamiting and a long series of robberies ended a year ago in arrest, received additional sentences in Norfolk superior court today after pleading guilty to the $500 holdup at the Godfrey Coal Company in Milton, February 6, 1935.

Joseph L. Rizzo, 25, of North Easton, serving 10 years in Concord for a Roxbury chain store holdup, was given a state prison sentence of 14 to 17½ years to supersede the reformatory term.

Richard A. Leland, 26, of Stoughton, was given a 7 to 10-year prison sentence to supersede a 10-year sentence he is serving in the reformatory.

Concurrent sentences were imposed by Judge Frederick W. Fosdick on the three others, all previously sentenced to prison. Alfred Wood, 26, of North Easton, serving five to eight years, was given five to eight years additional; James Stunkel, 25, of Arnold street, Quincy, already doing 10 to 15 years was given three to five additional; his brother, Richard Stunkel, 28, doing 15 to 20 years, was given three to five additional.

The gang armory of two shotguns and four revolvers was shown to the court. Nine sticks of dynamite also seized were to have been used by three of the gang to liberate Woods and Rizzo, caught first and confined in Dedham jail.

Services in Rome For Bishop Walsh

Rome, April 23 (INS)—Bishop Ralph Hayes, rector of the North American College here, officiated today at the funeral mass for Bishop James Anthony Walsh in St. Susanna's American Church.

Bishop Walsh, native of Cambridge, Mass., co-founder of the Catholic Foreign Missionary Society of America, was buried at Maryknoll, the society's headquarters in Ossining, N. Y., last week.

Home From Rites For Wife, Dies

Within a few hours after his wife's funeral, Arthur W. Phinney, 68, general superintendent of Raymond's, Inc., for 20 years, suffered a shock and died, it was learned today.

Mrs. Lua Phinney died on Monday and funeral services were held yesterday. Returning home in late afternoon, Phinney had begun preparations for dinner when he was stricken.

A son, Herbert W. Phinney, who had been planning a trip East to see his parents at 278 Eastern avenue, Lynn, was located today in Los Angeles and began the trip by plane. Funeral arrangements will be made on his arrival.

Removal Reasons

Reasons for seeking the removal of School Superintendent S. Munroe Graves are expected to be presented by the Wellesley school committee when it continues its meeting on the matter tonight.

Movie Amateur Tests Begin

This is the big day in Boston's first all-local movie, "It Happened in Boston," sponsored by the Boston American-Sunday Advertiser and Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters.

First light and voice tests will be held at Loew's State Theater building, 209 Massachusetts avenue, from 1 to 5 and from 7 to 9 p. m. Of course the casting and production will start tomorrow, as announced.

Due to the fact that hundreds of youths, (16 to 20-year-olds, are eligible) still are seeking tryouts, it was decided that application blanks will be given them if they apply personally today at Room 14, Loew's State Theater Building, between the hours specified above.

But the tests are for those who either have mailed in their entries or have had an interview with the casting director.

Leonard A. De Menna, the director, arrived in Boston late yesterday and will supervise the tests, aided by Max Allentuck, casting director.

Youngsters are needed for the picture, too. So tomorrow at 10 a. m., same room, Loew's State Theater Building, the director will cast 40 children between the ages of five and eight, inclusive.

Parents should remember that these ages, inclusively, are stipulated for the parts in a brief sequence of "It Happened in Boston."

They should bring their youngsters to the theater by 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Five of the 40 chosen will have speaking parts while the other little boys and girls will take part in the same action of the picture.

BUREAU SEES CRISIS NEAR IN RELIEF

Boston had been penalized by lack of direct cash relief from the federal government and unless there is a drastic reduction in welfare cases, plus more federal funds, there is a crisis imminent the Municipal Research Bureau reported today.

The pressimistic report of the bureau points out that one out of every four persons in this city was on local relief rolls or employed on federal projects the first months of this year.

But, the reports states, the 25 per cent reduction on federal relief rolls ordered generally in the country will be even greater in this area.

This will throw a greater burden on the city's finances. Since 1929 those on public relief have increased from 3 per cent to 24.8 per cent of the number of family heads.

56,000 CASES

The total number of Federal and municipal relief cases is about 56,000, it is stated. This represents families in a city where the population is about 780,000 and the average is five persons a family.

Since both Massachusetts and Boston have received fewer Federal funds in proportion to most other sections, the bureau declares greater efforts must be made to get U. S. grants.

It advises that "strenuous efforts are necessary to weed out undeserving cases" on welfare and relief rolls. It advises that those with the greatest need be transferred from city rolls to federal work relief rolls.

The bureau states that had not Boston borrowed during the past year, relief would have raised the tax rate to $43.10 a thousand. It concludes that a broad, long-term retrenchment program must be adopted to avoid a financial crisis.

BIG INCREASE

The "alarming" increase of relief cases, the bureau notes, is shown by the fact that while $15,462,000 of federal money was expended last year, there was a decline in municipal welfare costs of only $539,000.

Since Boston spent $10,098,910 for welfare and soldiers' relief in 1935, it is argued that a slash in federal relief rolls would throw an unbearable burden on the city. And this slash has been ordered.

Except for Buffalo, N. Y., Boston has received less federal aid, commensurately, than any other large city, the report states.

Jewish-Arab Riot Death Toll Now 21

Jerusalem, April 22 (INS)—Jewish-Arab rioting turned to incendiarism today when the railway station at Jaffa was damaged by fire and freight was destroyed.

The riot death toll is now placed at 16 Jews and five Arabs with more than 150 persons injured.

Vienna, April 23 (AP)—Recruiting of a Jewish legion, to fight Arabs if necessary in Palestine, was started today. In Vienna, 163 volunteers were accepted, and two battalions were planned.

Addis Ababa, April 23—Ethiopian troops blasted whole sections of the Dessye-Addis ababa road today in a supreme effort to stem the Italian advance as Ras Nasibu reported victory after a fierce three-day battle in the south.

Reports received at government headquarters said troops under the personal direction of Emperor Haile Selassie were continuing a major offense south of Dessye.

As an emergency measure in defense of the capital, the sections of the highway were being hurtled over almost perpendicular cliffs.

From the Ethiopian chieftain's headquarters at Daggah Bur, Ras Nasibu reported the Fascist army's drive in Ogaden province was brought to a standstill.

Copyright, 1936, the Associated Press

Rome, April 23—Italian airplanes are savagely assaulting Ethiopian trops on the Dessye-Addis Ababa road, Fascist dispatches reported today, to prevent Haile Selassie's warriors from destroying the highway.

Squadrons of plans surprised 2000 Ethiopians near Doba, about 110 kilometers (about 65 miles) south of Dessye, and bombed them with heavy losses.

'THE HOMICIDE AT HARVARD'

As Told by Ace Crime Reporters

Curious Janitor Uncovers Mystery Of Missing Doctor

This is the 79th in a series of true detective stories from New England police annals being presented daily by the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

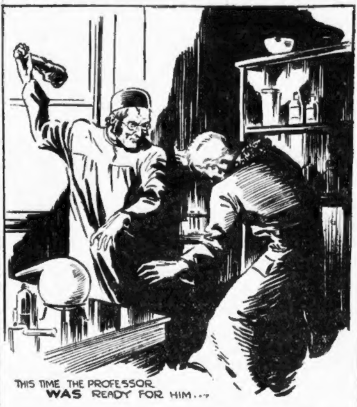
Fred Perkins, one of the ace reporters for the American and Sunday Advertiser, relates this gripping story of "The Homicide at Harvard."

By FRED PERKINS

If Ephraim Littlefield hadn't been janitor of the old Harvard Medical school, he might have been a newspaper reporter or a police detective.

For he possessed, in its fullest essence, the one quality which above all others fitted him for greatness in the devious business of crime investigation.

Debt Row Ends in Death



THIS TIME THE PROFESSOR WAS READY FOR HIM...

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

A row over debts brought death to wealthy Dr. George Parkman, 60, and sent to the gallows Professor Webster, a faculty associate at Harvard University in 1849. The curiosity of Janitor Ephraim Littlefield led to the discovery.

That quality was inquisitiveness!

A locked door, to Ephriam Littlefield, was a taunt, a defiance and a challenge.

His job as resident caretaker of the Harvard Harvard medical school building on North Grove street, West End, afforded Janitor Littlefield extensive opportunity for the gratifying of his layman's curiosity concerning the gruesome technique of dissecting room and pathological laboratory.

In the professional routines and the personal foibles of the medical school's faculty, Janitor Littlefield was also interested.

Thus it was that Ephraim Littlefield—as much as any man—felt himself confronted with grave personal responsibility when the Harvard medical school was involved, in 1849, in the seemingly inexplicable disappearance of wealthy Dr. George Parkman.

The problem of Dr. Parkman's fate, if dead, or whereabouts, if alive, was one which all New England was discussing, for the missing Boston philanthropist and eccentric had a background of social and civic prominence.

The Parkman family had long been distinguished in Massachusetts affairs, and George Parkman, a Harvard graduate, was a son of whom the university was proud. To him, also, the university owed its gratitude for substantial monetary gifts.

Dr. Parkman, who was 60 years old in 1849, had formed strong habits of punctuality and exactness in small matters, and it was, therefore, an occasion of immediate concern to his family when he did not appear at his Walnut street home at his usual dinner hour, on Friday, November 23.

He was still missing next morning, and, by that time, his friends and relatives were convinced that something serious was amiss.

$3000 Reward

Police were notified, newspaper headlines shouted the story and rewards, first of $1000, then of $3000 were offered!

During the early part of the week of November 25—which was Thanksgiving week, in 1849—Boston and Cambridge authorities dragged the Charles river and the harbor, combed the West End and Beacon Hill, followed supposed clues which led to half a dozen different states.

But Dr. Parkman remained missing. And the enigma of his disapearance might well have remained unsolved to this day, except for the inquisitiveness of Janitor Littlefield.

Littlefield had promptly turned his actual information, such as it was, over to the authorities.

"I saw Dr. Parkman Friday afternoon," he said. "That was about half past one o'clock, and Dr. Parkman was walking toward the medical school, stepping along brisk and spry, like he always did.

"I supposed probably it was Professor Webster Dr. Parkman was coming to see, because there was some business between the two of them.

"Out of Patience"

"As I understood it, Professor Webster was owing Dr. Parkman quite a lot of money, and Dr. Parkman was pretty well out of patience about it.

"Dr. Parkman had called Professor Webster earlier in the week, Wednesday or Thursday, I guess it was, and Dr. Parkman had said, 'I hope you'll be ready for me, tonight, Professor Webster.'

"I didn't hear Professor Webster's answer, but he must have said he wouldn't have the means of settling up, for Dr. Parkman sounded mighty vexed. 'Very well, professor,' he said, 'but something will have to be done about this by tomorrow.'

"Knowing all that, as I did, I took it for granted, when I saw Dr. Parkman, on Friday, that he was coming to try again to collect from Professor Webster.

"No, I didn't see Dr. Parkman actually come into the medical school. I just saw him approaching."

So far as money matters were concerned, Professor Webster's plight was no secret.

Born of a well-to-do family, he had been accustomed all his life, to a lavish scale of expenditures. Now, having exhausted the fortune left him by his father, he was finding his Harvard salary of $1200 a year sadly inadequate.

He had borrowed from many of his friends, including Dr. Parkman, and Dr. Parkman had finally underwritten all the overdue debts, hoping to liquidate them by persuading Professor Webster to pay them off in installments.

That arrangement, evidently, had led to embarrassments, but although Professor Webser might be a poor financial risk, he was not a type of man who could, conceivably, resort to criminal violence, police felt.

Opposite Professor Webster's name in the Harvard catalogue and in the "Who's Who" of that era was almost a two-inch paragraph of black type.

"John White Webster," the record ran. "Master of arts and doctor of medicines of Harvard University; member of Massachusetts Medical Society, American Academy of Arts and Sciences, London Geological Society and St. Petersburg Mineralogical Society; Irving professor of mineralogy and chemistry in Harvard Medical School."

Private Life

In private life, Professor Webster was a man of temperate habits and of impeccable associations. He had a beautiful and well appointed home in Cambridge, an accomplished and devoted wife. He was the father of three children. He was a close friend of the Rev. Francis Parkman, Dr. George Parkman's brother.

Decidedly, Professor Webster was not for a moment to be considered insofar as might concern any guilty knowledge of Dr. Parkman's disappearance.

Yet Professor Webster remained under unofficial surveillance. His every movement, word and gesture were being studied, except during such periods as he chose to seek the privacy of his laboratory or the sanctuary of his Cambridge mansion.

For Professor Webster had aroused the curiosity of Ephraim Littlefield—and curiosity was the trait which ruled the Harvard Medical janitor as love or jealousy or hate or passion for justice might rule other and more ordinary individuals!

At first, Janitor Littlefield could not have told you, had he tried, what it was that he sensed as abnormal about Professor Webster's behavior.

He had a feeling, however, that the professor was "acting funny, some way."

Of these "funny" actions, Littlefield was surer than ever, as day followed day, during the period immediately subsequent to Dr. Parkman's disappearance.

In the first place, the janitor noticed that Professor Webster began to work longer hours than usual in his private laboratory in the medical school basement.

Furthermore, the laboratory was always locked now, when the professor was absent.

Janitor Littlefield went so far as to volunteer to give the laboratory a cleaning and build a fire in the stove for Professor Webster, services that the professor was accustomed to request—often in vain!

But Professor Webster was ungrateful now. He put Littlefield off. He muttered about "important experiments." He had an absent-minded air.

Curiosity Fanned

All this fanned the flames of Janitor Littlefield's burning inquisitiveness. And Littlefield recalled, come to think of them, certain incidents of the past.

He remembered Professor Webster having asked him about keys to the dissecting room, about the condition of the vaults in which cadavers were kept for use in anatomy classes.

He remembered Professor Webster having requisitioned a quart of blood for experimental purposes in the lecture room. There'd been a shortage of blood in the medical school storeroom at the time, and the professor hadn't been able to obtain it.

What the devil had he wanted it for, anyhow, Littlefield asked himself. Webster was professor of chemistry and mineralogy, not of anatomy or of surgery.

And what were these mysterious experiments the professor was continually making in his locked and bolted laboratory?

When Littlefield had offered to build up the fires for him, Professor Webster wouldn't hear of it. He had said that he had a lot of delicate material about, and heat might spoil it.

Yet in the laboratory's metallurgical furnace, day after day, the professor was kindling roaring conflagrations. Janitor Littlefield could feel the warmth of them through the brick partition separating the laboratory from an adjacent passageway.

It was all very puzzling. Another man in Littlefield's place might have shrugged his shoulders, gone about his business.

But he was still determined to solve this mystery which was tantalizing him. It wasn't the mystery of Dr. Parkman's disappearance with which he was concerned, it must be understood. It was the mystery of Professor Webster's "funny" actions.

Not even in Janitor Littlefield's fevered imagination was there any notion that Dr. Parkman, dead or alive, was in that laboratory.

That possibility had been apparently been dismissed, once for all, on Tuesday, November 27, when Boston police, accompanied by a member of the medical school faculty, had knocked on Professor Webster's door, had obtained instant admission and had spent half an hour in a courteous but thorough search of the laboratory's interior.

Nothing of a suspicious nature had been found, of course. Nor was Janitor Littlefield, himself, able to find anything out of the way in the laboratory, when he finally did gain access to the closed room by a window, into which he clambered from outside the building at the risk of his neck.

While he was within the laboratory, Littlefield examined Professor Webster's furnace, looked into the heating stove, scrutinized the two sinks—and almost suffocated himself by sticking his nose into two huge hogsheads filled with chemicals. He even sounded the contents of these with a broom handle, discovering nothing of a solid nature.

In the back of Littlefield's mind, all this time, had been growing the idea that Dr. Parkman might have met with some violence in this laboratory, thereafter being spirited away.

Littlefield was looking for blood, for some article of Dr. Parkman's clothing, for some evidence of whatever role Professor Webster might have played in the mystery.

His quest was still utterly unsuccessful. He did discover, however, on the stairs outside the laboratory, several queer-looking spots. To one of these he applied his moistened forefinger, then touched the finger to his tongue.

The taste was strongly acid.

As Janitor Littlefield thought over his investigations, at leisure, he recalled one spot in Professor Webster's laboratory which had escaped his appraising eye. That was the professor's private lavatory, located in an alcove, the door of which had been locked.

Under the lavatory, as Littlefield's familiarity with the building instantly assured him, there was a septic tank or vault extending down into the school's foundations.

This vault took the place of an ordinary drain or sewer. Its contents purified themselves, at least in theory, by seepage into the Charles river and by intermingling with salt brine which seeped back into the vault at high tide.

If there were anything which Professor Webster might wish to conceal, what better place than this vault, Janitor Littlefield asked himself.

Determined at any cost to satisfy his curiosity, which was now tormenting him more than ever, Littlefield made his mind up to have a look into the vault, itself.

To obtain this look, without Professor Webster's knowledge, only one course was open to the janitor.

That was to break through the masonry.

Not Ephraim Littlefield.

For two days and two nights he toiled.

He allowed himself only a single relaxation, attendance at a dance given Thanksgiving night by the Shakespearean Division of the Massachusetts Sons of Temperance.

From that party he came home to his medical school quarters at 4 a. m. Friday—and went to work again on the brick wall of the vault under Professor Webster's lavatory!

Soon after 9 a. m., his efforts were rewarded. His crowbar penetrated the vault's black interior. A few moments later Janitor Littlefield had made a hole large enough to admit his head and shoulders and a lantern.

The sight which greeted his eyes sent him shaking, in tears and near collapse, to his wife.

"There's a dead body in that vault," he gasped. "Or, at least, there's a part of one. I saw a leg floating in the pool—and I think I saw the lower half of a torso!"

Mrs. Littlefield was a woman of action, in the emergency. She promptly called a member of the Medical school faculty. He called the police.

A squad of officers arrived, headed by City Marshal Francis Tukey. With them, police brought Drs. Charles T. Jenkins, George H. Gay, Winslow Lewis, Jr., and James W. Stearns.

Before noon of that day, the gruesome remains had been recovered from the vault, and, in Professor Webster's laboratory, a human thigh and the upper part of a man's torso had been discovered in a tea chest, packed under a layer of tanbark.

It was those teeth, alone, which led to the positive identification of the remains as parts of the body of Dr. Parkman.

The dead man's head, shoulders, arms, feet, and one lower leg were never found. It was the assumption of the government that Professor Webster, using chemicals and his furnace, had destroyed this much of his victim's corpse—and would have destroyed the rest, leaving utterly no trace of the crime, had it not been for Janitor Littlefield's amply justified curiosity.

Bloodstains on the floor had been removed with acid—the acid Janitor Littlefield had tasted when he tested the spots on the stairs.

Professor Webster, taken by police from his home to the Boston city jail "for questioning," made damaging admissions then attempted suicide, swallowing a poison tablet.

He recovered, however, to go on trial for murder, before a jury and a distinguished panel of four justices, headed by Judge Lemuel Shaw.

Star witnesses were Dentist Nathan C. Keep, who identified Dr. Parkman's teeth, and Ephraim Littlefield, who told the story of his curiosity—and its services to the cause of justice!

Professor Webster was found guilty, was sentenced to be hanged, signed an eventual confession, then went with fortitude to his death on the scaffold.

Tomorrow in the Boston Evening American the true detective series will continue with "Death Comes Laughing," by Henry L. Daily.

Benny on Met Bill Friday

Cary Grant

"Big Brown Eyes" is adapted from an original story by James Grant. It is a combination of mystery, comedy and romance dealing with the recent jewel reward racket in New York. Joan Bennett has the role of a manicurist who helps to capture the ruthless gang of jewel thieves.

Cary Grant is seen in this film as the detective sweetheart of the blonde manicurist, assigned to bring in the unscrupulous racketeers. They join forces in an attempt to break up the jewel-thieving ring and thrilling sequences follow. Walter Pidgeon, Isabell Jewell and Lloyd Nolan top the cast in support of the stars of this production.

Jack Benny has prepared a sparkling and humorous program for the Metropolitan patrons. Mary Livingston (Mrs. Benny in private life) will quote some of her latest poetry on her husband's bill and Kenny Baker will be on hand with his glorious vocal accomplishments. Others in the Benny revue besides the Chicken Sisters, will be the Stuart Morgan Dancers and the death-defying Liazeed Troupe.

'Sings a Song'

Morton Downey, for years one of radio's song stars, will be in Boston on Saturday for opening of his engagement at Levaggi's Flamingo Room.

Downey for Levaggi's

Morton Downey, silver-toned radio star, will follow Ben Bernie, the ole maestro, into Levaggi's Flamingo Room on Saturday evening.

With the famous tenor as star of the Flamingo Room, Dick Stabile's orchestra, one of the newest favorite dance orchestras, will provide music for dancing. Stabile has most recently been one of the stars of the Ben Bernie band.

Donat Film

Robert Donat in "The Ghost Goes West," and "We're Only Human" with Preston Foster, Jane Wyatt and James Gleason are the attractions scheduled for the New Gayety, beginning Sunday.

The current program includes "I Dream Too Much," the Lily Pons picture, and "Too Tough to Kill," with Victor Jory.

'Petticoat Fever' at Loew's

"Petticoat Fever," Robert Montgomery's and Myrna Loy's first co-starring picture since "When Ladies Meet" and "Hell-Ship Morgan" are the two first-run pictures which will be shown at the Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters, starting tomorrow.

Myrna Loy

Adapted from the stage success of the same name, "Petticoat Fever" has a wireless operator in a remote Labrador station for its hero. He has not seen a white woman for a year and when an airplane lands near his lonely tower containing a most attractive woman and her unattractive fiance, interesting complications result.

Reginald Owen, one of our most competent and humorous character actors, has the role of the fiance to whom Myrna Loy, as Montgomery's crush in the far North, is engaged. Others in the cast are William Stack, Otto Stack, Otto Yamoaka, Iris Yamoaka and Bo Ching.

"Hell-Ship Morgan," with Ann Sothern and George Bancroft, is an exciting melodrama of the sea filmed almost entirely aboard a tune clipper sailing the treacherous waters off the coast of Mexico.

At the Olympia

Publicity Charged in Bartholomew Suit

Los Angeles, April 23 (US)—Marked by amazing developments, including the charge by Freddie Bartholomew's grandmother that the boy star's mother's attempt to oust his aunt as his guardian was a publicity stunt, a court hearing resulted in a smashing victory for the aunt, Miss Myllicent Bartholomew.

Superior Judge Harry R. Archbaid denied the petition of the mother, Mrs. Lillian May Bartholomew, as'ing that Miss Bartholomew's letters of gaurdianship, granted last October, be set aside.

In support of the aunt, the 12-year-old cinema actor's grandmother, Mrs. Frederick Robert Bartholomew, filed an affidavit asserting that all actions and statements of the mother in connection with the guardianship fight have been "dictated for the purpose of exploitation and publicity."

Just prior to the hearing, Judge Archbald was informed, in a cablegram from London, that Freddie's father, Cecil L. Bartholomew, repudiated authorization he had previously given his wife to press the fight against his sister, revoked her power of attorney to act for him, and that Bartholomew is coming here at once.

LOUELLA PARSONS—NEW FILMS—DRAMA NOTES

Stanwyck-Marshall In RKO Feature

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service.

Los Angeles, April 23—Barbara Stanwyck, who has blossomed out like no other Hollywood actress within the last year, has Herbert Marshall as her co-starring partner in "Behold the Bridegroom," the George Kelly play.

Louella O. Parsons

Barbara looks so much smarter and is so much happier that you wouldn't recognize her as the same troubled girl who was too harassed to give her best work to the screen.

Not only is RKO, to whom she is under contract, handing her some of its best plays, but all the companies are trying to borrow her. Sam Briskin has great plans for Barbara and "Behold the Bridegroom," which was a successful New York stage play, is the first of these coming events.

• • •

The rotund and witty Archie Mayo, who made so many friends in New York that what he said or didn't say became news, is back in Hollywood all pepped up over the official word that he is to direct "Sweet Aloes," the successful stage play which ran in London for so long with Diana Wynyard as the star. Warner Brothers paid a fancy price for this much discussed play and now the important job is to find an actress to play Miss Wynyard's role. Claudette Colbert owes Jack Warner a picture, so how about Claudette?

• • •

Paramount can stop worrying now over Emanuel Cohen and guessing which one of their stars will go with him next. They have him tied up on a contract for eight pictures a year which means that Gary Cooper, Bing Crosby and the rest of the high powered Paramount stars who agreed to make one picture for Cohen at Columbia, will stay right on the home lot. A very smart bit of business on the part of John Otterson.

• • •

Chatter in Hollywood: A cable from Douglas Fairbanks gives April 23 as his sailing date. He remains only a few days in New York, coming directly to Hollywood with his bride. He will have to work fast to get a leading man for "Marco Polo," if he takes up his reservation on the Clipper, leaving here May 17.

Raoul Walsh and Mrs. Fairbanks will make the trip with him, going straight to China from Honolulu to get exteriors. That means that Raoul will have to work fast, too, because he's now in the midst of directing "Spendthrift" for Walter Wanger.

• • •

England is choosing the Orient as the locale for many of its pictures, according to Chuck Reisner who has just written me a grand newsy letter. Chuck says that Alice White will go to Ceylon to play the lead in a picture to be produced for the Ward Wing Productions. He also says that Monta Bell has left for India to produce "Elephant Boy" for Alexander Korda. Ward Wing, brother-in-law of Theda Bara, used to be a gag man and later a test man at MGM, but he had to go to England to win recognition.

Snapshots of Hollywood

RUTH CHATTERTON flew back to Hollywood bringing with her LELAND HEYWARD; LELAND, whose injuries in his airplane crackup were only trivial, is completely well again; RUTH starts a picture at 20th Century-Fox this week; MARY GARDEN visiting JEAN HARLOW and meeting her for the first time; JEAN admitting it was a real thrill; HEATHER ANGEL, exercising, of all things, to get her weight up to a hundred pounds.

The TALMADGE girls, NORMA, CONSTANCE and NATALIE, getting together for a beef stew which NATALIE cooked with her own fair hands; ANN SOTHERN forgetting ROGER PRYOR, at least for a few days, in favor of NORMAN KRASNA, boy playwright. That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

"Jack Benny Talking—"

Once again Boston theater fans will greet one of its favorites when Jack Benny, radio's leading entertainer, drops into town tomorrow for a week of personal appearances at the Metropolitan. Yes, of course, Mary Livingston is coming along and she had written some special poetry for her Boston public. And Kenny Baker will be on hand to do the vocalizing.

Powell Detective in Latest Film

Keith's Memorial Theater will have "The Ex-Mrs. Bradford," co-starring William Powell and Jean Arthur, as its next film attraction.

Jean Arthur

In "The Ex-Mrs. Bradford," Powell does some detective work trying to solve the murder of a jockey who is stricken while riding a favorite. As in "The Thin Man," the actor does his sleuthing with a light and humorous touch.

Jean Arthur is said to handle her romantic role opposite Powell in much the gay and prank-playing style which Myrna Loy used in "The Thin Man."

James Edward Grant, author of "Whipsaw," "Muss 'Em Up" and the column, "It's a Racket," which appeared in many newspapers, penned the film's story.

Eric Blore, in the part of a butler; James Gleason, as a police investigator; Erin Obrien Moore, Ralph Morgan, Lucille Gleason, Lila Lee, Frankie Darro and many other prominent players are in the cast of "The Ex-Mrs. Bradford."

Air Film at Scollay

One of the best of the aviation pictures, "13 Hours by Air," will be shown at the Scollay tomorrow, and "Road Gang," a dramatic story of a convict camp, will be the co-feature for the ensuing week.

Fred MacMurray, Joan Benett, Zasu Pitts and John Howard are headlined in "13 Hours by Air." Donald Woods has the leading role in "Road Gang."

Aviation Film Heroine

Joan Bennett in "13 Hours by Air" will appear on two Boston screens the coming week. The film will have its first showings at the Scollay on Friday, and on Saturday it opens at the Modern.

A. & P. CHIEFS HOLD DANCE

Members of the South Side Branch Managers Benefit Association of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company held their 15th annual dinner dance at the Hotel Bradford.

They were lauded for their loyalty to their employers by J. J. Byrnes, president of the New England branch of the company.

Other branch officials present included J. S. K. Hunt, general superintendent; Edmund J. McCarthy, secretary; J. W. Kelly, treasurer; J. W. Murphy, director of operations; Christian Neuman, director of sales, and Franklin Smith, personnel director.

Frank J. Staffler served as toastmaster. Arrangements for the affair were made by a committee headed by George F. Lynch.

Gangsters Beware! 175 New 'G-Men'

Washington, April 23 (US)—Bowling over its appropriations committee, the Senate voted $6,025,000 to operate the Justice Department bureau of investigation during the next fiscal year, including employment of 175 new "G-men."

The House had voted that amount, but at the behest of Senator McKellar (D) of Tennessee, the Senate committee slashed it to $5,800,000, which would have made it impossible to employ the additional agents to fight crime.

CHAPTER 28

"TO the Spearhead Inn, please. It's the Spring opening or something. It'll be nice and cool there, anyway."

He tucked Luana into his long, low-slung machine as though she were a bit of Dresden china, and might break. He was a past master at "attention." He tucked her silver brocade wrap about her shoulders, drew a fur robe to her knees, and set upon them a big white cardboard box from the florist's.

"What are they, 'Handsome'?"

She said, smiling her thanks: "My gown's orchid."

He pressed the starter of the car, let in the clutch, and they shot up the Avenue to Central Park.

The lights of the great skyscrapers blinked starrily at them as they sped through the trees. The soft airs of Spring fanned her cheeks and blew back a feathery little curl or two. "Handsome" fitted his big back lower in the seat so that his shoulder came close against Luana's as he drove.

"A night for love, Luana. You and the moon, and the night—"

"How unoriginal, 'Handsome'!"

They sped across the Park to West 72nd street, and over to the Hudson River. Cars were streaming up the Drive. To the left of them, ships rode at anchor, fascinating in the dusk, and lights gleamed across the water from the Palisades on the Jersey side.

He didn't have to think of money. He exuded money. How pleasant it must be to be able to buy almost anything one fancied! This long, low-slung car with its chromium fittings and silver gadgets was symbolic of the man.

He had been well nicknamed "Handsome," though to her mind his face was not nearly so attractive as Jimmy Randolph's.

Where Jimmy was clean-cut, there was a certain hint of puffiness in Handsome's good looks. He was groomed to the last degree, it's true, but already there was a slight sagging under the chin that was too full, and signs of dissipation around his sleepy black eyes.

To some girls, this evidence of too gay a life might have been attractive but, after her experience with Gerald Bruton, it put Luana on her guard.

"Beware the fleshpots of Egypt!" she said to herself, half humorously, half serious.

But there was no reason why she shouldn't tonight luxuriate in "Handsome's" car, and orchids, and the good time he was willing and anxious to supply.

"Penny for your thoughts, Handsome'?" she said aloud.

Probably he's never done a hard day's manual work in his life, she thought now. But she didn't withdraw her own hand. Experiment a little!

"I was thinking that a girl as beautiful as you, Luana, should never have to work at all."

"Is that so?" she rejoined perkily. "And what would I use for money?"

"Money?" said "Handsome" half contemptuously, and Luana knew he was posing, because the whole of his life would have been changed had he not been the spoiled son of a millionaire banker. "As though money matters, Luana, when a girl's as—as desirable and beautiful as you are, my dear child!"

"I've read that in fairy stories, 'Handsome,' but life's quite otherwise when it comes down to hard tacks."

He turned to look at her. In the light from the river and a passing street lamp, his black eyes smouldered like two coals. "It could be arranged so easily," he said meaningly, then wondered if he had gone too far with this cool, contained young beauty so early in the evening.

Luana stared straight ahead.

Was she offended?

Her mouth that was like a bright flower in the translucent pallor of her small, heart-shaped face had tightened ominously. She kept silent.

Wait till they get to the Inn, and they had champagne, and it had worked on her a little.

"Handsome" had a predilection for champagne, because he seldom made an ass of himself on the bubbling liquid, as with hard liquor, and where the opposite sex was concerned it freed the emotions and loosened the tongue insidiously, and a chap knew where he was, and how far he could go, with safety.

The car purred smoothly on to Yonkers and shortly they drew in at the Inn's big stone gates.

"Run into the ladies' room and put on the orchids and we'll make the grand entrance into the gardens," he bid her, deciding he would have a "quick one" while she was gone, so as to get into the spirit of the evening, literally and metaphorically, for Luana's coolness had set him back a little.

She was gone for almost 15 minutes.

Several acquaintances greeted him and asked him to join their parties, for "Handsome" was popular, just as any good-looking and generous young fellow with lots of easy money behind him is.

"No, I'm duetting this evening." He declined the invitations as he finished his drink, and waited for Luana, who was doubtless painting the lily, which was a tactical mistake, for he liked that pallor of hers with a faint shell-pink behind it that looked as though it came from Nature, and not from the rouge-pot, as with almost every other damsel who overdid the make-up.

Luana came down the stairs. She had left her wrap behind her in the cloakroom, and the orchid gown, that was well-named "the love potion," clung to the lissom lines of her lovely figure and sprayed about her silver-shod feet like sea foam.

"Handsome" put down his glass, and drew a long breath as he rose. She was prettier than ever he had imagined. The gown was indeed a revelation. She walked proudly, like a young Diana. His orchids curled from a pink ear to cascade far down her shoulder almost to the waistline of her gown. Under her smooth, honey-colored hair her face was a pure oval.

They went out to the gardens where there were lots of diners.

The orchestra had stopped playing and, as they walked past the colored fountains, the changing lights illuminated them as though they were on a stage, so that heads were turned in their direction. Following a sudden silence at the innumerable small tables, there was a buzz of comment.

This gratified "Handsome," being a tribute to himself and to his choice.

Presently they were eating dinner, with champagne set in a silver bucket of ice on the floor beside them.

A woman in black at a nearby table who wore magnificent jewelry, bowed graciously to "Handsome." Her diamonds sparkled like icicles from the lobes of her ears and on her wrists, and there was a great "sunburst" of them in the bodice of her dress.

Luana murmured: "They must have cost a king's ransom!"

"Handsome" asked quickly: "You like jewels, Luana?"

Sleeve And Yoke In One

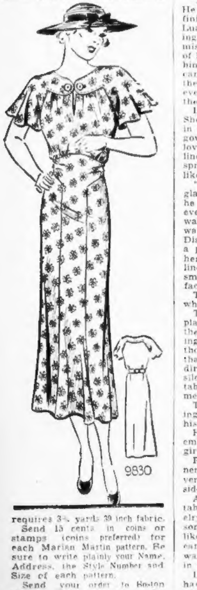
MARIAN MARTIN PATTERN 9830

If you want something in the afternoon "line" which combines a demure effect with a dash of spice, you'll find it in this adorable young Marian Martin frock.

Yoke and sleeve in one make it simple to cut, and variety may be achieved by either flaring the sleeve or gathering it into a pretty puff.

You will like the "uplift" line of the waist yoke and the half-belt which fastens in the back. Select a gayly sprigged cotton, or voile.

Pattern 9830 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards 39 inch fabric.



Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address, the Style Number and Size of each pattern.

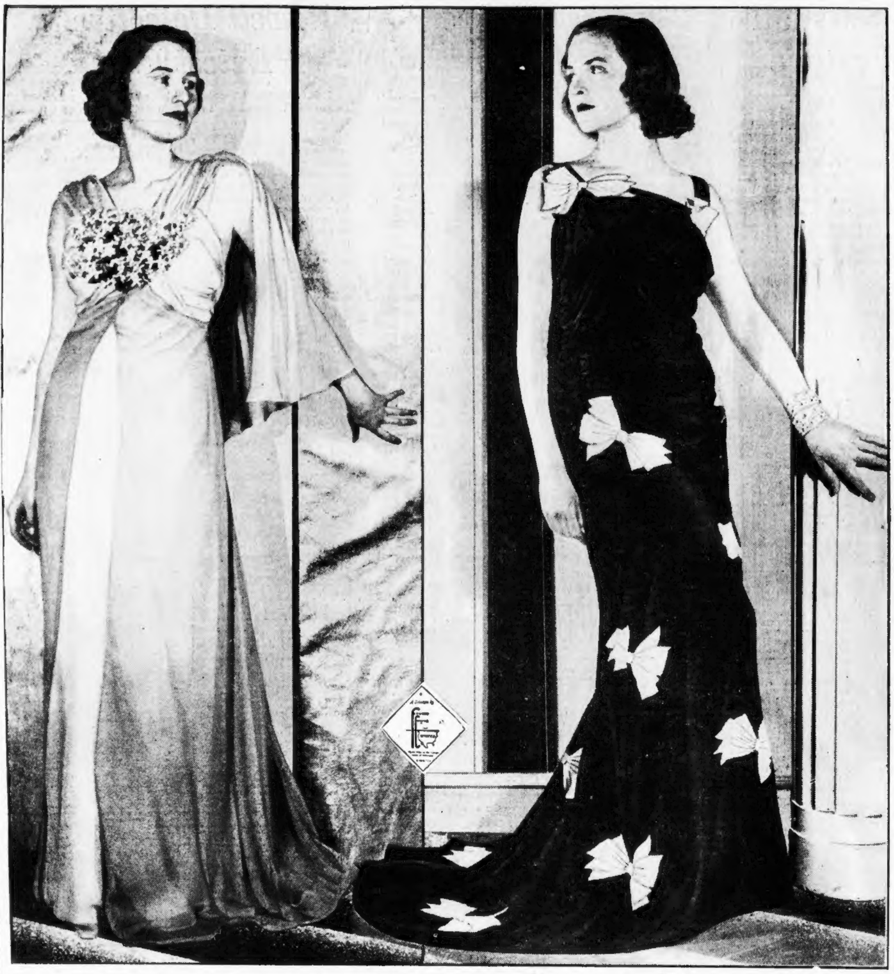
Lilac Gown and Bow-Dress Entrance Congress



WHEN YOU come across a fragrance that makes everyone sharply aware of you . . . that makes him ask . . . "What's the name of that scent?" don't let it go with a dab on ear lobes and at the pulse in your wrist. Dress up to it!

One of the easiest glamour-tricks in the world, and the most effective—this delineation of perfume through fashion—intrigued the Fashion Congress jury this week at the Ritz. Above are two gowns that poetically spelled two lovely and famous fragrances, each one far apart in type, but dramatic and effective! Both were tagged by the jurors.

Miss Polly Gardiner, left, symbolizes in grey chiffon and lilacs a true, dew-fresh lilac perfume, so like the English flowers that it was named for British royalty. Pale grey chiffon is draped in exquisite Empire lines with an entirely new and interesting manipulation of chiffon in a deep back decolletage with wing scarves floating to the waistline. Darker grey chiffon in an open overskirt deepens like twilight sky, the tull, soft flare giving the hem the deepest color. Rosy shades of new-blossomed lilacs are miraculously caught in the sprays on the bodice.

Miss Nancy Wellington, right, models Molyneux's bow-dress . . . black and white . . . on siren lines that strike suddenly and electrically . . . because it is such a rare, breath-taking thing in a season of naive fashions. Fittingly, it "expresses" a perfume named for one of the most fascinating women in Greek mythology . . . the seeress Cassandra. Black crepe is shirred cleverly, yielding draped lines that indicate a fitted waistline which, in back, turns into a slanting line, repeated again in the slant of the decolletage and in the side-swing of the train. The white bows which give the gown its name are appliqued with tiny black stitches. For shopping information, phone Annice Brink, Liberty 4000.

Universal Appeal of Chocolate Desserts

By MARTHA LEE

There are new chocolate recipes, including many world famous ones, in the cook book that has just come to our desk. And who can resist rich, delicious cakes, pies, cookies, and desserts made with chocolate? They have a universal appeal.

The very successful hostess knows this and plays up chocolate in gorgeous looking dishes on her table. Do the same thing with everyday meals. Make them "special" by serving this chocolate caramel custard, or chocolate upside down cake.

CHOCOLATE UPSIDE DOWN CAKE

1 cup sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
2-3 cup sugar
¼ cup softened butter
1 egg, well beaten
6 tablespoons milk
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 square unsweetened chocolate, melted
3 tablespoons butter
½ cup sugar
2 cups sliced canned peaches.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and sugar, and sift together three times. Add butter. Combine egg, milk, and vanilla; add to flour mixture, stirring until all flour is dampened. Add chocolate and blend; then beat vigorously 1 minute.

Melt 3 tablespoons butter in 8x8x2-inch or deep 9-inch round pan; add sugar and cook and stir until thoroughly mixed. On this arrange peaches. Turn batter out on contents of pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 50 minutes, or until done. Loosen cake from sides of pan with spatula. Turn upside down on dish with peaches on top. Serve warm with plain or whipped cream. Canned apricots, pears, or pineapple, or bananas may be substituted for peaches.

CHOCOLATE CARAMEL CUSTARD

½ cup sugar
1-3 cup water
1 square unsweetened chocolate
2 cups milk
2 eggs, slightly beaten
¼ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla

Melt sugar in a small, heavy skillet over moderate heat; continue heating until a smooth, light brown syrup is formed, stirring constantly. Remove from fire and add water; then cook until caramel is dissolved. Place 1½ tablespoon syrup in each cup.

Add chocolate to milk and heat in double boiler. When chocolate is melted, beat with rotary egg beater until blended. Combine eggs, sugar and salt; add chocolate mixture gradually, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Add vanilla and pour into prepared custard cups. Place in pan of hot water; bake in slow oven (325 deg. F.) 60 minutes, or until knife inserted comes out clean. (Water in pan should not boil). Unmold on serving dishes. Custard should hold its shape while syrup spreads over and around it. Serve warm or chilled. Serves 6. For variety in flavor, apricot or peach jam, or orange marmalade may be substituted for caramel syrup in this recipe; use 1 tablespoon jam for each custard.

Rehearsal

Moose River, N. S., April 23—When rescue of the two men trapped in the gold mine appeared imminent, experiments were carried on at the surface to assure speed in bringing them to safety.

One of the miners who had risked his life helping in the rescue work, acted as a dummy, being strapped to a stretcher as it was planned to do with the two entombed men.

St. Augustine's Plans Reunion

The annual reunion of St. Augustine's parish will be held Monday evening, April 27, 1936, in the Hotel Statler.

The reunion this year has a double significance; it marks the second anniversary of the Rev. Neil A. Cronin, pastor of St. Augustine's Church returning o the parish where he spent his boyhood, also the 68th anniversary of the founding of St. Augustine's parish.

A special reception is planned to old parishioners, and a grand march will be led by Mr. and Mrs. John F. Montgomery.

Mrs. John F. Montgomery is chairman of the general committee of which Miss Pauline Quinn is secretary.

The reception committee has as its head District Attorney Honorable William J. Foley, Mrs. Peter Hines is chairman of the executive committee, Mr. Joseph F. Trahey is chief of aids. Miss Mary A. Daley is chairman of the booster committee.

CHAPTER 631

MY father turned from the telephone briskly as he told the state troopers that we would have everything ready for them when they sent their men down in an endeavor to entrap the gangsters.

"Ronald! Bob!" he said. "Take these telephones, and don't let anybody use them unless I permit the call. Keep everybody a respectful distance away from the cords.

"Higby, get Johnson and cut out to the bungalow if the gangsters haven't already appeared. Dig yourselves in there, bar your doors and windows, and make sure that your weapons are in good order. You may have to prove your sharpshooting ability. You will, if a car comes down from the woodland, and men try to rush the house. Don't hesitate Blot them out."

"Very good, sir," Higby said respectfully, and relinquished his seat to Ronald.

"Richard!" my father said next, and Dickey answered, "Sir?" as if he had been a school boy speaking to a master.

"Take one of the operatives upstairs and station him on guard to see that your mother, the children, Mrs. Braithwaite and Miss Fairfax keep inside their rooms and away from the windows.

"The rest, of course, must be down here for the box opening, but the library is the safest place, with only one side having windows, and those heavily barred and shuttered. Come back here as soon as you have stationed the man and we'll plan the campaign. Who's watching from the kitchen windows?"

"Jim and Katie," Lillian responded promptly.

"Well: we shall have ample notice of an approach from that side," he said dryly. "And will you be so kind as to call Hugh for me?"

"Oke," Lillian replied briefly, and hurried to the library, returning in a minute, followed by Hugh just as Avis Arlen, accoutered to the last weapon of artistic—or inartistic make-up, depending upon the viewpoint—minced into the living room, and seeing Hugh, rushed up to him.

"Oh! Hugh!" she exclaimed. "I didn't see you, and I was so afraid you might have had a relapse. Come over here and tell Avis you are all right."

"Young woman!" he said in his most majestic manner. "You are interrupting a life and death conference. Please go to the other side of the room and sit down, and do not speak again unless I give you permission."

"Who'll be caught between two fires?" Samuel Brixton blustered, coming into the room from the hall, and evidently hearing only the last of my father's speech.

My father gave him a look which had quelled many a bolder spirit than his, and Brixton had the grace to look ashamed of his crassness.

"Didn't mean to offend, I'm sure," he muttered. "But there's so much mystery around here that I'm fairly cuckoo."

"There's no mystery," my father said coldly. "We have just received word that a band of gangsters, evidently in search of the lock box, is stationed in the wood road back of the farmhouse and may be here any minute. We are making plans to trap them, as the three others now bound in the cellar were trapped."

"What rot!" Brixton finally found voice to say. "Gangsters besieging the farm house. That's a good one. Besides, if they were looking for the box, they'd go to the bank. Nobody has gone after it yet."

"Are you sure of that?" Lillian queried softly. "Ronald, take your bow."

"Last night," Lillian said clearly, "Ronald, Bob, Mrs. Graham and I went to the bank and brought back the box. It is now in the library. We were chased by gangsters posing as policemen, and in the skirmish, Ronald's head was grazed by a bullet. It did him no harm whatever, but a fraction of an inch lower, and he would have given up his life."

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Remain a Mystery to Each Other—Secret of Happy, Successful Marriage

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"Somebody's courting somebody,
"Somewhere or other tonight;
"Somebody's whispering to somebody,
"Somebody's listening to somebody,
"Under the clear moonlight."

Here's a poem centuries old. It has been translated into every language. Our great-grandparents knew it and loved it. And yet it is as real today as it was ages ago when an unknown boy paused by an unknown river to put into words these thoughts that will live forever.

"Under the clear moonlight"—there is something about the moon and its silver beams that makes love stand out as the wondrously beautiful thing it is. Science may doubt it or seek to question it. But those who have found romance will be content to accept it, neither reasoning how nor wondering why.

"Under the clear moonlight"—if every girl and boy who marry could so live that every day of their lives would be as clean and fine as the hour that brought them together and made them one, there would be no divorces, no tears, no broken hearts

Unfortunately, too many men and women insist on dragging their love out into the burning noonday sun—there to let it roast until every flaw of character is magnified and all the beauty destroyed

The moon is mystery. Its face is ever toward us. We gaze upon it a million times. And always there is something new to see, something to stir the imagination

I encourage all girls and boys who plan to marry to take a lesson from the moon, to keep alive the mystery that made each attractive in the other's eyes, and to so grow in mind from day to day that neither will ever become boresome or commonplace

Those who learn that lesson will never know divorce. Only they who foolishly allow their marriages to slip too far into the matter-of-fact need fear failure.

My first letter today is from Miss J. L., a little Worcester girl, who writes

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am a schoolteacher, but never got the opportunity to do much teaching. My first job was in a rural community where conditions were so primitive and the children so rude that I resigned in three months.

My second position was no better, and, after doing my best to succeed, I gave it up after the first term

Now, after six months of unemployment, I have two opportunities—one, a job in an office and the other, marriage to a man whom I've known for about a year

Frankly, I am not in love. But I shall endeavor to be a good wife. Is that possible, Miss Fairfax? Would I be taking too great a chance by marrying this man?

J. L.

MY DEAR CHILD

Take the office job. That's the thing for you to do. Work at it. Put everything you've got into it. Convince yourself that you are not a failure.

You can succeed, dear girl, if you want to succeed. You failed in your two previous positions because you lacked the courage to fight. Now you've got another chance to make good. Take it

Later, after you have succeeded, marry a man you love. To try marriage in your present frame of mind would be to ruin your own life and to wreck the life of the man who made you his wife

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am a girl 17 years of age and greatly troubled. I often invite boys in my class to my home for supper Sunday evenings. My mother is always pleasant before them. But the moment they leave she always manages to dig up some scandal in their families' lives and implores me never to see them again

At first, I always listened to her and took her advice, but when it was the same old story Sunday after Sunday, I knew that there couldn't be something wrong with everyone who visited us

Perhaps it is because I am an only child that my mother takes such ridiculous precautions, but I think she is rather overdoing it. At 17, I feel I have the right to have my boy friends and to lead a normal life

Do try to help me solve my problem? TROUBLED.

DEAR LITTLE GIRL:

Continue to invite your friends to your home. Encourage your mother to enjoy their company as much as you do. Endeavor to have her enter the conversation and have a good time

And when the friends leave and your mother begins to dig up the scandal, laugh and say

"Mother, let us accept our friends on their own merits and not on their family's faults."

Also assure your mother that you are entertaining because you want to be popular and that you have no idea of marrying everyone whom you ask to supper

Like many women with only one child, your mother is afraid you'll run off with some young man. Therefore, assure her you have no such intention and that you are going to continue your studies and avail yourself of every educational opportunity open to you.

Such an assurance from you will end your mother's fears and make your life a lot happier.

The Perfect Hollywood Type

POSED BY ANN SOTHERN

Exquisite Beauty of Ann Sothern Is Credited To Daily Grooming

By DONNA GRACE

When we select the outstanding beauties of Filmland, you may be sure that the beautiful Ann Sothern will be around the top of the list.

Miss Sothern is of Danish-English descent, which is an interesting background for any girl, and this one has a blending of all the best and characteristic attributes of both types

She comes from North Dakota, but during her girlhood was taken on trips over the United States with her mother, who was a concert singer. It was from her mother's teaching that she became interested in music and learned to sing and play the violin and piano

Her ambition was to become a musician. Then after spending three years at the University of Washington she went to California and was given a contract in pictures

Her first real success was under the direction of Ziegfeld and associated with Marilyn Miller, and her training as a singer and dancer gave her the rhythm so necessary to the success of every star

Ann is a petite little person. Her height is 5 feet, 1½ inches and she weighs 112. She has golden blonde hair and blue-gray eyes. With all her charm and beauty she is really a modest, retiring type, and when interviewed is quite likely to say she is not unusual at all, but she is intensely interested in everything that tends to develop her dramatic art

Her skin is the smooth, perfect type, but is more of a peach-colored tone than the lily-white. She believes that any girl who gives herself the necessary attention can be beautiful, and one of the things she advocates is early rising, and also a dash of zero weather for a week or two every winter

Her eyes are brilliant and expressive, and are exercised and bathed every day. She combs her lashes, then brushes them with just a suggestion of brilliantine to separate and give them that rather mysterious luxuriant, dark sheen, but she says one must be mentally alert to express beauty and charm. She reads and studies a great deal and speaks French and Scandinavian as well as English

Swimming and riding are included in her out of doors activity, but her favorite sport is tennis. She dances in practice every day to retain the grace and rhythmic style that is one of her distinctive qualifications

Smart new clothes and jewels she finds irresistible, and is one of the best-dressed of the screen stars

Miss Sothern believes in frequent changes in hairstyles, and with her exquisite features any style is becoming. Her forehead is about medium and she usually wears a soft arrangement of bangs. With this effect she is often seen wearing a long curled twist at the back and partly covering the ears

She likes to work in pictures even more than on the stage, and is very generous in her consideration of talented girls who can be advised and helped

"Your Figure, Madame!"

By IDA JEAN KAIN

BEAUTY is curved according to structure. Ideal proportions are measured by structure, and your curve allowance for streamlines is a matter of individual build.

Start with the framework of the chest to estimate the correct measurements of your bust, waist and hips.

Inhale, exhale . . . measure. Pass the tape around the back and under the arms, drawing it together about the bust. Record the chest measurement. Now, bring the tape across the center of the bust, drawing it lightly. A proportionate measurement may exceed the chest by one-half to two inches. The loveliest bust circumference is one and one-half inches larger than the chest

Now for the waist measurement. A streamlined waist is slenderer than the bust by seven inches, and an eight-inch difference glorifies Milady's waistline. An overgrown waist is disastrous to any figure

Hips—the problem measurement of the feminine figure—outstrip symmetry when they exceed the bust measurement by more than two inches. In measuring the hips, keep the tape level and pass it around the largest area to include the derriere. It's all hips to the modern girl!

It's All Hips

The thigh is not one of the pivotal measurements. However, shapely thighs are extremely important to beauty. Take this measurement slightly above the center of the upper leg, or approximately 10 inches above the knee. The thigh measurement varies also according to structure. Venus' thigh measurement is reported to have been 22¼ inches. The modern five-foot-four Venus has a thigh measurement of 20 to 21 inches.

The calf measurement differs widely in the standards for various types. The average for five-feet-four ranges from 12 to 13 inches. Take the measurement at the fleshy part of the leg.

Beauty, as you can see, is curved according to structure, for everything depends on framework.

What's to Be Done?

What's to be done if your proportions are all awry? If you are above normal weight for your build, the solution is in diet and exercise. But if your weight is normal, diet cannot improve your measurements. You must exercise in order to redistribute the weight you have.

If you haven't taken active exercise for some time, then by all means work into your figure program gradually. Stiff joints and muscles must be made flexible before they are in condition for strenuous or prolonged exercise. Trainers never subject athletes to 'muscle-kinks' by overdoing on exercise at the beginning of their workouts.

The leaflet "General Exercises—To Keep You Trim and Fit as a Fiddle" gives an excellent start for all figure programs. These [illegible] exercises bring all the important muscles into action without strain. Go through the complete set only once daily the first few days. Gradually increase in time and vigor, and then progress to the specific and more strenuous movements in other leaflets. If you have not already done so, send stamped addressed envelope with your request for the "General Exercises" leaflet.

Romance and Etiquette

Foolish of him to attach so much importance to a small matter? But IS it a small matter?

When Vera clutches that cup in a two-handed strangle hold she tells a great deal about herself, and her ignorance of the niceties of life.

Then she goes on shocking Tom by packing green peas into a wad of mashed potato on her fork; whacking a whole chop into bits instead of cutting a piece at a time as she eats, and cheerfully parking olive pits on the tablecloth beside her plate

Quite a revelation to a young man who, like most men, hates to be embarrassed by the social slips of the girl he's with. How does he know that she won't acknowledge an introduction with "Pleased to meet you," or manicure her nails in public, talk too loudly, fail to send a bread-and-butter note to the hostess of a week-end party, behave awkwardly at the theater or in some other way draw the limelight of unpleasant attention on herself—and on him?

No one can afford to have bad manners, to run the risk of social failure through blindness to etiquette, charm, and tact. Our 40-page illustrated booklet is the simplest, handiest of guides to good form. It's such a comfort to be sure of yourself. Why not check up on the rules?

How do Communists mislead Americans who, joining their movement to destroy the United States?

"You are staunch pioneers in the cause of the proletariat!" I shouted to the strikers. "You are leaders in the class struggle, the struggle that is bound to bring the workmen of the world into control after centuries of oppression.

"Strike, men! All over Arizona workers are now on strike. They are determined to stay out until their demands are met. You, too, must stay out. Picket the roads and fields and keep others from scabbing. DOWN WITH BOSS RULE! DOWN WITH CAPITALISM! FIGHT FOR WHAT IS YOURS!"

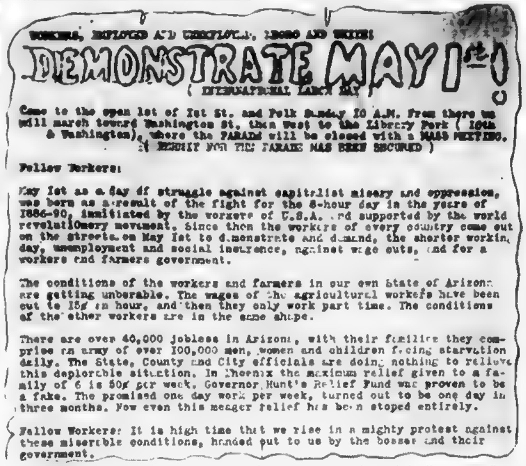
Reds Labor Day Call



WORKERS, EMPLOYED AND UNEMPLOYED, NEGRO AND WHITE!

DEMONSTRATE MAY 1st!

(INTERNATIONAL LABOR DAY)

Come to the open lot of 1st St. and Polk Sunday 10 A.M. From there we will march toward Washington St. then West to the Library Park (10th & Washington), where the PARADE will be closed with a MASS MEETING. (PERMIT FOR THE PARADE HAS BEEN SECURED)

Fellow Workers:

May 1st as a day of struggle against capitalist misery and oppression, was born as a result of the fight for the 8-hour day in the years of 1886-90, inmitiated by the workers of U.S.A. and supported by the world revolutionery movement. Since then the workers of every country come out on the streets on May 1st to demonstrate and demand, the shorter workin day, unemployment and social insurance, against wage cuts, and for a workers and farmers government.

The conditions of the workers and farmers in our own state of Arizona are getting unberable. The wages of the agricultural workers have been cut to 15¢ an hour, and then they only work part time. The conditions of the other workers are in the same shape.

There are over 40,000 jobless in Arizona, with their families they comprise an army of over 100,000 men, women and children facing starvation daily. The State, County and City officials are doing nothing to relieve this deplorable situation. In Phoenix the maximum relief given to a family of 6 is 50¢ per week. Governor Hunt's Relief Fund was proven to be a fake. The promised one day work per week, turned out to be one day in three months. Now even this meager relief has been stoped entirely.

Fellow Workers: It is high time that we rise in a mighty protest against these miserable conditions, handed out to us by the bosses and their government.

It was meetings such as this called at Phoenix by a joint committee of the Communist Party and Unemployed Councils which started troubles that almost led to lynching of Clay Naff, writer of this article. Note that the call is for a demonstration May 1.

WOMAN LEADER URGES CHURCH ROUT REDS

Washington, April 23 (US)—Communism has spread in the churches of America, keeping pace with the increasing loss of spirituality and faith, Mrs. Victoria Booth Demarest declared today.

Mrs. Demarest is founder of the America for God crusade and is in the capital for a number of addresses. She is a granddaughter of General William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, and a daughter of Mrs. Catherine Booth who founded the organization in Europe.

Mrs. Demarest said:

"The Soviet Russian God is the machine. There is no regard for the human soul whatsoever. Loss of respect for God means loss of respect for the individual, for marriage, for childhood and results in complete demoralization.

The intelligentsia in America has largely gone over to Communism.

The master stroke of the enemy is to create in the minds of so many Christians the belief that the passage so much quoted in the Acts of the Apostles where they believed and had things in common' is represented by the thing called Communism today.

That Biblical quotation has nothing in common with the Communism of today. Those two philosophies were 100 per cent opposite. That Communism was born of love. The Communism of today was born of greed and hatred of our fellow man if he had more than you had.

The Communism of the Bible was sharing with your brother. The Communism of today is everything taken from you—you cannot give nor share."

Faltering Finance

Link WPA Funds To Red Uprisings

Washington, April 23 (US)—Flooded with complaints from every section of the country, the House Immigration Committee has been informed federal funds from Works Progress Administration coffers are being used to foment Communist uprisings.

This was revealed today by Chairman Dickstein, (D) of New York, as a study was started of possible legislation which would curb future government aid to those who seek its overthrow.

In addition to its regular duties, the House Immigration committee is charged with the investigation of unamerican activities.

Sample Letter

Disclosures that the government [illegible] aiding its enemies may result in drastic revision of the spending powers of the Works Progress Administration when the 1500 million dollar request for relief funds comes to the House, Dickstein said.

Amendment will be sought barring financial aid to Communists and other extremists, the New Yorker said.

As a sample, Dickstein said, of [illegible] being [illegible] with the [illegible] revealed contents of a letter from a New York law firm demanding immediate dismissal of Mrs. Hallie Flanagan, national director of the federal theater project, which is supported with funds supplied by the Works Progress Administration.

Sent President

The letter, sent by Lind, Shlivek Marks & Brin, has been forwarded to President Roosevelt, Dickstein said. The firm is general counsel for the Federal Theater Veterans' League which made the charges against the federal-controlled theater group in New York City. The letter declared.

"Selection of plays by the federal theater project is designed to teach the American public Communistic activity. It distributes and teaches Communistic doctrine. Mrs. Flanagan has definitely stated that she is not interested in the American theater or methods, but is interested only in Russian-style performances.

Key Positions

"Communist meetings are held during business hours and key positions are held by people of Communistic leaning. The director in New York is Philip Barber, who meets weekly with representatives of the radical organization, but refuses to meet with destitue actors who have American leanings."

Sports BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN Comics
NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

The other evening I was talking with a former pupil of mine at Technology who now runs the editorial destinies of an important national magazine.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

He was talking of a survey his magazine is making of undergraduate life in the American colleges, and he added that what interested him most was to learn that there seems to have been a considerable change of late in the undergraduate attitude toward things.

"What's your feeling about it?" he asked. "Do you agree that most of the whoopee has gone out of undergraduate life?"

I assured him that, so far as I could tell, his information was correct. He seemed very much surprised. Not only that, but somewhat wistful and even a little shocked.

After a while I made up my mind what he was thinking. He had been a leading light in the immediate post-war age of college men and girls. The age when the college comics were pretty dirty and pretty representative of a whoopee attitude among the boys and girls.

He belonged to that generation that had more or less kept up that attitude into business life. They had furnished the dramatis personae for the fiction of the boom period which made business so exciting and so free from inhibitions either financial or moral.

He still thought of himself as one of the flaming youth of the gay undergraduate era. He had forgotten more or less that 15 years added to 21 make something different.

"Flaming Youth" Long Gone Over the Dam

Always he had more or less thought of himself as one of the boys carrying on a grand old tradition.

Nowadays he was genuinely shocked to learn that there isn't much flaming youth left, so to speak, that the Scott Fitzgerald tradition has gone over the dam and down stream, and that the youngsters are much more likely to be seriously interested in various anti-war movements against Italy and Germany and in the League, and that sort of thing, than in the things they were interested in way back in 1926.

Flaming youth, so to speak, had grown up on him and left him an adolescent.

I was interested to notice the address subjects of the New England Greater Presbyterian conference held in Boston last Monday.

They all sounded alike and equally out of date. One suspected that most of the clerical brethren believed they were still addressing the youth of a decade ago or more. Like the evangelists who—bless their innocence!—still talk of flasks and bootleg and short hair and short skirts, and so forth.

And on this occasion the students replied. I judge that the way they had been talked to made them a bit impatient. They replied plenty.

They seemed to think that the church wasn't doing its job of bringing youth into the church, that the clergy didn't speak the young folks' language, and that the young clergy weren't well enough educated to keep up with the students they were trying to reach.

Does the Church Understand Its Student Youth?

These are some of the questions they asked:

"Does the church understand its student youth?

"Is there a place in the church today for student youth?

"Does the church wish to throttle thinking on the part of its youth?

"Can the church provide a working philosophy of life?

"Why does the church hesitate in application of the principles of the Sermon on the Mount to social and political questions?

"Can the church today offer a real challenge to the loyalty of its youth?"

One is inclined to surmise that student youth understands the church as little as the church understands student youth.

I suspect that student youth doesn't really want the church as it is. It wants something else.

It insists that the church adapt itself to youth but that youth need not adapt itself at all to the church.

Of course the youngsters get irritated when they hear themselves described in terms of an age that is past. Just as the clergy and the student pastors resent the implication that they are fogies and fuddy-duddies. Both sides are to blame.

"Boo-Hoo, Baw-Waw!" in Triplet Language Means "When Do We Eat?"

Dinner time just can't come too often for there fast-growing triplets, Pauline, Geraldine and Georgine Burgoyne, who are gaining strength and weight daily in Waltham hospital. They tip the scales right now at four pounds, seven ounces; four pounds, one and a half ounces, and three pounds 13 and one-half ounces. They're the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leo Burgoyne.

New Law Aid To Landon Voters

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Intent of the voters in writing in the name of their choice for President of the United States on the ballot in next Tuesday's presidential and state primary is protected under a special law just rushed through both branches of the Legislature.

Republicans can now write in Alf M. Landon, Alfred M. Landon, A. M. Landon, or misspell the name or confuse the initials and be sure that their votes will be counted for the budget balancer of the Sunflower State.

The need of such a law to protect the intent of the voters was demonstrated by the experience eight years ago when the voters in the presidential primary were given the opportunity to designate their choice of a chief executive of the nation.

170 Ways

Herbert Hoover at that time was the choice of the Republican primary voters and Alfred E. Smith was the pride of the Democrats.

Despite the fact that the "Happy Warrior's" name was a household word, it was written in approximately 170 different ways by the Democratic voters.

Hoover's name was twisted around 128 ways, examples being "Calvin Hoover," "Albert Hoover," "Hoofer," "Whoover" and "Hoovard."

The law which the two branches of the Legislaure enacted, reads

"Election officers in the party primary of April 28 in the current year, in counting and tabulating the votes showing the voters' preference for President under chapter 104 of the acts of the current year, shall disregard the omission or inaccuracy of initials, the omission, inaccuracy or misspelling of Christian names, and the misspelling of surnames, if the intent of the voter to express a preference for any particular individual can be ascertained."

Record Seen

Due to many contests for delegates to the two national conventions, and to the fact that state, ward and town committees, and delegates to the state conventions, will be elected at the primary this year, a record turnout of voters in both parties is looked for on April 28.

In the 1928 primary, out of a total registered voting list of 1,650,000 in the state, but 118,000 Republicans and 49,882 Democrats showed enough interest to go to the polls.

In that year also, it is of interest to note, 3249 Republican voters wrote in the name of former Governor Alfred E. Smith, Democrat. Former Governor Alvan T. Fuller also received 1685 Republican votes for President, signed in 43 different ways.

Special Space

To express your individual preference for the person to be nominated as the Republican candidate for President of the United States, insert the name of such person in the blank space below. My preference for Republican candidate for President of the United States is (write in the name of your choice immediately below.)

Favoring Governor Landon

(Reprinted from New York Times of April 13)

AN old political hand in Washington declares that no Presidential campaign within his recollection ever included such a puzzle as that of the growing movement for the nomination of Governor Landon. Here is a man who has not even publicly avowed that he is a candidate. His hat he has kept on his own head instead of throwing it into the ring. He has not invaded other states, has made only two speeches that could be called political, has no visible organization working for him, yet everywhere is finding friends and being assured of support in the Cleveland convention. His latest accession of delegate strength comes from Missouri and Tennessee and Virginia. Even more striking perhaps is the poll of the Young Republican Club of this city. Out of 359 votes thus far cast by members, Governor Landon has received 213. These Young Republicans of uncertain age are notoriously progressive and forward-looking. They have been at odds with the Old Guard, otherwise the regular Republican organization. The latter has elected uninstructed delegates to the Cleveland convention who are generally understood to be for Landon. Then, to pile wonder upon wonder, it appears that the Young Republicans are also for him.

This surprising turn of Republican eyes to the Kansas governor indicates, it is true, the party's lack of Presidential timber this year. It has few or no men of brilliant ability and long public service who have impressed their personality upon the country, and who would naturally be thought of as promising candidates for the Presidency. Such leaders as the Republicans have somewhere near this type are in 1936 under a political blight, whether due to previous defeat, or to residence in the wrong part of the country. If New York, for example, had a Republican able to fill the bill completely, he could not possibly be nominated or elected this year. On the other hand, Governor Landon comes from exactly the right part of the nation, politically speaking. It is the map which has mainly made his candidacy what it is today.

This is not to say that his personal qualities, as they are becoming known, do not win him favor. The political principles for which he has stood, and which he has exemplified in the government which he has given Kansas during the past three years, are certainly becoming popular. He is for rigid economy in public expenditures. He is for lower taxes. He stands for honest official bookkeeping and efficiency in administration. These are not dashing ideas, designed to capture the public imagination, but they may not fit so badly into the sober second thought with which Americans are now surveying the vagaries and the needs of their public finance.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Ann Marsters

THE MORNING MAIL—Here are excerpts from a cook book, of all things, sent in by Mrs. Aranson of Jamaica Plain.

ANN MARSTERS

But the interesting part of it is, the cook book is dated 1898. She happened to find it when she was searching for a recipe for a pound cake which she wanted to make for Easter. She found it, all right, and the directions read:

"Beat constantly for one hour. Bake in a coal range until done. Test with a straw taken from a new broom."

"I was going through with it," writes Mrs. Aranson, "because the electric mixer would take care of the beating—but I didn't have a new broom."

Heavens knows where our grandmothers found time to be really good housewives. The same book gave instructions for the day's activities from "Kindling the Fires" to "Preparation for the Night." (The last included pulling the beds into the middle of the room for good circulation of air.)

There were 30 pages of instructions for [illegible] and 26 pages for ironing day.

There was a lot about dry-cleaning day, too, when men's woolen clothes, in particular, were cleaned. Preparations began the night before. You boiled soap bark for an hour in a quart of water, and let it stand all night. Then you strained it through cheesecloth and used it with equal parts of gasoline.

Wouldn't such a book have made a perfectly wonderful gift for a bride of the nineties?

In contrast to the methods of 1898, the following notice is printed in the window of a Massachusetts avenue delicatessen:

"EXTRAORDINARY! Chicken Moderne! Grown under ultra violet rays, in air-conditioned quarters and fed scientifically. They are orchids of the poultry world—FROM OUR ELECTRIC BLOWN BROILER."

Ben Bernie Turns Poetic Waiting for That Horse

Ben Bernie has turned poetic at last. (Don't we all?) Yesterday he was dallying with a pencil and paper waiting for that horse to come down the home stretch—and today he sends me the result. (Not of the race, but of the scribbling.)

It's quite a long poem—but I think Mr. Bernie will be satisfied if we print only the first verse. (It'll give you the idea of it, anyway.)

Ofttimes a fellow wonders
Just exactly why he's here,
And he'll ask himself just what the reasons are.
Life to some is complicated,
But to me I've often stated,
It's my fiddle and my lads and my cigar.

Swords and sailboats, bicycle handle bars and wishbones, colored turtles and flies and ladybugs—all these are the latest gadgets made of metal to wear on your coat lapel or to pin in your ascot. Funny little fancies, to be sure, but salesgirls explain them by saying, in a slightly bored fashion, "They're supposed to bring you good luck."

News Follower: The other day, an Arlington mother happened to pick up her 10-year-old child's diary and saw this entry, dated March 31:

Condemned Teuton Comes to Meet Black Destruction

Austen Lake

THE NERVE DOCTORS who reduce human behavior to a morbid science say that condemned men experience a buoyant uplift in the form of hysterical happiness on the eve of destruction. They say it is nature's merciful means of fortifying the system against the wrack of approaching ruin.

So, the condemned man, Max Schmeling, was scarcely uncrated on the New York docks before he began to spout publicity scorn for Young Black Joe, and give 40 reasons why Louis is just an alley brawler who has been imposing on public patience. A puncher? Yes, against a man with his hands in his pockets. But the Negro, said Max, had met only pathetically terrified and punched-out martyrs. He, Max, had a plan.

There is a psychopathic symptom about this "plan" business among the men condemned to face black fate I recall Carnera blinking owlishly as he stood on the commission scales last June 24, and gulping something in his turkey-gobbler voice about a plan. Gabby, garrulous Baer sat in his dressing shack at Speculator, N. Y., last September and jibbered about a secret scheme. Even old Paulino Uzcudun, with his fungus face and mouthful of brass teeth, said he had a secret system for the Negro.

If the condemned men had the remotest notion of a pre-match method against Louis, the result was always clattering disintegration on the deck of the scaffold with the referee jumping in to halt the action just this side of manslaughter.

Under the influence of truth-serum Schmeling would be saying, "No I have no hope. I am submitting to a chopping which I trust will be quick and merciful for the sake of the box-office percentage."

KNUTE'S PRIZE MAN

AS ONE OF KNUTE ROCKNE'S bright pupils, Harry Stuhldreher has been teaching football at Villanova in strict accordance with the old master's lessons as he learned them at Notre Dame. Having won his share of games, he is passing to the richer rewards at Wisconsin, where the board-of-regents shot Doctors Fat Spears and Meanwell down the tube last January.

Along with Eddie Anderson of Holy Cross, Adam Walsh of Bowdoin, Mike Dorais at Detroit, and a few others, Harry has kept the old South Bend wizard's memory green. But the experience of nearly a hundred other coaches who learned the system from Old Number One himself and then went out to teach it, is proving that the man and not the system was most important in the success of Notre Dame teams under Rockne.

His system, as the trade called it, was all right, but only Rockne could make it work to perfection. Rather than an inventor he was a great teacher with a remarkably facile mind for detail and having a charming way with kids.

Only lately Stuhldreher told me that the system had been so changed and tinkered with that it was ceasing to be Rockne's stuff any more, and he thought, after a few years, it would pass out of mind, except as the memory of one man's achievement.

FOOTBALL GUINEA PIGS

TRUNDLING HIS RIGHT ARM in a little neck hammock, Gil Dobie keeps on with his stoic deadpan instruction of the Boston College football classes. Recently he received a letter from Lou Little of Columbia, a fellow victim of injuries sustained in practice, which read, "At your age, Gil, you ought to have more sense than to get in the way of your own tackle plays. You've got those B. C. boys geared too high. Slow 'em down, Gil, slow 'em down."

Gil's injury was accidental, but Lou, being at the dangerous age of 40, when a man refuses to recognize the approach of physical autumn, was victim of his own indiscretion. For years he has offered his body as a live dummy for tackling and power plays until last fall the muscles of his legs began to ossify.

Still hobbling when I saw him in New York last Saturday, and with the threat of having a permanent limp, he said the leg still feels like a giant toothache after an operation which removed a nine-inch bony spur at the hip. Three years ago he experienced a fractured vertebra in his neck during scrimmage and spent six months with his chin supported by a leather strap. Now, he says, his days of being his own laboratory guinea pig were over.

THOUGHTS ABOUT SUPPER

HOPING TO TRY HIS FIRST finger wiggles in another ten days, when the splint will be removed from his fractured thumb, Joe Cronin said that he would not disturb the present Red Sox infield while Eric McNair is doing such a sweet shortstop job. He said, even after the bones of his throwing hand had healed, he would sit on the bench as long as the club continued to win. "And if that's the price of a pennant," said self-sacrificing Joe, "I hope I'm in the dugout all season."

He said thus far his managerial life had been one sweet dream, devoid of the usual spring pitching nightmares. "When you get six starting pitchers to finish their games in nine starts," said he, "all a manager has to do is sit back and think about supper."

Crusaders Give B. U. Drubbing

Worcester, April 23—Boston University baseballers were back home today a bit dazed from the 16 to 1 drubbing handed them by Jack Barry's Holy Cross team at Fitton Field.

The crew from Mt. St. James got 16 hits while Jarlett was limiting the Terriers to three. This combined with nine B. U. errors was enough to spell victory in any league.

12 WINNERS IN 18 CHOICES FOR ANN

Miss Marsters Is Brilliant

RACE

Selections Show Way To Rest

Thus does the sensational Miss Ann Marsters continue to show the way to the nation's [illegible] handicappers.

O[illegible] selector in New England Miss Marsters of the [illegible] American has been [illegible] the faith expressed in her by Walter O'Hara of Narragansett Park.

O'Hara entrusted $500 to Miss Marsters. With this as a basis, she is attempting to prove that the [illegible] conservative [illegible] either satisfactory profits or, at worst, small losses will result.

At the rate she is now calling them, the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund beneficiary of Miss Marsters' final fund total, will receive a most substantial and welcome addition.

NOW $545

Her bankroll of $500 is today $545[illegible] thanks to her great [illegible] achievement of naming three out of four winners.

SATURDAY—4 OUT OF 5.
MONDAY—1 OUT OF 4.
TUESDAY—4 OUT OF 5.
WEDNESDAY—3 OUT OF 4.

Kawazoe captured the Jamaica second to return $8. Night Sprite got the call in the Havre de Grace fourth and paid $5.7[illegible]. Aroused alone ran out of the money in the third at Havre.

Murph, her fifth choice was scratched. But Murph's stablemates, Dogaway and Fast Express comprising the Milky Way Farm entry, ran one-two which was further glory for Miss Marsters.

This constitutes a record of which Miss Marsters may well be proud.

She should rejoice, too, at the tremendous response to her bank-roll guessing contest which has made a big hit with the horse loving public.

This contest is open to all. But only one guess is permitted each entrant. And all predictions should include the total amount of the fund through the final guessing day, May 16.

Entries close on May 4.

10 Clubs Vie For Golf Prize

Annual spring matches of the Greater Boston four-ball league were due to be played today at five local courses.

The opener brings Woodland and Brookline Country Club together. Other matches are Commonwealth at Oakley, Weston at Wollaston, Charles River at Winchester and Brae Burn at Wellesley.

McKechnie Shakes Up Bees Lineup

BROWN

Gets Chance To Prove Worth

By Bill Grimes

Manager Bill McKechnie shook up his batting order drastically this morning and also benched Pinkey Whitney in favor of Joe Coscarart.

Coscarart will lead off and Gene Moore, the sensation rookie will bat in the No. 2 position. Moore is very smart in laying down bunts and with his great speed will be tough to double up.

Bill Urbanski, who is leading the Bees, will hit in No. 3 position, followed by Hal Lee. Wally Berger in fifth and Buck Jordan in the No. 6 slot.

Tony Cuccinello will follow Jordan and then Al Lopez and the pitcher, Bobby Brown.

After breaking even with the Dodgers in Brooklyn, the Bees were down for a two-game series with the Phillies this afternoon at the National League Field.

Through the foresight of Duf Lewis, the dandy little road secretary, the Bees and Phillies, instead of coming over from New York on the midnight, returned on a special train arriving here shortly after 11 o'clock last night.

Bobby Brown, the Hull Howitzer and Bucky Walters, who was an infielder with the Red Sox during the Marty McManus and "Bucky" Harris regimes will be the opposing twirlers this afternoon.

It will be Bobby Brown's [illegible] time out since the season opened. Due to the fact that Bobby has been wild all spring, Manager McKechnie figured it would be to the advantage of both the Hull boy and the Bees to hold Bobby over until such a time as he got his control.

When he is right Bobby Brown has a world of stuff. He is not only exceptionally fast but he has a sharp-breaking curve and has been in the league long enough to know the answers.

As to his batting order for this afternoon, Jimmy Wilson was just as secretive as Manager McKechnie, for other than stating that "Bucky" Walters would be on the mound and he'd do the receiving, the Phillies' manager refused to talk for publication.

Allison Bows To Outsider

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 23 (US)—Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Texas, America's national champion and top-ranking player, was rudely eliminated from the Mason and Dixon tennis championships here by Hal Surface, the Kansas City upsetter.

Surface, No. 12 in the national ranking, caught the Texan off his game and made him an also ran in the tournament by a score of 6—2, 4—6, 6—3.

Brevity Proves He's Good Mudder

Fear Sprinters Will Ruin Chances

Louisville, Ky., April 23 (AP)—Scoffers of Brevity's mud-running ability, who have been sounding off about the sad plight of the Widener colt if the track is sticky on Derby day, were a silent lot today.

The favorite blew up their argument yesterday when, running in the gumbo, he reeled off six furlongs in 1:15 and made his running mate, Chance Sun, a superior mudder, look like a plater.

Brevity's chief hazard, the wise ones avow, lies in the fact that so many top flight sprinters are slated to go to the post. The sages declare that if the son of Chance Shot or Sickle elects to keep in the company of Coldstream, Tintagel, The Fighter, Delphinium and Postage Due in the early stages of the race he may be out of gas when such slow starters as Granville, Ned Reigh, Grand Slam, Gold Seeker and others make their bid in the stretch.

Incidentally, it seems that Colonel E. R. Bradley has another potent Derby hand in Bien Joli and Banister, neither of which has been considered any great shakes. The Bradley pair worked a mile and a quarter, the Derby distance, together. Bien Joli, finishing a length and a half in the van, was clocked in 2:09 3-5, considered an excellent performance on the muddy track.

Derby interest, already at fever pitch, was given an additional fillip with word that Grand Slam, Bomar Stable's great mud-runner, Mrs. F. C. Mars' The Fighter, and Brookmeade Stable's Indian Broom were due at the Downs today. Grand Slam was en route from Maryland, The Fighter from Texas and Indian Broom from California.

Horsemen are looking to the Wood Memorial at Jamaica Saturday to get a better line on Derby eligibles training in the East. Among Derby colts expected to start in the Wood are Delphinium, which ran second in the Chesapeake; Granville, winner of the Bridgehampton purse at Jamaica; Ned Reigh, second to Granville in the Bridgehampton; Seabiscuit, which ran second to Tintagel; Hollyrood, defeated by Tintagel and Seabiscuit Saturday; Bold Venture, Clocks and Teufel.

Hard to picture a colt with as drab a name as Silas even entered in the picturesque Bluegrass classic, but Mrs. Bessie Franzheim's nominee, with the plow-horse moniker, is winning admiration of the railbirds. They'll tell you he can be listed as a sure Derby starter, if not a real threat. His recent mile effort in 1:42 3-5 has been surpassed only by Boston Pal, and he was not extended. The big item to Trainer A. C. Dettwiler is that the colt has developed early foot. Last year he proved his stamina, but dallied in the early stages.

Count Morse, Warren Wright's Derby colt, reached the Downs yesterday. His trainer, Bert Williams, said the son of Reigh Count-Nellie Morse worked a mile over the Calumet Farm track in 1:43, just before leaving for Louisville.

Huskies Seek Home Victory

Northeastern University clashes with Bates on the Huntington Field diamond, Kent street, Brookline, in the first home contest of the New England baseball conference.

After an unsuccessful trip to Brooklyn where they were defeated by St. John's and Long Island, the Huskies are confident of breaking into the winning circle today.

N. U. Enters

The entire Northeastern varsity and freshman track teams have been entered in the Greater Boston Intercollegiate meet slated for the Harvard Stadium this week end.

Marcum to Pitch Friday

By Joe Cashman

Philadelphia, April 23—Manager Joe Cronin, leading his million-dollar Red Sox into Sleepy Town before it was up this morning, made the interesting announcement that John "Footsie" Marcum would start the final game of the series with the Athletics tomorrow.

Marcum, big hill-billy righthander acquired from the Macks this past Winter, has been a total loss to the Fenway flock to date due to a stiffness in his right elbow, which developed after he had hurled in two exhibition games early in spring training.

Two weeks ago last Tuesday he had his tonsils removed after physicians had opined that the operation might cure his arm trouble. He's been pitching in batting practice for the past week.

He still has pain in his elbow but he's anxious to twirl, believing that's the best route towards complete recovery.

Cronin had planned to break Marcum in as a relief flinger. What caused the pilot to change his mind, he didn't reveal.

Maybe he feels no relief pitching will be required in this series and that a starting assignment against the A's is an easier task than a finish-up effort against any other club.

WON SEVEN

So far Marcum's absence hasn't been felt. The Sox have won seven of their nine games with "Footsie" on the hospital list. Perhaps they could keep on traveling on high without him.

It's the conviction of smarter baseball men, however, that Johnny must come back to flash the form that carried him to 17 victories with the last-place A's in 1935 to keep the Croninmen in the flag hunt.

The Fenway tosser today Mr. Cronin went on to state, will be the illustrious Wesley Cheek Ferrell who'll be making his third start and seeking the third of the 30 triumphs he aims to hang up this year.

Since both of Wes' previous starts and wins were against these same Macks, the cocky young man can't be doing much worrying about the outcome this p. m.

In fact, neither can any of the other Sox, for our heroes' record against the last-place natives is three wins and no defeats.

The A's are in the cellar but they're showing steady improvement and are getting tougher to lick every day.

After looking very futile in two games at Fenway Park last week they threw a million scares into our million-dollar cast before finally surrendering to Ferrell 2-1 here last Sunday.

They came back the next day to gain their initial and only win thus far by out-slugging the Yanks and they almost made it two in a row over the New Yorkers when they staged a four-run rally in the ninth on Tuesday.

They loafed yesterday which leaves Henry Johnson, former Fenway favorite, primed to face his old club, which now boasts of no less than seven ex-A's.

NARROW SQUEAK

There's little danger, though, that the Sox will take Philadelphia or any other rival lightly in the near future after their narrow escape in the final game of the series with the Senators.

With two gone and nobody on in the ninth the Solons were trailing 4 to 1. When the game ended the Harris henchmen were only a run behind and had the tying marker on third.

Up to the final frame the Sox though being outhit had a [illegible] the better of the going back of Fritz Ostermueller.

Taking full advantage of the scattered hits [illegible] by Buck Newsom they put over a run in the first, two in the fifth and another in the sixth.

Then as the crowd was heading for the exits the decision almost slipped from Ostie's grasp.

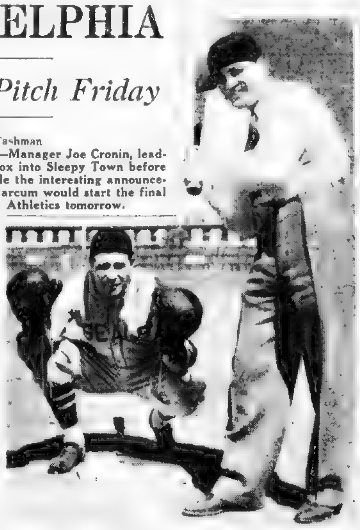
Roberto Estalella, Cuban rookie batting for Newsom, tripled. Jesse Hill singled for his third safety of the game. Buddy Lewis, kid third-sacker, tripled to the bull pen. Buddy Myer, however, couldn't rescue the tying counter, fouling out to Werber.

Two singles each by Manush and Werber, a triple by Cramer and a double by Ostermueller were the Sox only hits. "Osty's" two-bagger was most valuable, driving in two runs.

The win gave the Sox a 3-1 edge over the Nats and two more victories than any other club in the league.

They shouldn't be any worse off when they got home Saturday to open a two-game series with the Yanks.

LEFTY GOES "PUNCHY" BEHIND BAT



(Photos are from International News Photograph Service.)

Beaudry Winner of Concord Bike Race

Manchester, N. H., April 23 (AP)—Armand Beaudry, 22, won the 18-mile Concord to Manchester bicycle marathon today, covering the distance in 50 minutes.

Westerners Rated Tops in Penn Games

Philadelphia, April 23 (AP)—Athletes from the West and Southwest, particularly the Longhorns from Texas and the Buckeyes from Ohio State, loomed today as the boys to beat in many headline events of the 42d renewal of the Penn relays this week-end.

As the 3000 odd athletes from 500 colleges and schools began arriving today for final workouts on Franklin Field before the start of the two-day carnival tomorrow it appeared the East's representatives would have to do some mighty running and heaving to bring the honors to their own back yard.

The Texans, first on the scene, [illegible] got in yesterday, were the odds-on choice to gallop off with both the short distance relays, the 440 and 880. Not only did the Longhorns recently set a world's mark for the 880 but last week at the Kansas relays they won both events in faster times than the existing Penn relays records.

Anchored by Chink Wallender, the Lone Star State squad appeared considerably stronger than the other prominent contenders, Ohio State and Cornell in the 440 and the Buckeyes and Penn in the [illegible].

Ohio State, meantime, was [illegible] threat in [illegible] a dozen events [illegible] and individual [illegible], in the latter where Jesse Owens, the brilliant Rice [illegible] and Temple's [illegible] Peacock renew their [illegible] in the 100-meter sprint and the broad jump.

Michigan State was another standout threat from the West, particularly in the distance medley and four-mile relays. From the East, Manhattan and Cornell seemed to have the greatest all-round strength, the New Yorkers in the distance medley and two miles and Cornell in the shuttle hurdle and freshman mile so far as relays were concerned, with each presenting two or three individual contenders.

Israel Athletic Night Postponed

An athletic night scheduled for tonight by the Brotherhood of the Congregation Beth Israel has been postponed to an indefinite date it was announced today by Max Andeman, chairman of the committee. Tickets purchased for the affair which was scheduled for tonight may be used when the "night" is conducted in the near future.

Yesterday's Stars

By the Associated Press

Bill Terry and Hank Leiber, Giants—Terry hit triple and two singles to drive in three runs; Leiber got homer with two on against Phillies.

George Earnshaw, Dodgers—Held Boston Bees to five hits for first victory of season.

Harland Clift, Browns—Led 18-hit attack on Tigers pitchers by driving in four runs with double and two singles.

"RABBIT BALL" BACK, IS CLAIM

DOLLY STARK GOOD ON AIR

New York, April 23 (AP)—Some of the players swear the National League ball has undergone several rabbit blood transfusions this spring . . . Best wishes to Harry Stuhldreher, who'll probably need them . . . Jimmy Braddock and Joe Gould are back on Broadway . . . Always first with the oddities, Casey Stengel used four pinch hitters in a row against Boston the other day.

Joe Smith, manager of Tommy Loughran, is around town trying to steam up a match with Joe Louis . . . [illegible] . . . Max Schmeling's cabin on the Bremen was the same he has occupied on his last four trips across the Atlantic . . . And his headquarters at the Commodore are the same he has used on each of his trips to America . . . Tris Speaker's first official act as a member of the Cleveland boxing commission was to trim the pass list . . . Well, anyway, Joe Stripp [illegible] longer than anybody else this season . . . That's something.

The one bright spot [illegible] Shibe Park is Chubby Dean [illegible] Duke University [illegible] Florida [illegible] Stark [illegible]

Mule Haas of the White Sox is feeling pretty good about himself . . . He has reached second and third base on Schoolboy Rowe this season . . . Dixie Howell is looking for a coaching job, if you know of one . . . One sure way not to get an autographed photo of Jimmie Foxx is to leave off the extra "X" when you write him for it . . . Nine of the 11 members of the Walker cup team are under 30 . . . Mike Jacobs now sees a $1,500,000 gate for Schmeling and Louis.

Indian Hurtado, the lightweight, had won 119 consecutive fights until Frankie Klick trimmed him . . . Another lightweight, Lou Ambers, waited around all afternoon to get Mickey Cochrane to autograph a ball . . . But didn't dare go into the dressing room after Hornsby's Browns ran wild in the eighth and beat the Tigers . . . George Earnshaw, after two false starts in the box for Brooklyn finally clicked the way we expected him to do . . . Win or lose for the Yanks, it's usually by one run . . . Joe McCarthy is talking to himself.

U.S. Olympic Riders Ready for Test

Fort Riley, Kas., April 23 (AP)—Months of tedious, painstaking training behind them, riders and horses who will represent the United States in the Olympic equestrian events are ready for final tryouts and the long journey to Berlin.

Eleven riders and 16 horses, the Army's finest, constitute the [illegible]. Officially they will not be the Olympic team until May [illegible] date of final tryouts. No [illegible] competitors, however, are expected to enter to challenge the [illegible] to represent the United States.

Allison-Van Ryn Team Winner

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 23 (AP)—Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, Davis cup veterans, advanced to the semi-finals in doubles play at the Mason-Dixon tennis tournament today by defeating Thomas J. Mangan, Jr., and Robert McElvenney, 6—4, 6—2.

The winners' next opponents will be Bryan Grant of Atlanta and [illegible] Gilbert Hall of New York, [illegible] triumphed over Walter M[illegible] and Lawrence A. Baker, [illegible] and treasurer respectively of the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association, 6—2, 6—2.

Clifford B. Suter of New Orleans and Hal Surface, Jr., of Kansas City, eliminated Wilmer Hines, Los Angeles, and F. B. Lawrence, Los Angeles, 6—0, 7—5, while the California team of Don Budge and Gene Mako defeated M. Rainville of Montreal and W. E. Reese of Atlanta, 6—4, 3—6, 6—1.

Budge and Mako will meet Suter and Surface in the second semi-final match.

Eagle Tracksters Lose Four Aces

With four of its best performers including two of the most valuable men on the team unable to compete, Boston College's track team is fairly well-crippled for the G. B. I. meet opening the Stadium tomorrow afternoon.

Tom McFarland, high scorer of the meet last year and most versatile of Coach Ryder's charges, is out with an ailing muscle which may not let him compete in one of his five specialties, the high hurdles, but this is unlikely.

AUTO League Has 10 CLUBS

LONG URGES ENTRY SPEED

After an absence of two years, the Commercial Car baseball league, comprising 10 teams, returns to the park department fold this season in quest of the 1936 city championship, it was announced today by Commissioner William P. Long, chairman of the park department.

The Commercial Car team managers, at a meeting last night, voted to re-enter the Boston Park League and today will confer with William M. Mullen, director of park department recreation, at his office at 440 Park Drive, Fenway. A schedule and classification of the teams will be drawn up.

Commissioner Long also voiced a warning to managers of prospective entrants in the Park League in his announcement. The great response of teams to compete under park department auspices this season has entailed tremendous detail and unless teams send in their applications immediately there is danger many may be left out when the entry books close on May 5.

Up to the present time, League Director Mullen has already received indications that a capacity entry will play this season and the schedules are filling up every day. Commissioner Long advises managers to contact Mullen at once at his Park Drive office to insure entry.

Among the teams already entered for the opening games on May 11 when the season gets underway is Star of the Sea of East Boston, winner of the Catholic League [illegible] title last year. This outfit, according to its followers, should be a strong contender to repeat this season.

Track Aces Set For Drake Games

Des Moines, April 23—Track and field teams from colleges [illegible] were arriving here [illegible] Drake relays, to be held tomorrow and Saturday.

Officials announced the [illegible] advance ticket sale [illegible] of the [illegible] upwards of 2,000 [illegible].

Among those already on the ground are teams from [illegible] Nebraska, Washington [illegible] Rice, Occidental, Kansas [illegible], Marquette, Missouri, [illegible] and others.

Feature contest of [illegible] is expected to be the [illegible] these by Harry Williamson, Glenn Cunningham, Elroy Robinson, Ray Sears and Jack Fleming.

ANN MARSTERS' BEST BETS FOR TODAY

We're going into the fourth week, and our bankroll is now $545.00. This is a profit of $45 to date for the experiment.

Three winners out of four yesterday. KAWAGOE, GAY BALKO and NIGHT SPRITE were our winning choices. AROUSED ran out of the money while MURPH was a late scratch. Day's play of $8 returned $16.40 for a net profit of $8.40.

ANN MARSTERS' BETS

$2 Win, $2 Place Peggy Shippen, Havre 1st.
$2 Win Tack, Havre 7th (Scratched)

Late Specials

$2 Win Young Native, Jamaica 5th.

BANKROLL IS NOW $545.00. DAY'S PLAY $12.

This afternoon I'm betting $2 to win and the same to place on PEGGY SHIPPEN, a first time starter in the opener at Havre De Grace. It's $2 to win on TACK in the seventh at the same strip.

My late specials for this afternoon are BOW AND ARROW in the fourth at Havre De Grace and YOUNG NATIVE in the fifth at Jamaica.

(At the suggestion of Walter O'Hara, Miss Marsters has set out to determine that conservative bets can result in satisfactory profits, or at worst small losses. Walter O'Hara, Narragansett Park owner, provided the capital with a $1000 gift. Half was turned over to the Boston Evening American Christmas Fund immediately. The remainder will be similarly handled at the end of the experiment. This is the nineteenth day.)

JOCKEY Ace Due AT "ROCK"

Salem, N. H., April 23—H. D. (Jim) Monroe, Rockingham Park's racing secretary, is on the scene here daily preparing for the spring meeting of the New Hampshire Jockey Club, May 25 to June 13.

Latest to apply for stall space for the local spring session are the stables of W. C. Stroube, Odessa Farm, W. J. Hirsch, Ben Creech, Moe Lowenstein and Le Mar Stock Farm.

Creech is sending a string of 28 to campaign at the Rockingham meeting. Along with the Creech thoroughbreds will come Charlie "Chuck" Parke, new apprentice sensation.

Parke, youngest of the riding Parke family of Illinois, has been the star of the winter season at the recently concluded Fair Grounds meeting at New Orleans. He is under contract to Mrs. A. M. Creech.

W. J. Hirsch, son of Max Hirsch, famed trainer, will bring a string of 10 to the Rock while the Westerner, Moe Lowenstein, is [illegible] 28.

M. I. T. Golf

Holy Cross will be the opening golf team foe of the M. I. T. linksmen who will journey to Worcester on Saturday for a match with the Purple links team.

Eddie Shore Voted Most Valuable

Montreal, April 23 — Well, who's [illegible] up today as the most valuable player in the National Hockey League but Eddie Shore, battering defense star of the Boston Bruins?

It was the third time that the stalwart Bruin had received the prize nomination and the valuable David A. Hart trophy which goes to the winner.

The award was made on the basis of a poll of the newspaper experts in each National Hockey League city.

At the same time Doc Romnes, center of the Chicago Blackhawks, was voted the Lady Byng trophy as the player most outstanding in sportsmanship and clean play.

The original Lady Byng trophy became the permanent property of Frank Boucher last season when he voluntarily withdrew from competition.

Brother Baer Slopped Around

Oakland, Cal., April 23 (INS)—The pugilistic hopes of Buddy Baer, 24[illegible]-pound brother of Max Baer, were slightly dampened today following his six-round trimming at the hands of Andre Lenglet, French heavyweight. It was Buddy's first appearance as a main eventer.

TIGERS Race Lions, PENN

TRIO MEET SATURDAY

Princeton, N. J., April 23 (AP)—Although the Princeton varsity squad will open its season Saturday against Penn and Columbia in the Childs Cup regatta on the Harlem, it still is more or less of an unknown quantity, even to its amateur coach, Gordon Sikes.

"The boys look pretty good individually, are in good physical condition and row pretty well," said Sikes, Princeton coxswain of 20 years ago, "but I honestly don't know what they'll do as a crew or how much speed they really have."

Sikes has had little opportunity to compare the varsity eight's time trials with past practice performances, inasmuch as the new Lake Carnegie course is being used regularly for the first time this year. The course now is a reversal of the old, running from south to north instead of from north to south. It was used for the Childs Cup regatta last May, when Penn, the winning eight, rowed the mile and three-quarters in 9 minutes 1[illegible] second.

"We definitely haven't approached that time this year yet," Sikes said, pointing out it was set a month later and that Princeton, as well as other Eastern navies, has been handicapped this season by the late, cold spring.

Out March 17

"We were better off than a lot of them," he said, "and we didn't get out until March 17, two weeks later than usual."

The oarsmen in the No. 1 boat are a rangy lot, six of them six feet three or over and the other two six feet even, but they average only about 178 pounds.

Fred Warner, six-foot three-inch 17[illegible]-pounder from Hackensack, has graduated from junior varsity to varsity stroke. Captain Gordon Keppel of New York, 6-3 and 180 pounds, is at No. 7, Rudy Kauffmann of Chevy Chase, Md., 6 feet 4 and 194, No. 6, Jack Kelly of Deal, N. J., 6-3½ and 185, No. 5, Hal Dicke of Allentown, Pa., 6-3 and 193, No. 4, Fred Osborn of New York city, 6-3 and 172, No. 3; Grant Armstrong of Detroit, 6 feet and 165, No. 2; and Brooke Stoddard of Garden City, L. I., 6 feet and 170, bow.

Keppel, Kelly and Stoddard rowed in the varsity last year. Dicke rowed varsity in 1934 and in the jayvee boat last season with Warner, Kauffmann, Osborn and Armstrong. The coxswain is Jack Hudson of New York city.

Golf Handicaps For State Out

The annual golf handicap list released today reveals that four Bay State golfers carry a one-stroke lighter handicap while five others receive an additional stroke.

The list released by the Massachusetts Golf Association names Francis Ouimet as the only golfer carrying a scratch assignment.

Joe Lynch, Allan V. Ellis, Dave Whiteside and Rodney W. Brown, Jr., were the ones to have a stroke pared from their ratings.

E[illegible] Stanley, Jesse Guilford and Fred Wright, Jr., were changed from one shot to two while Eddie Kirouac goes from two to three and Eddie Lowery from three to four.

Lynch and Willie Turnesa of Holy Cross are the only golfers in the state carrying a one stroke handicap.

The complete list will be released June 1 and is to contain only the names of those who have applied for 1936 handicap cards.

Tech Crew Ready for Bulldog

Yale's varsity, jayvee and 150 pound crews will find Coach Bill Haines' M. I. T. crews difficult eights to torpedo when the Blue oarsmen meet the Engineers at Lake Quinsigamond, Worcester on Saturday.

The Beaver varsity and junior varsity eights are about on par, time trials over the Henley distance being about even.

The Tech coach will use Arthur Hunt, demoted last week from the coxwain seat, as the varsity tiller-man, and send Bob Smith, the sophomore to the junior varsity shell to steer the boat.

Light, but fast is the way the Tech sweepswingers may best be described.

Cubs, Bees Celebrate Birthday

New York, April 23 (AP)—The National League's 60th anniversary celebrations will begin at the Boston park June 24 with Chicago's Cubs combining with the Bees in staging the first of eight birthday parties. The two cities have had uninterrupted representation in the league since its founding in 1876.

Plans for the celebration announced from league headquarters today, included the following party occasions: July 9, Boston at Cincinnati (night game); 14, Brooklyn at St. Louis, 16, New York at Pittsburgh, 26, Pittsburgh at New York. August 2, St. Louis at Philadelphia, 13, Philadelphia at New York; and 22, Cincinnati at Chicago.

George Wright and Tom Bond, two of the surviving players who were active in the 1876 pennant race are Boston residents and will be invited to attend the "party." The leading feature of the celebration will be the reconstruction of a typical baseball scene of the 70's with costumes, playing rules and background details to fit the picture.

Terry Asks for More Police

New York, April 23 (INS)—Reinforcements to the regular police squad were stationed in Ebbets Field this afternoon when the New York Giants opened a two-game series at Brooklyn with the Dodgers.

On the request of Manager Bill Terry of the Giants, extra police protection was provided because tenseness of the clubs' rivalry was heightened last week when Dick Bartell, Giant shortstop, and Pitcher Van Lingle Mungo of the Dodgers swapped punches.

Bartell long has been a marked man in Brooklyn. In 1933 Joe Judge suffered the first serious spike wound of his career from Bartell, and was laid up for several weeks. A year later Junior Frey was cut down by Bartell.

McAvoy, Peterson Clash Tonight

London, April 23 (AP)—Jock McAvoy, British middleweight champion, who made an unsuccessful attempt to wrest the world's light heavyweight boxing laurels from John Henry Lewis last month, will try to lift the British heavyweight crown from Jack Peterson tonight in a 15-round bout.

Peterson, the betting favorite, will have an 11-pound pull in the weights. He weighed in at 182, while McAvoy scaled 171.

WILSON Says He's BEST

PEGGY SHIPPEN IN FIRST

By Dave Wilson

(Selections made for fast track)

BEST BET—FEZ, FIFTH RACE

Havre De Grace, Race Track, April 23—Fez, a bang-up second to Jane D. last Saturday, is accorded a standout preference in the one mile and 70 yards of the fifth stanza here today.

FIRST RACE
Peggy Shippen, Swift Ply, Staraway

PEGGY SHIPPEN, a first time starter, comes highly recommended by the clockers. Contention will likely be furnished by SWIFT PLY. STARAWAY has shown promise in morning trials.

SECOND RACE
Little Argo, Distracting, Chiliad

LITTLE ARGO, on Bowie form, shapes up vastly superior. Six furlongs in 1.15 under wraps. DISTRACTING, a clever Bowie winner, is reported at tops by the clockers. CHILIAD, under a feathery impost of 105 pounds, figures well up at the weights.

THIRD RACE
Beveau, Headin Home, Apprehend

String along with BEVEAU in this wide open affair. This plater has been going swiftly in morning trials. HEADIN HOME turned in a fine performance behind Night Sprite and Star Porter only a few days back. APPREHEND drubbed weaker company in a lone endeavor in this sector.

FOURTH RACE
Bow and Arrow, My Colin, Galmica

BOW AND ARROW, running like a "wild horse" in the mornings needs only to race back to brilliant trials. Tapered off training with three furlongs from the barrier in 0.35 2-5 this morning. MY COLIN performed as if a trifle shy on racing condition in a last. GALMICA drubbed shifty company last trip.

FIFTH RACE
Fez, Corum, Grandma's Boy

FEZ returns to the racing wars beautifully spotted under a feathery impost of 105 pounds. CORUM trounced the top one earlier in the meeting. GRANDMA'S BOY turned in a much better performance than the cold dope reveals last trip.

SIXTH RACE
Dalmatia, Dancing Cloud, Light Brook

DALMATIA isn't much horse in my book, but recent endeavors clearly entitle her to the top figures. DANCING CLOUD, a Bowie winner, is the class, but may find his impost of 118 pounds a bit too difficult. LIGHT BROOK, a rapidly improving sort, should share in the spoils.

SEVENTH RACE
Tack, Mad Frump, Six Bells

Going down in the pickling vat for TACK in this affair. He worked the full route of this affair in 2.10 the first mile in 1:45 all under double wraps. MAD FRUMP, a sore going old fellow, is well suited for the marathon route. SIX BELLS should go well under the weight arrangements.

LEADERS IN TRIBUTE TO NIGHT PINK

Mr. Boston

Dusek to Meet Robert

By Jack Conway

AMATEUR boxing will hit a new high in Boston next Monday night at the Arena when the Irish American A. C. will stage a monster inter-city show.

Cleveland, Detroit, Buffalo, New York and Boston will battle for the honors in the championship classes from 126 pounds through the heavyweight division. Each of the visiting teams will have four members, some of them Golden Glove champions.

Mr. Boston

New England's boxing men will meet the most severe test of their careers, but they are expected to make a creditable showing.

Fred Camuso, one of the stars in the recent national championships, and Jimmy McCarron will represent Boston in the 135 pound group.

Ralph Zannalli and George Martin will do their stuff in the 147 pound division, while Roy Kelley and Alex Paluski will be the standard bearers for Boston in the 175 pound class.

Frank Chadinski of Hyde Park will compete in the heavyweight division and he is certain to do some heetle punching.

• • •

THE DUSEKS

THE BATTLING Duseks will be very much in our midst at Paul Bowser's wrestling show at the Garden a week from Friday night.

Rudy, oldest member of the Dusek family, will clash with youthful Yvon Robert, sensational French Canadian heavyweight who recently held Danno O'Mahony to a draw. Robert intends to keep meeting all-comers in the ring, and he didn't hesitate a second in signing when it was suggested that he mingle with the rugged Rudy Dusek.

Ernie, Emile and Joe of the Dusek clan will also be on the Garden card. They don't care who is signed to meet them. The Duseks are very long on confidence, and believe they will sweep the Garden card.

Robert is taking considerable risk in meeting Rudy Dusek. The Frenchman has become a top wrestling attraction since he succeeded in scoring a pin fall against O'Mahony. He is in a position to compel the champion to give him a return match. A defeat by Rudy, however, will upset the Frenchman's plans and give O'Mahony an excuse for passing up a contest with such a dangerous challenger.

• • •

MAX'S PUNCH

I DON'T consider Max Schmeling much of a boxer, but he can punch. It was his hitting power that first enabled Schmeling to gain prominence in the ring. He stopped Joe Monte of Brockton and was then matched to meet Johnny Risko. The latter was one of the toughest heavyweights of his period. In addition, he was aggressive and blessed with a good left hook.

It was Risko's left hook that caused his downfall. Pete Reilly, who at the time was the real boss of the Schmeling management, coached Max on how to knock out Risko.

Against Jack Sharkey it was necessary to shift Schmeling's style. He couldn't risk pulling his right back as Sharkey's left was too fast. So they had Max tossing his right off his shoulder. He didn't get the drive behind the blow in this way that he did when he pulled the fist back a few inches before letting it fly.

SPORT

Greats Plan Big Dinner May 4

Champions from every branch of sports, stars of the stage and prominent figures in various walks of life, will pay tribute to the great success of the Boston Evening American's new edition, the Night Pink Final at Benny Ginsburg's Club Mayfair, Monday evening, May 4.

For the first time in history, an edition of a newspaper will be honored by the outstanding celebrities of the day, thus establishing the Night Pink Final edition of the American as the greatest in the newspaper field.

Those present will include members of the Boston Red Sox and world's champion Detroit Tigers, Denny Shute, national golf star, Walter O'Hara, Lou Smith and Allan Wilson, the "Big Three" of New England racing at Narragansett Park, Rockingham Park and Suffolk Downs, and the outstanding jockey of the day will represent horse racing.

College sports will be represented by various coaches. Jack Sharkey, former world's heavyweight champion will carry the banner for boxing, while Danno O'Mahony, wrestling king, will be on hand to lend the mat game's tribute. There will also be many others to be announced later.

SCRIBES THERE

The outstanding writers in New England who have helped to make the Night Pink Final such a tremendous success will also be present.

They will include Jack Conway, sports editor; John Noonan, city editor; Ann Marsters, New England's only girl handicapper and feature writer; Austen Lake, New England's outstanding columnist; Sam Cohen, assistant sports editor; Joe Cashman, baseball writer; R. J. Grimes, golf expert, and Dave Wilson, the country's leading handicapper.

Benny Ginsburg, owner of the Mayfair, says that this affair will be the greatest ever held in Boston and the greatest assembly of celebrities Boston has ever seen.

"This will be a most fitting tribute to the Boston Evening American's new edition, 'The Night Pink Final,'" Benny said. "The Night Pink Final has become my favorite paper and I believe it is one of the most outstanding achievements ever."

The Night Pink Final was introduced to New England to give readers "Today's News Today" and it has done just that.

It is no longer necessary to wait until morning to learn what happened the day before in the world of sports and news. The Night Pink Final is on sale with the day's news complete on the day it happens.

Baseball results, box scores, race results, golf scores, tennis results, entries and selections for the next day, mutuel reports and the news of the day can all be found complete in The Night Pink Final.

Philly Jinx For Ferrell

Marcum Gets Second Game

By JIMMY FOXX

Philadelphia, Pa., April 23—Next to joining the Marines, the best way to see the world is to become a big league ball player.

This new scheduled wrinkle of shorter trips and briefer home stays sure keeps us busy packing and unpacking our bags.

We were in P[illegible] Sunday and [illegible]

[illegible]

I always have hit well here and I [illegible] Wes Ferrell chalk up his third win of the season.

It's funny the way Wesley has fared in this town. During his first two years in the majors as an Indian he was very successful on my old stamping grounds. Then, in 193[illegible] [illegible] with him and he didn't win a game here until early last season.

Manager Joe Cronin surprised us this morning with the announcement that Johnny Marcum would [illegible] second [illegible].

[illegible] on his [illegible] add to Marcum's [illegible] to have him [illegible] Red Sox corner on the mound [illegible] well the past two [illegible].

Until [illegible] pitches it won't be known whether he's back in top form. I'm confident, though, that it won't be long before he's as good as ever he was. He showed great [illegible] batting practice yesterday.

We haven't [illegible] half bad with it [illegible].

"[illegible]" Ostermueller came through with another fine pitching performance as we took the final game from the Senators. He was a little more generous with hits than usual, but he was always able to steady down in the pinches.

He also helped himself plenty at bat. His fifth-inning double knocked in the two runs which enabled [illegible].

The Senators threw a scare into us in the ninth when they bunched two triples and a single for two runs and had the winning run on third with two out. "Osty" quelled that uprising by forcing Myer to foul out.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF THE YOUTH OF THE AMERICAS IN AVIATION

TODAY'S PILOTS OF MODELS —TOMORROW'S MODEL PILOTS!

Model plane flying and exhibition contests between members of squadrons and squadrons against squadrons hereafter will provide additional points in the race for the wing honor banner awarded every three months to the most active Junior Birdmen flight unit.

A squadron conducting a competition for its own members will receive five points for the contest and one point for each participating member. A squadron challenging a rival unit to a contest will receive similar credit. The challenged unit will receive one point for each participating member but not the five points awarded for planning and conducting the meet.

The new points are provided to encourage squadrons to hold more contests and to give those which hold competitions a more equal chance against larger squadrons which pile up points through [illegible] reports [illegible] activities.

The Flying Hawks of John Winthrop school, commanded by Morris Landry and sponsored by Miss Esther E. [illegible], teacher of eighth grade [illegible] the banner, having won it from the Leaping Lenas [illegible] commanded by John E. Jacobs on April 1.

In the present race for the banner which ends on July 1 [illegible] Hawks are ahead with 257 points, of which 166 were received when 52 members successfully passed the written Eagle examination.

In second place is the Frank Hawks squadron of Pepperell, Mass., commanded by Stanley Woods. Following this unit in the order named are:

The Wiley Post squadron, Berlin, N. H., commanded by Donald Graves; the Leaping Lenas; the Golden Wings squadron, Ayer, commanded by Jack Rose, and the Hell Divers squadron, Fall River, commanded by John Anderson.

The wing honor banner is an attractive ornament made of blue satin on which appears the Junior Birdmen insignia with gold, red and white letters. It is attached to a brass rod with bright yellow fringe and tassels.

Any squadron would be proud to possess it as proof of outstanding performance and those who have seen it make a determined fight for the banner each quarter. It is awarded on the basis of activities with meetings, early receipt of reports, new members, contests and other features providing points.

Any Port in Storm

But Boston Woman Found the Storm Safer Than the Port

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

"Any port in a storm." That's the old saying among sailors. But here's a yarn about a port it would be a good idea to stay away from—storm or no storm.

FLOYD GIBBONS

I got this story from MILLICENT GORDON, of 452 Tremont street, Boston, who was born Millicent Eldon, daughter of an old-time sea captain.

Millicent's dad had a three-masted schooner that plied between Jamaica and the Bahamas, down in the West Indies. His family lived aboard the schooner with him, and the hazards and the hardships of seafaring were nothing new to Millicent.

But one day, in the latter part of August, 1908, they ran into weather that was a little bit worse than any they had ever encountered before, and into a port that was even worse than the weather.

It was on a trip from Ragged Island in the Banamas to Jamaica. The schooner was carrying a cargo of salt and she was almost in sight of her destination.

The blue mountain peaks of Jamaica rose up ahead of them and the shores of Haiti were still visible astern. The breeze was fresh. There wasn't a cloud in the sky.

The words were hardly out of his mouth when the storm struck. He left the wheel, leaped forward and grabbed Millicent, who was sitting on a salt barrel near the companionway. As he caught her and thrust her below, a great wave swept the deck. When it was gone, the barrel of salt Millicent had been sitting on—that was gone too.

"After that," says Millicent, "things happened fast. The wind began to scream and the waves rose higher and higher. The mainsail was carried away and the main bow broke in two. The ship rocked like a reed in the wind.

"The boat began to leak and the men worked the pumps all night long. The distress signal was up, but the ships that passed us had all they could do to take care of themselves.

"Dad said if we could get into the little harbor at Caacas, Haiti, we'd be better off. We were beating toward it—were so close to it at times, that we could see the rude buildings and grass thatched huts ashore.

"But getting into the harbor was a different matter. So near and yet so far."

It was two days before they got into the harbor of Caacas, but get in they did. Millicent's dad put the men to work repairing the leaks and the sails while he and the mate rowed ashore.

Millicent went with them, but many a time during the next hour she wished she were back aboard the boat again. The natives of Caacas were hostile. Tall, ferocious looking blacks, dressed in blue gingham smocks slit up the sides, they shrieked and made gestures with rifles and long swords.

One native who spoke English stepped out and told them not to land—that his people didn't like white people. He told them to go back to their boat and someone would come out and see what they wanted.

Back they went. About two hours later a boat full of natives came out. The ship needed food and canvas. The natives supplied food that was unfit to eat, and cheap canvas at prices that were little short of robbery.

When they had brought the stuff the natives went back to shore again, but as night fell, Millicent's dad became uneasy. He paced the deck and told his men to keep a sharp watch. They were on an uncivilized part of the Haitian coast and the people were treacherous.

Along about midnight, it happened! Suddenly, out of the black, tropic night a dozen small sail boats surrounded the ship. They were full of drunken natives—drunk on the money Millicent's dad had paid them for rotten food and bad canvas. They stood off from the schooner, waiting their chance.

There wasn't much doubt about what they intended to do. They would kill the crew and take the schooner.

More ghastly things than that have happened on the lawless reaches of the Haitian coast. No one on board slept that night. The men armed themselves and kept watch.

There was just one chance to get away—and that meant entrusting themselves again to the mercies of the storm that was still raging outside the harbor.

"But," says Millicent, "everyone agreed it would be better to die in the storm than to be hacked to pieces by the drunken savages in the boats around them.

By midnight the natives had drunk themselves half into a stupor, and that was what those on the schooner had been waiting for.

They weighed anchor as silently as they could, slipped through a gap in the cordon of boats around them and put out to sea again.

"We jumped from the frying pan into the fire," says Millicent. "The hurricane was still raging. We managed to get away from Caacas, but there our troubles started all over again.

"I was a girl, but I did my part."

The men worked until, one by one, they began to fall exhausted. But the rest of them carried on, crying like babies when their ebbing strength began to fail them. The cabin floor was covered with water and every last man was praying for his life when, at last, they sighted Port au Prince, a civilized town, and a boat came out of the harbor to tow them in.

That was really three adventures in one. I'll pay you ten bucks for just one adventure. Bounce that yarn along.

Tomorrow we'll have another thrilling yarn. Will it be yours?

Floyd Gibbons will pay good money for good TRUE adventure stories. Hundreds of people in Boston and nearby towns have received ten-dollar and hundred-dollar bills for their yarns, and there's no reason why you can't do the same, for, as Floyd says, everybody has had at least one adventure. Archie Levesque of 9 Blackwell street, Montpelier, Vt., won a hundred and ten dollars for the story of his life's biggest moment, and you can do the same. For further details, see the box at the right side of this page.

Chilton Club Will Observe Silver Anniversary

By BETTY ALDEN

JUST TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO this month everyone was interested in the opening of a new club for society women, modelled after the Somerset and other men's social clubs and named after Mary Chilton, who is supposed to have been the first woman to set foot on American soil . . . and on April 4, 1911, the Chilton Club on Commonwealth avenue, thoroughly equipped just like the men's clubs, with squash courts, roof garden and living quarters, was officially opened to its four hundred and fifty charter members . . . all of whom were of [illegible] members of the innermost circle of society . . . no social climbers in the Chilton from that day to this . . .

MRS. MORGAN HARRIS

And so next Wednesday evening the members are giving a large reception to celebrate their "silver" anniversary and some of them are delving into trunks and wardrobes to get out costumes of 1911 to wear to the party . . .

The affair will be almost an exact repetition of the informal housewarming which was held in the same building 25 years ago . . . Many of the charter members of the club, who attended the first party, will also be at this one, and in some cases wearing the same gowns . . .

Some of these original members who are prominent in social affairs today include Mrs. Samuel D. Warren, Mrs. Roger Wolcott, Mrs. Roger S. Warner, whose daughter, Rachael Warner, is president of the Junior League . . . Mrs. William B. Rogers of Sherborn, whose husband owned the house on Commonwealth avenue which the Chilton bought and remodelled for its clubhouse . . . Mrs. Alexander Whiteside, Mrs. John S. Ames, mother of this season's debutante Rebecca . . . Clara Endicott Sears who has written several books . . . Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, whose husband was formerly Secretary of the Navy . . . Mrs. James J. Storrow, well known philanthropist whose beautiful villa in Bermuda is a rendezvous for vacationing Bostonians during the winter . . . and Eleo Sears, who needs no introduction . . .

Also Mrs. James Lawrence, Mrs. Amor Hollingsworth, Mrs. George Lee, Mrs. James Jackson, Mrs. Horatio Lamb, Mrs. Matthew Luce, Mrs. Samuel Hoar, Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, Mrs. John S. Lawrence, whose daughters, Isabel and Mrs. Harrison Gardner danced with King Edward VIII on his famous visit to the North Shore, Mrs. Gordon Prince, Mrs. Neal Rantoul and Mrs. Richard M. Saltonstall . . .

Debs to Usher at Harvard Play

THE HARVARD DRAMATIC CLUB is borrowing an idea from the Instrumental Clubs in having debutantes serve as ushers at their affairs . . . for the boys tell us that at their large performances of the London success, "The Wind and the Rain" at the Peabody Playhouse, April 30, and May 1 and 2, they will have Mary Jane Dewey, Kay Baker, Nancy Wellington, Peggy Blake, Catherine Richardson, Nancy Byron, and Barbara [illegible] . . . to be usherettes . . .

Libby Wentworth, Faith [illegible], [illegible] Kerts and Ava and Helen Lang also have boy friends in the Dramatic Club which sort of automatically gives them an opportunity to help with the spring production . . .

But unlike another Harvard undergraduate club, the Hasty Pudding, the Dramatic Club boys have not undertaken to play feminine leads. Isabella Gardner, Lois Hill and Bettina Gray are in their cast and Paul Sturges, Paul Killiam, Jr., Bruce Fernald, John Barnard, John Flower and Norton Goodwin are playing the masculine roles . . .

Final Morning of Diversion

MRS. WILLIAM DANA ORCUTT declared an "extra dividend" on her Mornings of Diversion yesterday by inviting all the subscribers to be her guests at a final lecture in the Somerset ballroom . . .

Miss Elinor Hughes, the speaker, gave her audience some very interesting and informative comments on contemporary plays and their stars and, as usual at all the Mornings, the sociable members had a chance to visit and chat before the lecture, while bouillon was being served . . .

In addition to being a pleasant entertainment for her friends, the Morning likewise served as a farewell party for both Mr. and Mrs. Orcutt, who are sailing on May 2 for a six-weeks' vacation in England . . . The hostess wore a springy hat of coarse navy straw with a cluster of rambler roses on the crown and a navy dress with a carved buckle to match the roses . . .

Junior hostesses came with great eagerness and gladly helped to serve bouillon, usher guests to their seats or just make themselves generally useful . . . Mrs. William C. Cox wore a silk suit of a biscuit color which is just a shade lighter than her well tanned skin . . .

Mrs. John E. Yerxa chose the same color for a short jacket to top her navy tailored suit . . . and Mrs. Henry McBurney Parker wore a nice cocoa color tailored suit . . . The new striped men's wear skirt and black fitted jacket was Mrs. Morgan Harris' choice for her spring morning costume . . .

Mrs. Philip Saltonstall, who is to be married on April 30 to Dr. Joel Goldthwaite, found herself the center of a group of friends extending their best wishes . . . Though as part of their jobs with the Theater Guild, Becky Hobbs and Lavinia Sabine are pretty well up on what's what in the theatrical world, they were among the most interested listeners, and after luncheon they were guests at the small luncheon given by Mrs. Orcutt at the Lafayette for Miss Hughes.

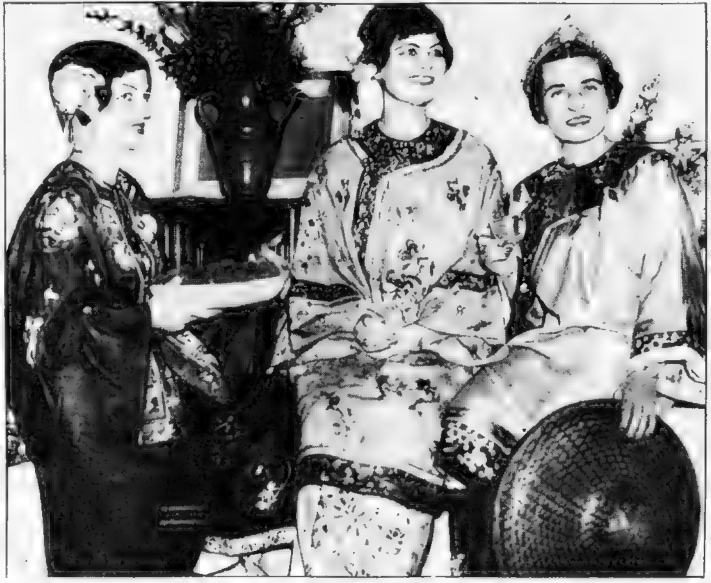
Milton Folk at Lecture

Evidently many socialite parents have been seriously pondering the problems of school versus modern civilization as they were very quick to grasp the opportunity of hearing Dr. Frederick H. Allen, director of the Philadelphia Child Guidance Clinic, who will speak in Milton, this evening, on "Today's Challenge to Parents and Schools."

This event is sponsored by the Brush Hill School and is being planned by such live wires as Mrs. Henry S. Forbes and Mrs. Theodore T. Whitney, Jr.

Coffee will be served before the lecture with Mrs. U. Haskell Crocker, Mrs. Harold B. Garland, Mrs. George C. Marsden and Mrs. Arthur B. Perry pouring.

ORIENTAL FESTIVAL GUESTS WEAR COSTUMES AT COPLEY SOCIETY EVENT



MARY MILLER HELEN MOORE MRS. MORGAN RHEES

THE "BOARDING HOUSE REACH" is probably unknown in the Orient, but these pseudo Japanese misses were wishing for chop sticks so they could all pitch into the big bowl of sweet-breads which they shared at the Oriental Festival given by the Copley Society. Sharing in the refreshments are Mary Miller, Helen Moore and Mrs. Morgan Rhees.

Three Bridge Benefits Saturday

"What do you bid' will be the query at the three bridges slated for Saturday afternoon. Three active organizations are planning the parties and three worthy causes are the beneficiaries of the affairs.

St. Francis Xavier [illegible] at Miriam Island [illegible] benefits from the luncheon and bridge at Schrafft's restaurant. Committee for this philanthropic get-together includes Mrs. Frank Gavin, Mrs. Alexander Beaton, Mrs. John McCarthy, Mrs. Joseph Sweeney, Mrs. James L. Murphy, Mrs. Edward Burger and Ann Merrick.

St. John's Chapter of Notre Dame alumnae will be host to Notre Dame Federation at a tea at the Roxbury Academy of Notre Dame on the same day.

Mrs. Frederick Lafferty and Teresa Heasley will pour. Assisting them are Mary Lynch, Mrs. Frederick McArdle, Mrs. John O'Brien, Mrs. Martin Finn, Mrs. Margaret Mellon, Anna and Sarah Fallon and Mrs. Teresa Leach.

The third birthday of Rosary Academy League is the cause of the dessert bridge at Rosary Academy auditorium, the day after tomorrow.

Josephine Shean of Belmont is the enterprising chairman of the benefit. Serving on the reception committee are Mrs. J. V. Halligan, Mrs. J. P. Hennessey, Mrs. George J. Murray, Mrs. J. J. Brennan, Mrs. Fred C. Leonard, Mrs. John J. Lynch, Mrs. Arthur Erlandson, Mrs. Francis Lanigan, Mrs. J. Joseph Stankard and Mrs. Charles Geilfuss.

B. C. Cambridge Club Plans Style Show

The worm has turned . . . men are putting on fashion shows now. At least that's what the Boston College Club of Cambridge is doing Saturday afternoon to entertain the ladies of its auxiliary committee at a tea at the Hotel Continental.

Of course, the men won't model the clothes, but they seem to be the motivating power behind the idea.

Pourers at the tea will be Mrs. John Lacey Delaney, Mrs. Charles F. Hurley, Mrs. Cornelius O'Connor, Mrs. Francis X. Mahoney, Mrs. Francis Casey, Mrs. William F. Foley and Mrs. Francis J. Roche.

Also serving at the tea will be Marie Barry, Helen Dugan, Hazel Donohey, Rosemary Gorman, Dorothy Hockman, Elizabeth Delaney, Anne and Elizabeth Dempsey and Clare and Eleanor Fallon.

Pay Honor To Vote Expert

A LARGE GROUP of women interested in international problems gathered at the Women's City Club last evening for a dinner in honor of Miss Sarah Wambaugh, daughter of Professor and Mrs. Eugene Wambaugh of Cambridge.

Miss Wambaugh, one of the leading living authorities on plebiscites, and author of several important works on the subject, is best known for her work as technical adviser to the League of Nations for the plebiscite in the Saar Basin, last year.

Following the dinner, Miss Wambaugh discussed the turbulent conditions in Europe, and expressed the opinion that given the proper backing by all the powers, the League of Nations could successfully settle any international problem.

Mrs. John T. Grandin looked lovely in a bright black and white flowered print. Mrs. Wilder Wheelwright also chose black as the color for her gown of cellophane velvet. The gown of gold metal cloth worn by Mrs. Henry Ewer made a fashing contrast against the background of the predominantly black costumes. Others at the head table were Mrs. Alexander Steinert, Mrs. Henry Stickney, and Miss Mabel Jones.

Among those at the other tables were Mrs. William Lloyd Garrison in a black velvet dinner gown; Mrs. Albert C. Titcomb, Miss Harriet Parsons, Mrs. David Howie, Miss Mary Bradford, Miss Emily E. Gund, Mrs. Herbert White, Mrs. James J. Greenough, and Mrs. Chapin Daniels.

Cobb's Daughter, Husband Split

Hollywood, April 23 (INS)—Elizabeth Cobb Brody, novelist daughter of Irvin S. Cobb, and her socially prominent New York husband, Alton A. Brody, have separated, it was learned here today, but there is still a chance of reconciliation.

Peggy Wright Engaged

DEBUTANTES of this past winter are all interested in the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Wright of Waban of the engagement of their debutante daughter, Peggy, to Winthrop Lane Brown, son of Mrs. Edwin Hacker Brown of Minneapolis and Milton, and the late Mr. Brown.

Miss Wright was graduated from Miss May's School last June and is now attending Miss Amy Sacker's School of Design. She made her debut last November at a tea at her parents' home in Waban.

Mr. Brown attended the Blake School in Minneapolis, Milton Academy and Harvard.

We Show Actual Photographs
TO LET YOU SEE THE QUICK-ACTING PROPERTY OF REAL BAYER ASPIRIN

DROP A BAYER ASPIRIN TABLET INTO A GLASS OF WATER
BY THE TIME IT HITS THE BOTTOM OF THE GLASS IT IS DISINTEGRATING.

Quick Relief
from Headaches, pains of rheumatism, neuritis

The old adage says, "what you see you believe." So the scientist, pictured above, shows you two actual photographs to prove the quick action of Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

Look at them, and you will see one reason why Scientists rate BAYER ASPIRIN among the fastest agents, now known or ever known, for the relief of headaches and pains of neuritis, neuralgia and rheumatism.

You'll see that a Bayer Aspirin tablet, dropped into a glass of water, starts to disintegrate, or dissolve, before it hits the bottom of the glass. Hence, is ready to go to work almost instantly you take one. For what happens in that glass happens in your stomach when you take a BAYER ASPIRIN tablet. Relief comes in few minutes.

Countless thousands know that about BAYER ASPIRIN. Know by experience that it brings the quick relief you want when in distress.

Keep this in mind the next time your work or play is handicapped by a bad headache, neuritis or rheumatic pain. And ask for Bayer Aspirin by its full name "BAYER ASPIRIN" when you buy. Learn for yourself how fast you can get relief.

LEWIS HANEY ON TREND

Making Things PEOPLE REALLY WANT Aids Employment

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, April 23—A Pittsburgh reader asks me to write about "The Theory of Plenty" and reduced prices as a means of restoring prosperity.

* * *

"Plenty" means having all that is worthwhile to produce. We would have plenty of everything that we can make if we had all we wanted, up to the point where it costs us more to make things than the benefits or enjoyments we get out of them.

The "theory of plenty" is just the economist's idea of "production," which is making scarce things abundant. We could make air and water, but we don't, because we already have plenty of them and cost of making them would not be worthwhile. We don't have all the automobiles, houses, shoes and meat we want, so they are said to be "scarce," and we try to make more of them. But we do this only when we want more than it costs us to make them.

Another way of putting the same thing is that we produce things that are dear (high priced) in order to make them cheap. There is no use in making things abundant unless they can be sold at such low prices that many people can buy them. The cheaper things are, the more of them we can have. But again, we must remember that the price must cover the cost, or the production is not worthwhile.

* * *

The real basis of industry is to provide us with things that are more or less scarce, and hence high priced, so that they may be used or consumed more abundantly—and therefore at lower prices.

So the more abundant and cheap things are, the better—as long as the cost of producing them does not outweigh the satisfaction we get from consuming them.

When, however, we make more of a thing than can be sold at a competitive profit, we say there is "overproduction." The producer loses money, and the real meaning of this is that we are then using our costly labor and savings and enterprise in a way that causes a plenty that does not pay. The costs of laboring and saving and business risks outweigh our enjoyment of the product.

Thus you can see how dangerous it is to give work just for the sake of the work. The trouble is that this results in making things that are not worth the cost of making. Most of us don't work for work's sake, but for the products it helps to make. And if the products are not wanted enough to cover the cost of producing them, we have a kind of over-production. We have a kind of plenty, but not of things that are scarce and important to us.

* * *

Here lies the beauty of the profits system and private enterprise. Individual employers seek to make a profit, and that means making things that people want. In that sense, they seek to produce only the things that are worth-while—that will cover costs.

And if they compete, as they can and should, they will make as much of the product as they can while still getting any profit. Thus prices tend to be as low as possible.

This means a maximum employment of labor in worthwhile ways. Labor is required in producing all products, so the more products that can be made and sold profitably, the more labor employed.

But note that the products must be sold, and sold at a profit. Otherwise neither they nor the labor is worthwhile, the industry does not pay, and production ought to be curtailed or cease. This will happen, if it is left to the control of freely determined prices and profits. (Price-fixing and political medding are largely responsible for over-production and crises.)

This is economic theory. It is also common sense.

* * *

As things are made more plentiful and cheap, the consumer's dollar goes further. (1) It buys more of the things we already have, and (2) it becomes available for new things. Since there is no known limit to human wants, there is no danger of producing too much—if only production is limited by cost and wants, and therefore directed toward products that are worthwhile.

When mistakes are made, or sudden changes in wants or costs occur, production has to be readjusted. Then temporary unemployment develops, and relief has to be provided. But the surest and quickest way out, is to encourage worthwhile (profitable) production, which means making scarce things more plentiful.

RUSSIAN Buying in U.S. JUMPS

200 PER CENT IN YEAR

New York, April 23—Reeve Schley, president of the American - Russian Chamber of Commerce, reported a 200 per cent increase in 1935, over 1934, in the purchases by the Soviet government in the United States.

Addressing the annual business meeting and luncheon of the chamber, Schley, vice-president of the Chase National Bank, said Soviet purchases in the United States for 1935 totaled more than $42,000,000, as against $14,500,000 in 1934.

Officials of the chamber have expressed the opinion this increase results, to a large extent, from the trade agreement signed last July 13 in Moscow between Foreign Affairs Commissionar Maxim Litvinoff and William C. Bullitt, the American ambassador. He said:

"The chamber feels that this agreement met a mutual need and as we are for all things which will promote fair trade between the United States and the U. S. S. R., we can hope in our official capacity that this agreement will be continued for another year, even though its scope is not widened."

* * *

Confirming to some extent reports that the Russian government plans to extend its purchases into new fields, Schley said the American-Russian chamber was giving aid in arranging exhibits in Moscow of American products.

Ivan V. Boyeff, chairman of the Board of Amtorg, the Soviet trading agency in the United States, was the guest of honor at the luncheon.

Boyeff said that, although his country has atttained "economic independence," the policy of the Soviet Union is distinctly opposed to isolation from the world markets. He said:

"We are ready to expand economic relations with any country which has a sincere desire to develop such relations."

Crude Output Gains

Production of crude oil by Gulf Oil Corp., including royalty oil, in 1935 was 64,031,641 barrels, W. L. Mellon, chairman, and J. F. Drake, president, state in the annual report. Net production, excluding royalty oil, was 53,273,155 barrels, an increase of 3,688,938 barrels over 1934.

Dividend

Madison Square Garden Corp. declared an extra dividend of 10 cents and regular quarterly dividend of 15 cents, both payable May 29 to stock of record May 15.

Bristol-Myers

Bristol-Myers Co. declared usual "extra" of 10 cents and regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents on the common, payable June 1 to stock of record May 11.

ALTER Stock Assent RULE

BALDWIN EXCEPTION

New York, April 23—The New York Stock Exchange has adopted a new policy toward corporations, which are undergoing reorganizations under the provisions of sections 77 or 77B, which does not require them to divulge "for a reasonable time" the amount of securities stamped as assenting to a plan of reorganization.

This information was contained in a brief announcement which explained that the "action was taken because of the fact that, in the opinion of the committee (on stock list) such information was of no value during the early days of deposit for stamping."

The announcement followed closely on the news that an exception had been granted to Baldwin Locomotive Works, whose assented securities were listed on the exchange on April 9, under the previously existing rule on assents which required reorganization managers to report any increase in assents as soon as it occurred.

The Baldwin company will not have to report the amount of assents, under the new rule, until May 1.

DAILY NOTICE PREVIOUSLY

Heretofore the exchange has required daily notice of all changes in the amounts of securities listed. These changes are published daily in a list given out by the exchanges. Before listing securities like stamped stocks or certificates of deposit, which originate in other securities, the exchange sets a proportion of the amount of outstanding original securities which must be attained and the number of security owners in order to insure a free market.

The amount of Baldwin issues which have assented to the proposed reorganization plan were not disclosed when they were listed and have not been since.

HISTORIC CUSTOM

Baldwin assented stock sold for the first time on the stock exchange yesterday at 3¾, slightly higher than the unassented stock. Assented bonds have sold on the Curb at slightly higher levels than the unassented. There have been no recorded trades in the assented preferred stock.

It has been the common practice of reorganizers to establish a market for deposited securities and also to keep secret the amount of assents under their plans in order to dispel any doubts of the popularity of the plan.

Securities with assents stamped on them are at present exempt from registration by the Securities & Exchange Commission. Preparation of the necessary forms is under way and it is expected that they will be ready shortly.

Bar Silver

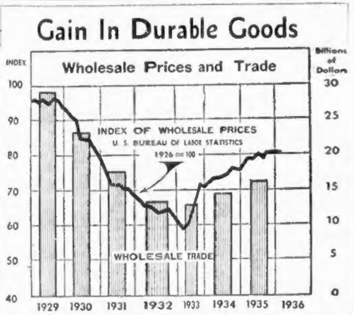
BANK DEPOSITS



Wholesale trade in 1935 aggregated $16,287,000,000 compared with $14,710,000,000 in 1934. Notable gains were made in the durable goods fields. Electrical goods increased 30 per cent over 1934; plumbing and heating equipment, 50 per cent; lumber and building materials, 29 per cent, and metals, 23 per cent. Wholesale prices, as measured by the Bureau of Labor Statistics index, has shown a tendency to flatten out during the past three months. This was due to the decline in the food group and to some extent in farm prices.

Wall Street Sidelights

New York, April 23—Nickel Plate Railroad, more formally known as the New York, Chicago & St. Louis, has been sharing in the brisk activity in the automotive, steel and allied industries this year.

In addition to moving materials for manufacture and fabrication of automobiles and steel, the road has enjoyed a substantial coal movement, due jointly to improved output of industries along its lines and the cold weather which increased use of the fuel. The road's freight traffic currently is running better than 16 per cent above a year ago, and for the first fifteen or sixteen weeks of the year it averaged over 8 per cent above the like 1935 period. Nickel Plate's net income of $450,122 for the first quarter was more than double the $171,293 for the like 1935 period and equalled $1.25 a share on the 6 per cent preferred stock, against 47 cents on the preferred in the like 1935 quarter. In the year 1935 the road earned $3.10 on preferred, against 16 cents on preferred in 1934.

London Higher on Recent Openings

It is interesting to observe, in connection with reports of foreign liquidation here, that during the local price reaction, quotations for American securities dealt in London before the opening in New York have generally been higher than the previous New York closings. This would tend to indicate that liquidation is not originating on the other side. Tuesday, for instance, despite Monday's New York break, U. S. Steel sold in London at the approximate American equivalent of 67 7-16 against Monday's New York close of 67⅛. American Telephone in London was 163 1-32 against its Monday close here of 162⅞ and General Motors 66 7-32 compared with the New York price of 66⅛.

Survey Disproves European Selling

Each time the stock market has declined coincident with new developments in European affairs brokerage house commentators have reported considerable liquidation for foreign account. Similar pressure was associated with the decline this week but a canvas of local firms doing a large business for foreigners disproves this contention. These authorities state Europe has been a small buyer on balance in recent sessions although the volume of transactions has dwindled materially. Under these circumstances it appears that Americans have been the largest sellers of stocks recently, presumably because of the vulnerability of a few specialties following publication of disappointing first quarter reports.

Eastern Rails Plan Fare Rate Fight

Washington, April 23 (AP)—While a group of eastern railroads were reported making plans for a court attack on its ruling reducing passenger fares, the Interstate Commerce Commission moved today to expedite the filing of new rates in conformity with the order.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad already has filed the new low rates of two cents a mile in coaches and three cents a mile in Pullmans. Other major eastern roads were expected to challenge a commission decision, designating these rates, in the courts.

In an order today, the commission authorized railroads to file "blanket supplements" to their existing passenger rates to put the lower fares into effect. Under the usual procedure, the roads would have to file entirely new rate schedules.

The order reducing passenger fares is effective June 2—the same date on which the new B. & O. rates will go into effect.

7.5 Per Cent Increase In '35

By Associated Press

Washington, April 23—The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation reports aggregate resources of insured commercial banks of Massachusetts mounted 5.4 per cent in 1935.

Assets totaled $2,006,903,000 on December 31, 1935. Total deposits were $1,712,965,000, an increase of 7.5 per cent.

The report said aggregate resources of Vermont banks on Dec. 31 last were $126,916,000 and total deposits $100,171,000, an increase of 5.4 per cent. Assets of $16,927,000 were in cash.

Aggregate resources in Rhode Island's insured commercial banks were $261,869,000 a 1 per cent increase over the previous year, while total deposits were $224,706,000, a 3.6 increase. Assets of $48,728,000 were in cash.

New Hampshire's insured commercial banks on the reporting date had aggregate resources of $85,081,000, $15,960,000 of it in cash. Total deposits were $69,491,000, a 7 per cent increase.

Gall Flays Wagner Labor Act

New York, April 23 (AP)—John C. Gall, associate counsel of the National Association of Manufacturers, said today that the Wagner labor act "has passed from the ballyhoo stage to the alibi stage."

"It is now exactly where the blue eagle and the recovery act were prior to the Schechter decision," he said in an address prepared for delivery at the annual convention of the National Metal Trades' Association.

"Based on false premises and aimed at one party to the employment relationship alone, the act never held any possibilities except for promoting discord.

"Its failure is now clear to all except its sponsors and those who are said to administer it.

"If any proof of the failure of the Wagner act were needed, it can be found in the recent appearance of members of the National Labor Relations Board before the LaFollette sub-committee of the Senate, where they presented various alibis and excuses for the failure of the act, and, as was expected, laid upon employers the blame for an inevitable situation."

MARCH TIN Exports Increase

Exports of tin by the five principal producing countries of the world during March amounted to 11,399 tons, against 10,200 in February and 11,634 in January, according to International Tin Research & Development Council.

March exports were lower than the permissable of 13,445 tons, with Bolivia noticeably below its quota.

Bangor & Aroostook

Bangor & Aroostook Railroad declared regular quarterly dividends of 62 cents a share on the common stock and $1.75 a share on the preferred, both payable July 1 to stock of record May 29.

Jackson & Curtis

The directors of Jackson & Curtis Securities Corp. declared regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 per share on the preferred stock, payable May 1, to stock of record April 21.

IMPORTS Show Rapid GAIN

TARIFF RATES OVERCOME

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
(Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service.)

New York, April 23—The test of the pudding is in the eating. Secretaries Hull and Wallace have expounded the doctrine that we must import more so that we can export more.

The reciprocal trade agreements have had the net effect of reducing American protective tariff rates.

Trade figures for the first quarter indicate that imports have been rising relatively much faster than exports, and that the so-called favorable balance of trade in goods has been converted into an unfavorable balance.

In the first three months, Americans imported $4,384,000 more goods than they exported, whereas in the corresponding quarter of 1935 $27,412,000 more were exported than imported, and in the first quarter of 1934 $79,591,000 more was exported than imported. As a matter of fact the authentic situation is worse than the figures indicate because the official method tends to understate imports.

The foregoing figures relate only to goods. The deficit is of course greatly expanded when invisible items, including tourist expenditures, immigrant remittances, freight and insurance are added. Moreover, the disparity becomes still further magnified when imports of gold and silver are added to imports of goods and services.

The Department of Commerce has not yet released the American figures. They are promised for next Monday.

When released the figures must be read with a grain of salt, because the figures for invisible items are based on mere estimates and sampling.

It has been wisely proposed that a formal custom house procedure be set up for financial and service transactions, so that we can in the future have authentic data on total transactions vis-a-vis the outside world.

One would be to use these growing foreign investments as a basis for settling the unpaid war debts. Foreign governments could take over the securities, and turn them over to the United States Treasury, thus obviating the difficulties of international transfer.

Wall St. Hears

New York, April 23 (INS)—That Montgomery Ward (M) in the quarter ending April 30 will show between 45 and 50 cents a share.

That first half earnings of Gotham Silk Hosiery (GHM) should approximate 40 cents a common share.

That full preference dividend payments by Sharp & Dohme (SDH) cannot be viewed with certainty.

That Certain-teed products (CRT) in the initial quarter had a considerably larger loss than in the same 1935 period.

THE WEATHER FORECAST

FORECAST TILL 8 P. M. FRIDAY

For Boston and vicinity—Generally fair tonight and Friday; continued cool tonight with lowest temperature near 40 degrees and possibly scattered frosts; warmer Friday; gentle to moderate westerly winds.

Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont—Fair tonight and probably Friday; not much change in temperature.

Eastern New York—Fair tonight; Friday partly cloudy; rising temperature in south portion, and probably followed by showers in north portion in afternoon or at night.

GENERAL CONDITIONS

There are unsettled, showery conditions in the Middle Gulf States, but elsewhere east of the Rocky Mountains fair weather prevails. The pressure is above 30.30 inches from Iowa eastward to New York, and is above 30.50 inches in western Manitoba. A trough of low pressure extends from Arizona northeastward to Colorado, with lowest reading 29.76 inches at Phoenix, and 29.78 at Denver. Light rain has fallen in Middle Rocky Mountain Plateau States, and snow in Montana. Temperatures near freezing were prevalent during the night in interior-northern districts, and sub-zero readings in western Quebec and the Hudson Bay region. Modified polar air covers the United States east of the Rockies. Temperatures have not changed much in this mass over New England, the Lake region, the Ohio Valley and the southwestern Plains, but over the southeastern States temperatures have fallen 8 to 12 degrees.

N. E. TRADE

Hampered BY POOR Weather

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

Unsatisfactory weather conditions were the bugaboo of New England business for nearly five months but now full volume is being obtained in nearly all sections.

Winter storms, spring floods and April rains would ordinarily conspire to halt recovery progress and it is to the credit of this section that the worst was only a slackening of the upward pace.

The latest blow dealt by the weather fell on retailers. The cold, damp conditions of the first half of this month hampered them to a considerable extent. Now, however, as important manufacturing and industrial lines swing into an active period, with a clear weather road promised, improvement should be reported and trade indices should reach for new highs.

* * *

Shoe and leather lines are facing a brighter outlook with improved weather. Heavy stocks and abnormal production schedules became a matter for concern when consumer buying was slowed down in the late winter and early spring. In the past few weeks Dun & Bradstreet report the call for footwear to replenish sales has increased, materially reducing the stocks of some wholesalers and encouraging manufacturers to speed up production. In the hide and skin market the trade service says there is a stronger tone and buyers are a little more inclined to purchase all grades of hides.

* * *

Notebook: Budd Manufacturing, with the financing out of the way, seems determined to climb to higher levels whether the market as a whole likes it or not...As we have pointed out, the company is a leading unit in a new trend industry and as such is deserving of constant attention...And investors in trimming down accounts in anticipation of an intermediate top should consider the wisdom of holding commitments in such situations intact...At present this applies to aviations, diesels and air conditioning groups...The first named alone having recently been in disfavor here.

* * *

The market has had a technical pump-up and now by a subsequent secondary reaction should furnish the answer to questions on the longer range outlook. A breaking of Tuesday's low by industrials would mean a testing of the very important March 13 bottom. Which, taken with the rail low of the same day, represents the last line of bull defenses. And, if these are broken by the prescribed amount, the way will be cleared for a full-blown intermediate correction carrying from 20 to 40 per cent below the highest of the 1935-1936 upswing.

* * *

This and That: The March 13 industrial closing low was 150.42 and that of the rails 45.86 . . . A breaking by 1.01 would be hailed by some as a bear signal . . . There are some who think the low closing of February 28 should be taken for the industrials . . . That is at 149.81 . . . Traders who have not trimmed down accounts as suggested might as well consider doing so if the outlined bearish action takes place . . . And those who cannot afford to carry any stocks down, no matter how light their burden, should be ready to protect themselves . . . And realize losses now will be compensated for by later purchases at lower levels.

LARGE WOOL Imports Continue

Heavy imports, especially of wool, continue at the port of Boston. Imports in the week ended April 18, 1936, totaled $2,773,345, against $1,928,267 last year and duties collected were $539,940, against $355,759. During the week 2,336,006 pounds of wool were imported, compared with 354,279 pounds a year ago.

In the period from July 1, 1935, to date, there have been 89,450,507 pounds of wool imported at Boston, against 9,585,705 pounds in the same period a year ago.

STOCKS Price Trend LOWER

STEELS, RAILS HEAVY

New York, April 23—A backward push was given stock market leaders today, many retracing their Wednesday's upturn for losses of fractions to 4 or more points.

Heaviness of the rails and steels, in particular, tended to promote selling in other departments of the list. A few of the rubbers and oils were resistant. The activity picked up on the reversal.

Principal losers near the start of the fourth hour included Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, U. S. Steel, eBthlehem, National Steel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Auburn, Case, Anaconda, ohns-Manville, Western Union and North American.

The utilities were moderately resistant. Chrysler went through the 100 mark in early dealings, but slipped later. General Motors also retreated.

Bonds turned in an irregular performance, as did commodities. The French franc was slightly firmer in terms of the dollar.

Prior to the formal announcement, after the close of the market, forecasts of Chrysler's first quarter earnings placed them at about $2.50 a share as against $2.12 in the similar period last year, the highest for any corresponding months in the history of the company.

Market Factors

A good many traders were said to be still clinging to the safety zones, waiting for the outcome of the French elections, the possible devaluation of the franc, settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian war and the Rhineland controversy, the fate of the new corporation tax bill in Congress and numerous imponderables.

A substantial increase in profits for the food manufacturers was expected in the current quarter owing to increased volume of business and lower costs. In two weeks to April 7, the bureau of labor retail food index declined 1 per cent to 78.9 per cent of the 1923-25 average. The composite, however, was up 2.9 per cent from a year ago.

Hardware retail sales at present were estimated to be running about 15 per cent ahead of the 1935 level, but a much higher rate of expansion is anticipated over the remainder of the year.

For the week of April 17, the Bank of France reported another substantial loss in its gold holdings. In this period the decline amounted to 484,000,000 francs. At the same time currency circulation fell 580,000,000 francs.

At the beginning of foreign exchange transactions the French franc was .00½ of a cent firmer at 6.58½ cents and sterling was up ⅛ of a cent at $4.93½.

Comments of Brokers

Small further gains now would probably meet resistance and prices turn downward for a test of Tuesday's lows. Believe new trading purchases had better be delayed for such a secondary setback rather than made on the present rally.—H. D. Comer—Paine, Webber & Co.

The technical correction that the market is experiencing, and the remote possibility of general weakness that could develop as a result of non-recurring influences, should afford exceptional opportunities for the speculator for making commitments in issues that possess intrinsic merit and near term fundamental improvement. — R. S. Feigus — Prentice, Blauner & Brady.

After reducing commitments to conservative proportions, we would suggest remaining on the side lines while awaiting a more complete testing of the low levels of March. —J. E. Molloy — Hornblower & Weeks.

Traders would seem to be justified in maintenance of a constructive attitude in view of the market's resistance around the March lows and the current favorable business news—J. S. Wilson—Josephthal & Co.

So far as the bond market is concerned it does not seem that a change in the money rate conditions is impending, and institutions whose incomes have reached the vanishing point as short term and highly liquid securities have advanced to all time record highs are being forced for the sake of yields to buy longer bonds—F. H. Richardson—Southgate & Co.

The improvement in the market's internal position undoubtedly has played a major role in expanding the rally since then and may well permit a further betterment in the price structure, subject to only temporary pauses—J. S. Bache & Co.

Consideration of various technical factors probably warrants maintenance of a bullish opinion unless this week's lows are broken on accelerated volume. — G. M.-P. Murphy & Co.

'GAS' Price CUTTING

APPEARS IN SEVERAL AREAS

New York, April 23—In contrast with the situation on the Pacific Coast, where gasoline prices were further advanced recently to the best levels of the year, 4½ cents a gallon higher than in March, price cutting has appeared in several of the important areas on the Atlantic seaboard, according to the Standard Statistics Company, of New York.

This price weakness has reflected the rise in gasoline stocks to record levels, as a result of sizeable runs of crude oil to refineries in recent months to supply the increasing demand for fuel oil.

As of March 31, gasoline stocks stood at 74,000,000 barrels, 8,000,000 barrels higher than a year earlier. On the other hand, gasoline demand has established successive new peaks.

Consumption in the first quarter is estimated at 96,163,000 barrels, 9.3 per cent higher than a year ago, while gains of 6.2 per cent and 6.5 per cent, are expected for the second and third quarters.

Gains of these proportions would care adequately for present supplies of gasoline, if refinery operations are not further increased.

Although the oil industry usually increases refinery output substantially during the heavy consumption season in the summer, it is indicated that every effort will be made to prevent a further sizeable gain in gasoline stocks.

Washington Notebook

Washington, April 23 (AP)—The Department of Agriculture says marketings of farm products probably will continue larger than a year ago at least until 1936 crops begin to move to the market.

It points out supplies on farms April 1 were larger than on the comparable 1935 date. An estimated gain of $100,000,000 in total cash farm income in the first quarter of this year was attributed to larger marketings.

Improvement in building activity was mirrored in heavier shipments of bricks in the first two months of this year, as reported to the Census Bureau.

Shipments of common brick by 437 plants increased to 101,219,000 from 76,572,000 in the comparable period last year. Stocks on hand at the end of February amounted to 407,548,000, an increase of about 20,000,000 over the 1935 figure.

Reds PRESS RELIEF Drive

By B. C. Forbes

"Huh!"

That, grunted bellicosely as I entered the taxi, told that the driver was itching to explode.

"What's on your mind?" I asked, coaxingly.

"Plenty!"

I waited.

"What do you think?" he growled. "They want me to give up work and go on relief."

"Who?" I asked.

"A couple of —— Communists. They've been at me twice. They tell me I'm a fool to work 12 hours a day to earn small pay. They say they get more on relief than I make. They say I could draw down four dollars a day for enough days every week to do as I do now."

Another "Huh!"

"I don't want charity!" he exclaimed. "I have a wife and two kids and I want to work for them. My wife is a great manager. If I knock out better than $20 some weeks, she has something over for extras. But she manages to get along when I have a poor week and don't bring home more than $16 to $18.

"I'd rather average $20 a week by working 12 hours a day than depend on charity—for that's all this family relief or what they call work relief—ha ha—amounts to."

I diplomatically tapped his political views.

"They're spending too much money," he shot back. "They're running the country into a hole. I'm not an educated guy, but I know enough to know that all this throwing away of money is going to end in terrible taxes. And I know that this is going to make food and everything else dearer."

Then he added: "This throwing around of money by the politicians can't go on for ever. Somebody has to earn it. And you bet your life working folks like myself will have part of their earnings taken away from them some way or other."

This followed: "The government should throw every blasted Communist out of the country or into jail. The government should stop spending so much money. If it gave companies a better chance to earn money the taxi business would be better. More people would have money to ride. They would feel better. Everybody who works would be better off.

"The fellows who don't work and don't want to work have had it too almighty soft. Why should any of them get more money for not working or for loafing on some job than I get for being on the street twelve hours a day?"

His parting shot was against "foreigners" who stir up trouble. He can't see why a native-born American shouldn't be given preference over "foreigners."

How many native Americans among the wage earning class will reveal similar dissatisfaction with governmental conditions next November?

One reader, John A. Gellatly, writes:

"The prevalent idea of going to the government for everything, did not get much encouragement until the present administration took over the reins, but it is now appalling. Every boy and young man is gaining the impression from the hot air merchants everywhere that someone owes him a job and some of them have the notion that the world at large owes them a living.

"The thought seems never to be planted any more in the young man that he might use his own ingenuity in creating a job for himself as was the case when I was a youngster some 40 or 50 years ago.

"The doctrine of short hours, high wages, something for nothing, limited production and prosperity through scarcity, is fraught with disaster, and this nation is headed surely for the rocks unless the mental frame of mind of our people is changed."

Money to Loan

"You helped us stay independent!"

"We always paid our own way," a young wife told us, "until sudden illness cut off our income. We'd used up our savings and were all ready to go home for help when a friend suggested you. You loaned us the cash, but better still you helped us stay independent!" . . . We will lend you cash, too, any amount up to $300 and allow you a year or longer to repay.

3 Bids and Proposals

City of Somerville—Engineering Department. P. W. A. Project, Docket No. 7630-C.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

1. The Mayor of the City of Somerville invites sealed proposals for the construction of Sewerage works in Somerville. The Contractor is to furnish all materials and labor to lay an 18-inch Clay Pipe Separate System Sewer in Broadway, Cross Street and Pearl Street. Proposals prepared in accordance with instructions contained in the contract documents, will be received at the office of the City Engineer, City Hall, Somerville, Massachusetts, until 12 Noon, Eastern Standard Time, on Thursday, April 30, 1936, and at that time and place publicly opened and read.

Plans, specifications, and other contract documents may be examined without charge or may be secured at the office of the City Engineer, at the above address, upon the deposit payment of $5.00. Said deposit will be refunded if all documents are returned in good condition on or before the opening date of bids.

Each proposal must be accompanied by a properly certified check on a responsible bank or trust company for the sum of two thousand ($2000.00), made payable to the City of Somerville, Massachusetts.

All checks, except that of the bidder to whom the contract is awarded, will be returned after execution of the contract on demand.

The project is to be financed and constructed under the terms of the National Industrial Recovery Act 1933 and Chapter 366, Mass. Acts of 1933, as amended, and attention is called to the "Construction Regulations" prescribed by the P. W. A.

Attention is called to the fact that minimum wage rates are established for the project, and are set forth in the contract documents.

The office of the United States Employment Bureau designated by the Government for this project is as follows: State Public Employment Office, (O. M. Talbot, Manager), 50 Bow Street, Somerville, Mass.

The right is reserved by the City of Somerville, Massachusetts, acting through its Mayor, to reject any or all bids, or to accept any bid which it deems most advantageous, subject to the approval of the State Director, P. W. A.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of thirty (30) days after the date set for the opening thereof.

A surety bond by a company satisfactory to the State Director, P. W. A., and in an amount equal to one hundred (100) per cent of the contract price will be required from the successful bidder.

LEON G. AYER,
City Engineer.
LESLIE E. KNOX,
Mayor of the City of Somerville.

Frauds Upon Charity

IN every part of the country, on road and streets, the pathetic figure of the jobless man asking the passerby for a bite to eat and a place to sleep, is coming once more painfully into public notice.

As the Federal bureaucracy in Washington, appalled by its own lavish expenditures from a depleted treasury that is no magic horn of plenty, cuts down on its relief expenditures, the unemployed in their helpless misery turn once more in increasing numbers to private charity.

Every man thus forced to beg for himself and his starving family is the victim of the political favorite who holds down a sinecure on the Works Progress Administration rolls, because he is fortunate enough to be in "right" with his political boss.

A dollar will do only a dollar's work. The dollar that has been spent to keep the political pet on the warm end of a pay check cannot be spent for the relief of the destitute.

To these sordid political purposes, as an election of President of the United States, and of Congress, and of thousands of minor office-holders, approaches, has the charity of the whole people, through their Congress, been prostituted.

Charges of graft and political favoritism have been made on the floor of Congress by responsible men. They are not partisan charges. Some of them have come, and not the least damaging, from a Democratic member of the Senate who has been identified with the New Deal since he entered that body.

One Democratic senator has declared that in his State the Works Progress Administrators have even gone to the extreme of favoritism by segregating Democratic and Republican physicians, with a view to having injured employes treated by the former.

Every increase in salary for a "higher up" has meant a decrease in actual relief for the "lower down."

Every dollar of relief money expended for any political purpose whatever is a fraud upon charity.

Every dollar needlessly spent on the boondoggler, is a dollar of which the friendless family without political pull is deprived.

The Senate owes it to the country, to those who are being deprived of relief, and to itself, to examine this record.

The Blank Check

THERE is agreement between most Democrats and Republicans in Congress on one thing—that the four billion 800 million dollar blank check given President Roosevelt last year was a bad idea.

This fact would not seem to presage favorable action on the President's current request for another blank check for one billion 500 millions more.

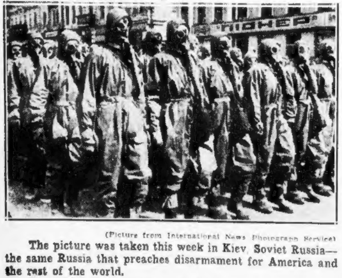
Thoughtful Democrats agree the Congress erred in giving the original grant on the terms Mr. Roosevelt dictated, that the fund has not been wisely or properly used, and that the public interest has not been efficiently served.

But they also realize that refusal of the additional grant would be a direct rebuke to the President.

This would amount to something akin to outright repudiation of Mr. Roosevelt by the Democratic Congress. They might risk it, in the face of the overwhelming evidence of misuse of the money, if this were not a campaign year.

But nothing short of an economic earthquake could persuade a majority of the Democratic politicians to so embarrass Mr. Roosevelt on the election eve. So they will, against their better judgment, give him the one billion 500 million dollars—that is, they will give him that much of the people's money.

Preparing for War



(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

Here, like stolid robots on a death march, young Communists are training for the war they expect to come. Gas masks hide their faces. Anti-mustard-gas suits cover their bodies. Come what may, THEY are prepared.

There is a lesson for Americans in this "Danse Macabre," especially those Americans who give ear to the siren song of Pinks and Reds fighting appropriations for an ADEQUATE national defense.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, April 23—Dick Berlin, magazine executive, has become one of the three most widely traveled of the American air passengers. The nonchalant sort who can take off in a furthermost corner of the world and be napping before the plane reaches high altitudes.

O. O. McIntyre

The log of his most recent journey reads like some modern Jules Verne imaginings. Such as: "Sunday—Breakfast in Bagdad; lunch in Cairo; dinner in Athens." Berlin started out for a rest in Honolulu but continued on by boat to Sydney.

From there he took to the air, flying over Australia and on to Java. Then started to cross the shark-infested Timor Sea.

Forty-five miles out, motor trouble developed and they limped back for repairs. Then flew over Soemba, Lombok and Bali. Then to Batavia, Bangkok and into Rangoon.

Among experiences was flying low at dawn over Bethlehem. The Garden of Gethsemane, Nazareth, the River Jordan, the Dead Sea and across the Suez Canal.

He also saw from the air the temples of India, bathers in the sacred Ganges and bits of life from Jodhpur to Baluchistan through remote Persia.

The profession of astrology seems no longer one of the dubious callings ensconced in shabby brownstones in side streets. Or patronized chiefly by tin horn gamblers, turf touts, ladies of skimpy morals and others who live lightly and for the day.

The general topsy-turviness, especially the market crack-up, has made it one of the proverbial straws for a sinking world. It has followers in the highest stratum.

Myra Kingsley, of distinctive lineage and social impressiveness makes her engagements, ahem! for February in Palm Beach; in March, April and May, New York; and June in London.

Richard Barthelmess, whose long, distinguished stage career was followed by the inevitable lull, seems to have revised the usual formula of from stage to screen. He gave an extraordinary account of himself in a New York drama this winter, almost duplicating the achievement of his fellow movie star, Walter Huston, who suddenly found himself up against studio indifference.

Barthelmess in his footlight tryout has opened the doors of important producers.

Continuous burlesque shows no abatement in attendance, although first to open in the morning and last to close when Broadway goes dark. They have made several fortunes for backers the past few years.

A sure-fire strain in patronage is composed of sailors in port. There are generally a dozen at every performance. But the burley's chief appeal is to the out-of-town visitor who wants to spice his visit with a dash of reckless adventure. He feels he is slipping his halter and will have something to tell the boys back home.

Too, many actors like to take a look at the other half of the show world. John Barrymore takes in one when he comes to town. George Arliss has also attended several.

Thingumabobs: Phil Simms, European reporter, was the first dramatic critic in America to sport a white-lined Inverness . . . King Edward thinks no dessert tops the Yankee version of Floating Island . . . Earl Carroll smoked his first cigar when 30, and they had to carry him out of a night club feet up . . . Ina Claire was once a chorus girl in the Follies . . . Claire Luce has decided to make London her permanent home and has bought a house in Sussex . . . Dorothy Knapp, once billed as the most beautiful girl in the world, is a sculptress and lives in Tudor City . . . Cobina Wright is giving singing lessons to Doris Duke Cromwell.

Sudden memory: The time you wore the first colored hand on your straw hat up Main street and the crowd in front of the hotel yelled: "Oh, Gertrude!"

Poetic cussing, for which Mark Twain had superb talent, has become a lost art in most sections of Manhattan, what with Twain in a happier world and Bob Davis, who is no slouch if he gets his head caught in a well, hooked by a cow or something, always gadding. But down on the water front it retains its pristine charm. I heard a group of stevedores near the French line pier in action last night. It was beautiful.

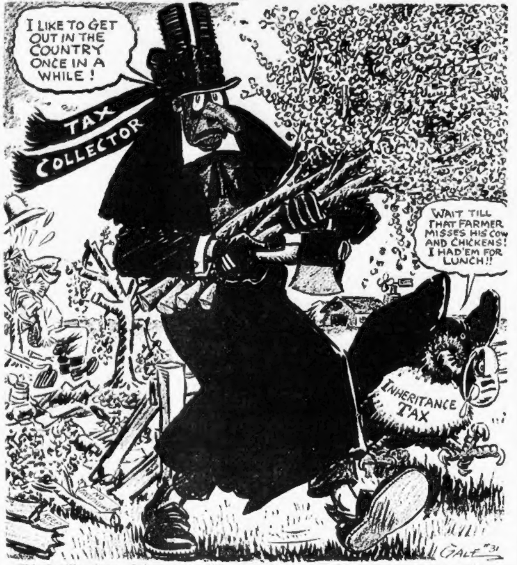
The Crape Hanger



I LIKE TO GET OUT IN THE COUNTRY ONCE IN A WHILE!
TAX COLLECTOR
WAIT TILL THAT FARMER MISSES HIS COW AND CHICKENS! I HAD'EM FOR LUNCH!!
INHERITANCE TAX
GALE '31

This familiar figure, being a city slicker, naturally hangs out intown most of the time, but don't think that the farmer escapes his unwelcome attentions!

He likes nothing better than to spend a day occasionally in the country—and when he does, a plague of locusts has nothing on him!

With the hatchet of over-taxation he literally clips the blossoms of livelihood from the poor farmer's hard efforts—and his pet Buzzard cleans up the rest.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

The trouble with most of us moderns is that we never learn how to be alone.

From the moment of birth we're surrounded with clutter and clash and clang. There's always someone to talk to, something to see, some place to go.

Elsie Robinson

Indeed the very thought of being alone gives most of us the Screaming Meamies.

We may for one night endure the Extreme Agony of staying at home with Nothing To Do. But human fortitude can go no further. With the next evening star, off we dash to the movies, the night club or the bridge game.

Even while we race in our cars, the horror of solitude still grips us. GIVE US A RADIO, OR GIVE US DEATH!

VITAL TO LIFE

Solitude is not a blight nor a nightmare. It is a normal and necessary part of our human experience, and no character can become lusty or poised without large amounts of it.

We need solitude as much as we need sleep or food or fresh air. We need it to discover and develop the truth about ourselves—to sift out the values of Life—to hear those voices which can only come to us in the quiet.

Once solitude was an accepted, an inescapable part of all human experience. People learned to live alone because they had to.

There were no movies to flee to—no telephones or radios—no swift transportation by automobiles.

People learned to "stay put" in both soul and body, and were the stronger and saner for it.

We are not smarter or stronger for all our racket and racing, we moderns. We do not know more about life, for we spend our days running away from life.

We have far less within ourselves than the lonely pioneers—and crack more quickly under strain. Nine-tenths of our seeming cleverness is simply the jitters and nothing else but.

WORDS OF A SAINT

There is a magnificent scene in Bernard Shaw's play, "Saint Joan"—noble words which drive straight at the core of our weakness. Joan of Arc is facing the Inquisition.

Her friends have deserted her.

The stake looms before her.

Terrified, heartbroken though she is, she defies them all and defends her faith. They have told her that she is friendless and alone. Bravely her young voice cries:

"Do not think you can frighten me by telling me that I am alone. France is alone; and God is alone; and what is my loneliness before the loneliness of my country and my God?

"I see now that the loneliness of God is His strength; what would He be if He listened to your jealous little counsels?

"Well, my loneliness shall be my strength, too."

We are ALL alone. We cannot really run away from our loneliness. Stop trying! Face and accept your solitude. Take it gratefully. Rest in it wisely.

Let YOUR loneliness be your strength!

Loneliness Is Saddest

By Winifred Black

What should you hate most about growing old?

Would it be your lack of vigor, your impaired health, your grieving for those who are gone?

Winifred Black

Yes, they are all bad things, but what I should hate is getting out of step. There is something so hateful about being out of step.

Did you ever go away somewhere for a long visit and return to find someone in your favorite chair at the table? It may be somebody very nice and sweet, and interesting, but somebody else.

And did the people at the table talk about people you didn't know, hum songs you never heard and laugh at jokes you couldn't quite understand?

And did you feel all at once very alone, like someone standing on a bridge in the dark with the black water mourning along underneath.

And when you were serious did they want to laugh, and look sulky when you wanted to laugh?

Oh, they were polite in kind, but every once in a while you could catch a look on somebody's face which said, "I wonder how long she's going to stay?"

Don't you hate that, being just "she" when people are talking of you?

Yes, I think I should hate loneliness worst of all. Poverty is a poor companion. Hunger is cruel. But you can bear any of these things if you have someone to bear them with you, can't you?

I do admire the plucky moderns who go to live in little apartments all by themselves and keep smiling.

I know it's the way to do, but dear me! I'd rather be poor and very humble indeed and have those I love around me, than to be a poor, lonesome queen, all in velvet and diamonds and nobody to tell me whether my crown was on straight or not, wouldn't you?

Isn't It So?

The men and women who actually count are those who get something done. They have no big talk or empty palaver.

If you help yourself and others notice it, you will soon find a helping hand near you.

"Dear Govt."

SECT. OF PEACE
U. S. Govt
Dear Mr. Hull:

I sure hope you won't get us in a War with Europe in 1936, because we are haveing an Election this year, and the American People will be very busy fighting among theirselves.

But I am laying awake & worrying, Mr. Hull, because the President says we can use the Good Neighbor Polisy on Europe, and I just found out it don't work.

My Next Door Neighbor was spadeing his garden the other day, so I poaked my nose over the fense & says, "What do you think about the Presidents peace plan, what does he mean by this here Good Neighbor Polisy?"

My Neighbor frowned, he says to me, "The Good Neighbor Polisy means you better bring back that lawn-mower you copped off me last Fall," he says, "it means you better tell your wife to quit comeing over & borrowing all of our eggs."

He says that I and my wife was a worse nuisance than Europe, Mr. Hull. "You don't return nothing you borrow," he says, "so pretty quick there is going to be a small size War between you and I."

That made me mad, Mr. Hull. I begun to remember a lot of things my Neighbor done to I and my wife, and pretty soon we was insulting each other in a loud tone of voice.

Right then I done my duty for peace, Mr. Hull, I went in the house to keep my country out of war, and I haven't poaked my nose out since then.

But it just goes to show that being a good neighbor is the worst idea we could have, the first thing you know a young war will break out right over your own back fence.

Nations are just like people, only worse, so the best thing us Americans can do is stay in our own garden with our mouth shut, and be ready with plenty of amunition, just in case some good neighbor comes over and takes a sock at us.

Yours worried,
W. NORMAN.

Four Interesting People

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

Edwin C. Hill

First a word about my old and highly respected friend, Senator William E. Borah of the wide-open spaces. He stands today as one of the three avowed leading candidates for the Republican Presidential nomination.

Kansas's Gov. Landon appears to be out in front, but Bill Borah, running easily, is fighting hard. When the fireworks start exploding at Cleveland, the Lone Wolf will be sending up plenty of rockets.

Politically cantankerous, a routine Republican only when it so pleases him to be, the Senator from Idaho is just about the most interesting personality in the upper house of Congress.

Like Horatius at the Bridge, the Senator has stood for lo, these many years, spear in hand, defending the fundamental law of the land. Due to him, largely, we are not in the League of Nations and so involved in the wranglings of European politics.

A VETERAN LEADER

It was some 40 years ago that young Bill Borah surged into national prominence. Nearly 30 years ago he prosecuted Bill Haywood and other storm troopers of the Western Federation of Miners for the alleged crime of planting the bomb which destroyed former Governor Frank Steunenberg of Idaho at the gateway of his home.

From then on he was a made man and has been in the Senate almost ever since. As a Presidential candidate his age, 71, may be somewhat against him. But he is still in rugged health.

Madame Lucrezia Bori is directly descended from that famous family which produced Pope Alexander VI, and Caesar and the beautiful Lucrezia Borgia—those remarkable Borgias who came from Spain along in the 15th century to make Italian history for two centuries.

Mme. Lucrezia, who at the age of 48 quits the stage but not the activities of the Metropolitan Opera, inherits the beauty, charm and personality which made golden-haired Lucrezia Borgia the most celebrated woman of her time.

She took the name Bori because it was almost impossible for one of her caste to adopt a professional stage career under a name so patrician as Borgia.

For 20 years she starred in the old opera house on Broadway. From time to time there were other divas perhaps more glamorous, perhaps more spectacular. But as they came and went with the passing of the years, the descendant of the Borgias securely held her place in the affections and admiration of the operatically judicious.

In certain roles no prima donna ever excelled her. As Mimi in "La Boheme," as Violetta in "La Traviata," and as Manon in "Manon Lescaut," she stood alone in her glory.

In any list of the 20 most notable women of the world, the name of Mme. Bori certainly should occupy a conspicuous place.

Milwaukee is the 12th city of the United States. Ever since the turn of the century, it has been known, quite inaccurately, as a Socialistic community.

As a matter of fact, the proportion of out and out Socialists in Milwaukee is relatively very small, barely one-eighth of the total vote. And yet, year after year and term after term, Milwaukee voters have deliberately installed as the chief executive a thorough-going Socialist.

ENDED CORRUPTION

Daniel Webster Hoan has just been re-elected mayor after serving six terms in that office over a period of 20 years. His invariable triumph at the polls is one of the political phenomena of the times. Pretty much everyone in Milwaukee has been against Dan Hoan at one time or another, except the majority of the voters themselves.

It was 26 years ago when the people of Milwaukee snatched young Dan Hoan from obscurity and made him city attorney.

There had been widespread corruption and graft on the part of officeholders from the old line parties. But in 1910, in disgust, he turned to the Socialists and put them in power all down the line.

Two years later, though, they kicked the Socialists out, all except young Hoan, who had a four-year job. And in 1916 they made him mayor, a job which he has occupied ever since. Now when a man remains mayor for 20 years and is tagged for the same job for another term, there must be a good reason for it.

Milwaukee folk will tell you that they have almost the lowest per capita government and the lowest per capita bonded indebtedness with the exception of one other city only.

They will tell you too, that Dan Hoan, who lives in a commonplace little wooden house, has no more money in the bank today than when he first went into office. Hoan's success is a remarkable triumph for the plain man of the common people, the man of character and uncorrupted honesty.

Out in Hollywood, capital of moviedom, they call him "Uncle Carl." They are speaking, of course, of Carl Laemmle, an authentic pioneer of the industry.

The film world generally was almost shocked to hear the other day that "Uncle Carl" had sold his Universal Pictures Corporation to a group of New York bankers for five and a half million dollars. He owned 80 per cent of the common stock.

It had been thought that the kindly little man who got into the motion picture industry 30 years age with a shooting gallery in his home city of Chicago, could never be separated from the Universal Company which he had built up with his own two hands.

He is 69 now, and probably a little tired. The world which he knew in his vigorous youth and middle age has changed. Few of his old-time associates are left.

He will be free with his millions to conserve his health and to gaze with kindly philosophy upon the changing scenes of world affairs.

The Taft Principles

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Among the estimators there appears to be agreement that the balance of power at the Presidential election next November will be held by about 13 million voters who pride themselves upon being independents or moderates. The same estimators agree that about 13 million regulars will support the Republican nominee of the Cleveland convention and that 13 million regulars will support the nominee of the Philadelphia convention.

Of course, these regular Republicans do not yet know whom their delegates will nominate at Cleveland, but that doubt does not impair their regularity. The regular Democrats, however, know that Mr. Roosevelt will be renominated at Philadelphia and will dictate the platform upon which he will run for re-election.

A LITTLE BOOK

It is among the 13 million moderates that the largest interest exists regarding the men and issues to be brought forward at the Cleveland and Philadelphia conventions. Of special interest to this group is a little book which has just appeared under the arresting title: "You and I—and Roosevelt." Its author, Charles P. Taft of Ohio, is the younger son of the only American yet to serve the nation both as President and Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

All those who share the political independence of the author will find his discussion of the 1936 campaign both interesting and stimulating.

To the end that his readers may know he is not hiding behind an empty generality he offers the following example of the sort of declaration of principles which, as he believes, would make a strong appeal to the intelligence of the 13,000,000 moderates whose cause he champions:

"1—Thorough and unhurried study and discussion by Congress of legislative proposals, and their enactment within Constitutional limitations.

"2—Sound financial planning for permanent improvements and current expenses with a balanced budget.

"4—Reasonable tariff revision, encouragement of foreign trade, and strict neutrality.

"5—Conservation of natural resources, including the soil of our farms; purchase of sub-marginal land, subsidy of crops that improve fertility, and grants-in-aid for control of erosion.

"6—A return to the Republican policy of enforcement of the Sherman and Clayton Acts, more adequate control of food and drugs, and reasonable regulation of interstate utilities.

"7—Sound banking laws, adequate home and farm credit and continuance of Securities and Stock Exchange regulation.

"8. A realistic labor policy calling for democracy in industry and conciliation in industrial conflict.

"9. Revision of the Social Security Act to require minimum State standards, to eliminate the impossible reserve funds, to remove the unfair burden on young men entering the old-age insurance scheme, and to provide changes needed immediately in the unemployment insurance scheme.

And then last but by no means least, Mr. Taft flings this challenge into the face of all pork-barrel politicians of both parties, and the Farleyism for which they stand:
